Chapter I

Establishment, organization and activities of the Special Committee

A. Establishment of the Special Committee

1. The Special Committee on the Situation with regard to the Implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples was established by the General Assembly pursuant to its resolution 1654 (XVI) of 27 November 1961. The Special Committee was requested to examine the application of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples, contained in Assembly resolution 1514 (XV) of 14 December 1960, and to make suggestions and recommendations on the progress and extent of the implementation of the Declaration.
2. At its seventeenth session, after considering the report of the Special Committee,<sup>1</sup> the General Assembly adopted resolution 1810 (XVII) of 17 December 1962, by which it enlarged the Special Committee with the addition of seven new members. In paragraph 8 (a) of that resolution, the Assembly invited the Special Committee “to continue to seek the most suitable ways and means for the speedy and total application of the Declaration to all territories which have not yet attained independence”.
3. At the same session, by its resolution 1805 (XVII) of 14 December 1962 on the question of South West Africa, the General Assembly requested the Special Committee to discharge, mutatis mutandis, the tasks assigned to the Special Committee for South West Africa by resolution 1702 (XVI) of 19 December 1961. By its resolution 1806 (XVII) of 14 December 1962, the Assembly decided to dissolve the Special Committee for South West Africa.
4. At its eighteenth session, by resolution 1970 (XVIII) of 16 December 1963, the General Assembly decided to dissolve the Committee on Information from Non-Self-Governing Territories and requested the Special Committee to study the information transmitted under Article 73 e of the Charter of the United Nations. It also requested the Special Committee to take that information fully into account in examining the situation with regard to the implementation of the Declaration in each of the Non-Self-Governing Territories and to undertake any special study and prepare any special report it might consider necessary.
5. At the same session and at each subsequent session, the General Assembly, after considering the report of the Special Committee,<sup>2</sup> has adopted a resolution renewing the mandate of the Special Committee.
6. On the occasion of the tenth, twentieth, twenty-fifth and thirtieth anniversaries of the Declaration, the General Assembly, by approving the related reports of the Special Committee, adopted resolutions 2621 (XXV) of 12 October 1970, 35/118 of 11 December 1980, 40/56 of 2 December 1985 and 45/33 of 20 November 1990, containing a series of recommendations with a view to facilitating the speedy implementation of the Declaration.
7. At its forty-sixth session, the General Assembly, by adopting resolution 46/181 of 19 December 1991, endorsed as a plan of action for the International Decade for the Eradication of Colonialism the proposals contained in the annex to the report of the Secretary-General dated 13 December 1991 (A/46/634/Rev.1 and Corr.1). The plan, inter alia, contained the following provisions:

“22. The Special Committee on the Situation with regard to the Implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples, with the cooperation of the administering Powers, should:

“(a) Prepare periodic analyses of the progress and extent of the implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples in each Territory;

“(b) Review the impact of the economic and social situation on the constitutional and political advancement of Non-Self-Governing Territories;

“(c) Organize during the Decade seminars in the Caribbean and Pacific regions alternately, as well as at United Nations Headquarters, to review the progress achieved in the implementation of the plan of action, with the participation of the peoples of the Non-Self-Governing Territories, their elected representatives, the administering Powers, Member States, regional organizations, specialized agencies, non-governmental organizations and experts.

“23. The Special Committee should continue to seek, as a matter of priority, the full cooperation of administering Powers with regard to the dispatch of United Nations visiting missions to Non-Self-Governing Territories.

“24. The Special Committee, with the cooperation of the administering Powers, should make every effort to facilitate and encourage the participation of representatives of Non-Self-Governing Territories in regional and international organizations, as well as in the specialized agencies of the United Nations system, the Special Committee itself and other United Nations decolonization bodies.”

8. At its fifty-fifth session, the General Assembly adopted resolution 55/146 of 8 December 2000, declaring the period 2001-2010 the Second International Decade for the Eradication of Colonialism, and called upon Member States to redouble their efforts to implement the plan of action, as contained in the annex to the report of the Secretary-General dated 13 December 1991 (A/46/634/Rev.1 and Corr.1), updated where necessary, to serve as the plan of action for the Second Decade. The updated plan of action is contained in the annex to the report of the Secretary-General entitled “Second International Decade for the Eradication of Colonialism” (A/56/61).

9. At its fifty-ninth session, after considering the report of the Special Committee,<sup>3</sup> the General Assembly adopted resolution 59/136 of 10 December 2004, in which it approved the report of the Special Committee covering its work during 2004 and requested the Special Committee to continue to seek suitable means for the immediate and full implementation of the Declaration and to carry out those actions approved by the General Assembly regarding the Second International Decade in all Territories that have not yet exercised their right to self-determination, including independence, and in particular:

- (a) To formulate specific proposals to bring about an end to colonialism and to report thereon to the General Assembly at its sixtieth session;
- (b) To continue to examine the implementation by Member States of resolution 1514 (XV) and other relevant resolutions on decolonization;
- (c) To continue to examine the political, economic and social situation in the Non-Self-Governing Territories and to recommend, as appropriate, to the General Assembly the most suitable steps to be taken to enable the populations of those Territories to exercise their right to self-determination, including independence, in accordance with relevant resolutions on decolonization, including resolutions on specific Territories;
- (d) To finalize before the end of 2005 a constructive programme of work on a case-by-case basis for the Non-Self-Governing Territories to facilitate the implementation of the mandate of the Special Committee and the relevant resolutions on decolonization, including resolutions on specific Territories;
- (e) To continue to dispatch visiting missions to the Non-Self-Governing Territories in accordance with relevant resolutions on decolonization, including resolutions on specific Territories;
- (f) To conduct seminars, as appropriate, for the purpose of receiving and disseminating information on the work of the Special Committee and to facilitate participation by the peoples of the Non-Self-Governing Territories in those seminars;
- (g) To take all necessary steps to enlist worldwide support among Governments, as well as national and international organizations, for the achievement of the objectives of the Declaration and the implementation of the relevant resolutions of the United Nations;
- (h) To observe annually the Week of Solidarity with the Peoples of Non-Self-Governing Territories.<sup>4</sup>

In addition, the Assembly reaffirmed that the United Nations visiting missions to the Territories were an effective means of ascertaining the situation in the Territories, as well as the wishes and aspirations of their inhabitants, and called upon the administering Powers to continue to cooperate with the Special Committee in the discharge of its mandate and to facilitate United Nations visiting missions to the Territories, and also called upon the administering Powers that had not participated formally in the work of the Special Committee to do so at its session in 2005.

32. At the same meeting, the representatives of the Bolivarian Republic of Venezuela and Cuba made statements (see A/AC.109/2005/SR.7).

33. Draft resolution A/AC.109/2005/L.7, adopted by the Special Committee at its 7th meeting, on 13 June 2005, reads as follows:

Special Committee decision of 14 June 2004 concerning Puerto Rico

The Special Committee,

Bearing in mind the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples, contained in General Assembly resolution 1514 (XV) of 14 December 1960, as well as the resolutions and decisions of the Special Committee concerning Puerto Rico,

Considering that the period 1990-2000 was proclaimed by the General Assembly, in its resolution 43/47 of 22 November 1988, as the International Decade for the Eradication of Colonialism, and that by resolution 55/146 of 8 December 2000, the General Assembly declared the period 2001-2010 the Second International Decade for the Eradication of Colonialism,

Bearing in mind the 23 resolutions and decisions adopted by the Special Committee on the question of Puerto Rico, contained in the reports of the Special Committee to the General Assembly, in particular those adopted without a vote in recent years,

Recalling that 25 July 2005 marks the one hundred and seventh anniversary of the intervention in Puerto Rico by the United States of America,

Also recalling the diverse initiatives taken by the political representatives of Puerto Rico and the United States in recent years, which have thus far failed to set in motion the process of decolonization of Puerto Rico,

Stressing the need for the United States to lay the groundwork for the full implementation of General Assembly resolution 1514 (XV) and the resolutions and decisions of the Special Committee concerning Puerto Rico,

Noting the debate in Puerto Rico on the search for a procedure that would make it possible to launch the process of decolonization of Puerto Rico,

Aware that Vieques Island, Puerto Rico, has been used for over 60 years by the United States Marines to carry out military exercises, with negative consequences for the health of the population, the environment and the economic and social development of that Puerto Rican municipality,

Recalling the decision of the Government of the United States to put an end to the bombings and military exercises on Vieques Island from 1 May 2003, which was the outcome of the prolonged process conducted during years of peaceful protests carried out by the people of Puerto Rico as well as the wide campaign of international solidarity, which has been appropriately reflected in the work and documents of the Special Committee,

Noting the consensus existing among the people and the Government of Puerto Rico on the necessity of ensuring the decontamination, and return to the people of Puerto Rico of all the territory previously used for military exercises and installations, and of using them for the social and economic development of Puerto Rico,

Recalling the release of several Puerto Rican political prisoners during the past few years,

Noting the consensus among the people of Puerto Rico in favour of the release of the Puerto Rican political prisoners who are still serving sentences in United States prisons for cases related to the struggle for Puerto Rico's independence and to the Vieques Island struggle for peace,

F. Consideration of other matters

1. Compliance of Member States with the Declaration and other resolutions on decolonization

34. At its 1st meeting, on 17 February 2005, by adopting the suggestions relating to the organization of its work put forward by the Chairman (see A/AC.109/2005/L.2 and Corr.1), the Special Committee decided to consider in plenary meetings the question of compliance of Member States with the Declaration and other relevant resolutions on decolonization. The Special Committee took that decision into account in its consideration of specific items.

2. Question of holding a series of meetings away from Headquarters

35. At its 1st meeting, on 17 February 2005, by adopting the suggestions relating to the organization of its work put forward by the Chairman (see A/AC.109/2005/L.2 and Corr.1), the Special Committee decided to take up the question of holding a series of meetings away from Headquarters as appropriate.

36. Having regard to its programme of work for 2005, the Special Committee, at its 10th meeting, on 20 June 2005, considered the question of holding meetings away from Headquarters, taking into account the provisions of paragraph 6 of General Assembly resolution 1654 (XVI) of 27 November 1961 and paragraph 3 (9) of resolution 2621 (XXV) of 12 October 1970, by which the Assembly authorized the Special Committee to meet elsewhere than at United Nations Headquarters whenever and wherever such meetings might be required for the effective discharge of its functions. At the same meeting, the Special Committee decided that it would consider accepting such invitations as might be received in 2006 and that, when particulars of such meetings had become known, it would request the Secretary-General to seek the necessary budgetary provision in accordance with established procedure (see A/AC.109/2005/L.14, paras. 2 and 3).

3. Pattern of conferences

37. At its 1st meeting, on 17 February 2005, by adopting the suggestions relating to the organization of its work put forward by the Chairman (see A/AC.109/2005/L.2 and Corr.1), the Special Committee decided to take up as appropriate the item entitled "Pattern of conferences". In so doing, the Special Committee was conscious of the fact that it had initiated some important measures in rationalizing its work methods, many of which were subsequently incorporated in a number of resolutions and decisions of the General Assembly. Further recalling the measures it had taken theretofore in that connection, the Special Committee decided to continue to exercise its initiatives in the effective utilization of the limited conference resources and the further reduction of its documentation requirements.

38. The Special Committee also continued the practice of circulating communications and information material, as far as possible, in the form of informal notes and aides-memoires in the original language of submission, thus curtailing documentation requirements and accruing considerable savings for the Organization. A list of the documents issued by the Special Committee in 2005 is contained in the annex to the present chapter.

39. At its 10th meeting, on 20 June 2005, the Special Committee considered the item and noted that, during the year, it had closely followed the guidelines set forth in the resolutions of the General Assembly on the pattern of conferences, in particular resolution 59/265 of 23 December 2004. By organizing its programme of work effectively and holding extensive consultations, the Committee had striven to keep the number of its formal meetings to a minimum. The Special Committee decided, taking into account its probable workload for 2006, to consider holding its meetings in accordance with the following schedule:

(a) Plenary

February/March	As required
June/July	Up to 30 meetings (6-8 meetings a week)

(b) Bureau

February/July	10 meetings
---------------	-------------

It was understood that that programme would not preclude the holding of any ad hoc meetings that might be warranted and that the Special Committee might, in early 2006, review the schedule of meetings on the basis of any new developments. The Special Committee decided, subject to any directives given by the General Assembly, to strive, while fulfilling its mandate, to keep its meetings to a minimum (see A/AC.109/2005/L.14, paras. 5-7).

4. Control and limitation of documentation

40. At its 10th meeting, on 20 June 2005, the Special Committee considered the question of the control and limitation of documentation and noted that, during the year, it had taken further measures to control and limit its documentation in compliance with the relevant resolutions of the General Assembly, in particular resolutions 34/50 of 23 November 1979, 39/68 D of 13 December 1984, 51/211 B of 18 December 1996 and 59/265. The Special Committee noted that, in its resolution 50/206 B of 23 December 1995, the General Assembly had approved the recommendation of the Special Committee to replace its verbatim records with summary records. Having reviewed the need for such records, the Special Committee decided to maintain its summary records (see A/AC.109/2005/L.14, paras. 8-10).

5. Cooperation and participation of the administering Powers in the work of the Special Committee

41. In compliance with the provisions of the relevant resolutions of the General Assembly, the delegation of New Zealand, as an administering Power, continued to participate, in accordance with established procedure, in the related work of the Special Committee (see chap. X). The delegation of France also participated in the 2005 Caribbean regional seminar (as observer) and the related work of the Committee on the question of New Caledonia.

42. The delegations of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the United States of America did not participate in the work of the Special Committee.<sup>8</sup> However, during informal consultations with the Special Committee held in May and June 2004, one administering Power expressed its desire to continue informal dialogue with the Special Committee. The Special Committee expressed satisfaction at the continuing informal cooperation with the United Kingdom and also expressed the hope that that cooperation would eventually lead to its formal participation in the work of the Special Committee.

43. In a related context, the Special Committee, at its 3rd meeting, on 6 June 2005, adopted a resolution on the question of sending visiting missions to Territories. By that resolution, the Special Committee noted with appreciation that, at the invitation of the Government of New Zealand, two visiting missions had been dispatched to Tokelau, in July 1994 and August 2002. It also noted with satisfaction the cooperation of the United Kingdom, as an administering Power, in facilitating Special Mission to Bermuda in March and May 2005. It called upon the administering Powers to cooperate or continue to cooperate with the United Nations by receiving United Nations visiting missions in the Territories under their administration (see A/AC.109/2005/L.6).

6. Participation of representatives of Non-Self-Governing Territories in the work of the Special Committee

44. At its 10th meeting, on 20 June 2005, the Special Committee considered the question of the participation of representatives of Non-Self-Governing Territories in its work and decided that the participation of representatives of Non-Self-Governing Territories in the work of the Special Committee at Headquarters, as recommended in the plan of action for the Second International Decade for the Eradication of Colonialism (A/56/61, annex), should continue to be facilitated through the reimbursement by the United Nations of the expenses relating to their participation under the terms of the guidelines amended by the Committee and approved by the General Assembly at its forty-eighth session (see A/AC.109/L.1791, annex, and A/AC.109/L.1804). In that regard, the Special Committee decided to consider the guidelines at its plenary meetings with a view to amending them further, where appropriate (see A/AC.109/2005/L.14, para. 14).

7. Week of Solidarity with the Peoples of Non-Self-Governing Territories

45. The question of the Week of Solidarity with the Peoples of Non-Self-Governing Territories was considered by the Special Committee at its 2nd meeting, on 11 March 2005.

8. Representation at seminars, meetings and conferences of intergovernmental and other organizations

46. At its 10th meeting, on 20 June 2005, the Special Committee decided to recommend to the General Assembly that the Committee continue to be represented at seminars, meetings and conferences organized by United Nations bodies and other intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations active in the field of decolonization. In keeping with its decision of 17 February 2005, the Committee would authorize its Chairman to hold consultations, as appropriate, concerning its participation in those meetings, as well as the level of representation, when accepting invitations. In accordance with established practice and on the basis of the principle of rotation, the Chairman would hold consultations with the Bureau members, who, in turn, would consult with the members of the Committee from their respective regional groups. The Special Committee also decided that the Chairman would also hold consultations with that member of the Committee whose regional group was not represented in the Bureau. It also decided to recommend that the General Assembly make appropriate budgetary provisions to cover such activities in 2006 (see A/AC.109/2005/L.14, para. 4).

9. Report of the Special Committee to the General Assembly

47. At its 1st meeting, on 17 February 2005, by adopting the suggestions relating to the organization of its work put forward by the Chairman (see A/AC.109/2005/L.2 and Corr.1), and in accordance with paragraph 31 of General Assembly decision 34/401 on the rationalization of the procedures and organization of the Assembly, the Special Committee decided to follow the procedure adopted at its 2004 session<sup>9</sup> in connection with the formulation of its recommendations to the Assembly at its sixtieth session.

48. At its 10th meeting, on 24 June 2005, the Special Committee, on the proposal of the Chairman, authorized the Rapporteur to reformulate the Committee's draft resolutions into the format of the General Assembly and to submit directly to the Assembly the report in accordance with established practice and procedure. As a transitional measure, during its 2005 session, the Special Committee started to issue a number of its resolutions in the format of the General Assembly, in line with the established practice of other subsidiary bodies of the Assembly.

10. Other questions

49. At its 1st meeting, on 17 February 2005, by adopting the suggestions relating to the organization of its work put forward by the Chairman (see A/AC.109/2005/L.2 and Corr.1), the Special Committee decided, in its examination of specific Territories, to take into account the relevant provisions of General Assembly resolutions and decisions listed in the note by the Secretary-General on the organization of work of the Special Committee (A/AC.109/2005/L.1, para. 11). That decision was taken into account during the consideration of specific Territories and other items in plenary meetings.

G. Relations with United Nations bodies and intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations

1. Economic and Social Council

50. In connection with the Special Committee's consideration of the implementation of the Declaration by the specialized agencies and the international institutions associated with the United Nations, and in accordance with paragraph 17 of General Assembly resolution 59/129 of 11 December 2004 relating to the item, consultations were held between the President of the Economic and Social Council and the Chairman of the Special Committee to consider appropriate measures for coordination of the policies and activities of the specialized agencies in implementing the relevant resolutions of the General Assembly (see E/2005/47).

2. Commission on Human Rights

51. In its consideration of the Territories concerned, the Special Committee took into account the relevant resolutions adopted by the Commission on Human Rights at its sixty-first session, in 2005, including resolutions on the Working Group on Indigenous Populations and the International Decade of the World's Indigenous People of the Subcommission on the Promotion and Protection of Human Rights (2005/49), working group of the Commission on Human Rights to elaborate a draft declaration in accordance with paragraph 5 of General Assembly resolution 49/214 of 23 December 1994 (2005/50), and the work of the Subcommission on the Promotion and Protection of Human Rights (2005/53). The Special Committee further took into account the relevant resolutions of the General Assembly, including resolutions 59/172, 59/174, 59/180 and 59/185 of 20 December 2004.

3. Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination

52. During the year, having regard to the relevant provisions of the International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination, the Special Committee continued to follow the work of the Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination.

4. Specialized agencies and international institutions associated with the United Nations

53. In accordance with the requests contained in the relevant General Assembly resolutions, the Special Committee continued its consideration of the question of the implementation of the Declaration by the specialized agencies and the international institutions associated with the United Nations. An account of the Special Committee's consideration of the question is set out in chapter VI of the present report.

54. During the year, the Special Committee adopted decisions relating to the extension of assistance to the peoples of Non-Self-Governing Territories. Those decisions are reflected in recommendations of the Special Committee to the General Assembly (see chap. XII).

5. Regional intergovernmental organizations

55. Bearing in mind its previous decisions to maintain contact with the African Union, the Caribbean Community (CARICOM) and the Pacific Islands Forum on a regular basis in order to assist in the effective discharge of its mandate, the Special Committee, as in previous years, closely followed the work of these regional intergovernmental organizations.

6. Movement of Non-Aligned Countries

56. The Special Committee continued to follow closely the work of the Movement of Non-Aligned Countries regarding the issue of decolonization.

7. Non-governmental organizations

57. Having regard to the relevant provisions of General Assembly resolutions 59/135 and 59/136, the Special Committee continued to follow closely the activities of non-governmental organizations having a special interest in the field of decolonization. The participation of non-governmental organizations in the work of the Special Committee during the period under review is covered in detail in the Special Committee documents (see A/AC.109/2005/18) and the present report (see para. 29 above and chap. II, annex, below). The related decisions of the Special Committee are listed in chapter XII of the present report.

H. Action relating to international conventions and programmes

58. The Special Committee continued to monitor related developments in the Territories, having regard to the relevant provisions of article 15 of the International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination (General Assembly resolution 2106 A (XX), annex). It also continued to take into account the provisions of the relevant resolutions of the United Nations bodies concerned relating to the Third Decade to Combat Racism and Racial Discrimination.

I. Review of work

59. As noted elsewhere in the present report, the reform processes initiated by the Special Committee in 1991, which brought about a number of changes and improvements in its approach, methods and procedures, continued to be actively pursued in 2005. The measures adopted by the Special Committee included the streamlining and consolidation of a number of its resolutions and eliminating duplication in its documentation (see para. 40 above). The Special Committee's recommendation to the General Assembly at its sixtieth session on 12 Territories was consolidated into two resolutions (see chap. XII, sects. E and F).

60. The Special Committee also considered and submitted recommendations on information from Non-Self-Governing Territories transmitted under Article 73 e of the Charter of the United Nations, the question of sending visiting missions to Territories, implementation of the Declaration by the specialized agencies and the international institutions associated with the United Nations and economic and other activities that affect the interests of the peoples of the Non-Self-Governing Territories.

61. During 2005, the Special Committee sent a special mission to Bermuda, at the behest of the Bermuda Independence Commission and upon the invitation of the Government of the Territory, with the agreement of the administering Power.

62. As noted in chapter II of the present report, the Special Committee held a Caribbean regional seminar at Canouan, Saint Vincent and the Grenadines, from 17 to 19 May 2005, on the mid-term review, follow-up and priorities for action in implementation of the Plan of Action for the Second International Decade for the Eradication of Colonialism referred to in General Assembly resolution 55/146 of 8 December 2000.

63. In accordance with the mandate entrusted to it by the General Assembly, the Special Committee continued to seek suitable means for the implementation of resolution 1514 (XV) in all Territories to which the Declaration is applicable and formulated specific proposals and recommendations in that regard.

64. On the question of the publicity to be given to the work of the United Nations in the field of decolonization, the Special Committee adopted a resolution on the dissemination of information on decolonization, which it recommends to the General Assembly for action at its sixtieth session (see chap. XII, sect. G).

65. The Special Committee also continued its review of the list of Territories to which the Declaration is applicable. With regard to its decision of 14 June 2004 concerning Puerto Rico, the Special Committee heard a number of representatives of organizations concerned and adopted a resolution on the matter, which is set out in paragraph 33 of the present chapter.

66. During the period under review, the Special Committee continued the critical review of its work and its programme of future work by holding a number of informal meetings. The Special Committee continued discussion on the case-by-case work programmes for each of the Non-Self-Governing Territories and held informal consultations on the matter with the administering Powers concerned with a view to improving cooperation between the Committee and the administering Powers (see sect. J below).

67. In accordance with the guidelines established by the General Assembly, the Special Committee was able during the year to reduce the number of its formal meetings and to minimize the wastage resulting from cancellation of scheduled meetings.

68. In the light of the fact that 2005 marked the mid-point of the Second International Decade for the Eradication of Colonialism, the work of the Committee focused on carrying out an appraisal and review of the implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples and the Plan of Action for the Decade. In order to carry out its analysis, the Committee sought the input of the representatives of the Territories, experts and non-governmental organizations as well as Member States and intergovernmental organizations.

J. Future work

69. In accordance with the mandate entrusted to it by the General Assembly since 1961 and subject to further directives from the Assembly at its sixtieth session, the Special Committee intends to continue during 2006 to pursue its efforts in bringing a speedy end to colonialism, in accordance with Article 73 of the Charter and the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples.

70. The Special Committee will continue to fulfil the responsibilities that have been entrusted to it in the context of the Second International Decade for the Eradication of Colonialism, declared by the General Assembly in its resolution 55/146, and particularly with regard to the implementation of the plan of action contained in document A/56/61.

71. In order to discharge its responsibilities, the Special Committee will keep the situation in the Non-Self-Governing Territories under continuous review, examining the impact of developments concerning each Territory on their political advancement. It will also review the compliance by Member States, particularly the administering Powers, with the relevant decisions and resolutions of the United Nations. In order to carry out this analysis, the Special Committee will continue to seek the input of representatives of the Territories, non-governmental organizations from the Territories and experts inviting them to attend its meetings and regional seminars and also by visiting the Territories to gather first-hand information.

72. In 2006, the Special Committee intends to continue and intensify its dialogue and cooperation with the administering Powers for the purpose of furthering the cause of decolonization through the development of programmes of work for the decolonization of specific Territories. This will be done in agreement with the administering Powers, and with the participation of representatives of the Territories at every stage of discussion. The members of the Special Committee are particularly encouraged by the excellent cooperation of New Zealand and Tokelau at every stage of the negotiations in preparation for the exercise of the right of self-determination by the people of Tokelau towards the end of 2005. The Special Committee has been kept informed of consultations and their outcomes through briefings and visits to Tokelau. The Chairman of the Special Committee most recently visited Tokelau in October 2004 to attend a workshop on the constitution. The Special Committee also intends to develop, in consultation with the administering Powers and the people of the Territories concerned, accelerated action plans for the decolonization of certain Territories.

73. The Special Committee has noted with great satisfaction the growing interest and participation of the people of the Non-Self-Governing Territories in the regional seminars it conducts annually and by the wider participation of Member States, specialized agencies and programmes, non-governmental organizations and experts. In this regard, the Special Committee will continue to conduct these seminars, for the purpose of assessing, receiving and disseminating information on the situation in the Territories, in order to facilitate the implementation of its mandate. It will also continue to disseminate information on the work of the Special Committee. In this connection, the Special Committee will hold a seminar in the Pacific region in 2006.

74. The Special Committee will continue to seek the cooperation of the administering Powers in dispatching United Nations visiting missions to the Territories under their administration. Having regard to the constructive role played by such missions in the past, the Special Committee continues to attach the utmost importance to visiting missions as a means of collecting adequate and first-hand information on conditions in the Territories and on the wishes and aspirations of the peoples concerning their future status. Moreover, visiting missions are important in the context of furthering modalities and action plans for decolonization and observing acts of self-determination. The Special Committee will explore the possibility of combining visiting missions to certain territories with regional seminars in order to optimize its available resources.

75. The Special Committee has consistently reiterated the importance of disseminating information on decolonization as an instrument for furthering the aims of the Declaration. Accordingly, the Committee will continue to use opportunities such as the regional seminars and visiting missions to disseminate information on its activities and on the Territories in an effort to mobilize world public opinion to support and assist the people of the Territories in bringing about a speedy end to colonialism. It also intends to develop, together with the Department of Public Information, programmes aimed at territories that have requested information about self-determination options.

76. The Special Committee will continue to pay attention to the specific problems of the remaining Non-Self-Governing Territories. The Special Committee is aware that, in addition to general problems facing developing countries, those Territories also suffer handicaps arising from the interplay of such factors as size, remoteness, geographical dispersion, vulnerability to natural disasters, fragility of ecosystems, constraints in transport and communications, great distances from market centres, a highly limited internal market, lack of natural resources and vulnerability to drug trafficking, money-laundering and other illegal activities. The Special Committee will continue to recommend measures to facilitate a sustained and balanced growth of the fragile economies of those Territories and increased assistance in the development of all the sectors of their economies, with particular emphasis on programmes of diversification.

77. It is the intention of the Special Committee to continue to follow closely the implementation of the Declaration by the specialized agencies and the international and regional institutions associated with the United Nations. The Special Committee will hold consultations with those organizations, as appropriate, and will continue the practice of holding consultations between its Chairman and the President of the Economic and Social Council. The objective of those consultations is to facilitate the effective implementation of the decisions of the various United Nations bodies and to foster cooperation between the specialized agencies and the regional organizations in providing assistance for the Non-Self-Governing Territories in a given region.

78. The Special Committee will also strive to follow up on the General Assembly's request that the participation of the Non-Self-Governing Territories in the work of relevant meetings and conferences of the agencies and organizations be facilitated so that the Territories can benefit from the related activities of the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system.

79. The Special Committee intends to take into account economic and other activities that affect the interests of the peoples of the Non-Self-Governing Territories and to continue its cooperation with interested States to ensure that the interests of the peoples of those Territories are protected.

80. In the light of the provisions of the General Assembly resolutions concerning the pattern of conferences, and taking into consideration its experience in previous years as well as its probable workload for 2006, the Special Committee has approved a tentative programme of meetings for 2006, which it commends to the Assembly for approval.

81. The Special Committee suggests that, when the General Assembly, at its sixtieth session, examines the question of the implementation of the Declaration, it may wish to take into account the various recommendations of the Special Committee that are reflected in the relevant chapters of the present report and, in particular, to endorse the proposals outlined in the present section in order to enable the Special Committee to carry out the tasks it envisages for 2006. The Special Committee recommends that the Assembly renew its appeal to the administering Powers to take all necessary steps for the implementation of the Declaration and the relevant United Nations resolutions, in accordance with the freely expressed wishes of the peoples of the Territories concerned. In that connection, the Special Committee recommends that the Assembly request all the administering Powers to become involved with the work of the Special Committee in the discharge of its mandate and, in particular, to participate actively in the work relating to the Territories under their respective administrations. The Special Committee also recommends that the Assembly continue to invite the administering Powers to allow representatives of the Territories concerned to participate in the discussions in the Special Political and Decolonization Committee (Fourth Committee) and the Special Committee on the items relating to their respective Territories. Furthermore, the Assembly might also wish to renew its appeal to all States, the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system to comply with the various requests addressed to them by the Assembly and the Security Council in their relevant resolutions.

82. The Special Committee recommends that, in approving the programme of work outlined above, the General Assembly make adequate provision to cover the activities that the Special Committee envisages for 2006. In that regard, the Special Committee notes that the programme budget for the biennium 2006-2007 includes resources to provide for the programme of work of the Special Committee for 2006-2007, based on the level of activities approved for 2005, without prejudice to the decisions to be taken by the Assembly at its sixtieth session. On that basis, the Special Committee understands that, should any additional provisions be required over and above those included in the proposed programme budget for the biennium 2006-2007, proposals for supplementary requirements would be made to the General Assembly for its approval. Finally, the Special Committee expresses the hope that the Secretary-General will continue to provide it with all the facilities and personnel necessary for the discharge of its mandate, taking into account the various tasks assigned to it by the Assembly as well as those arising from decisions taken by it during the current year.

K. Conclusion of the 2005 session

83. At its 11th meeting, on 24 June 2005, the Chairman made a statement on the occasion of the closing of the 2005 session of the Special Committee (see A/AC.109/2005/SR.11).

Second International Decade for the Eradication of Colonialism

84. On 19 December 1991, at its forty-sixth session, the General Assembly adopted resolution 46/181, entitled “International Decade for the Eradication of Colonialism”, and the plan of action contained in the annex to the report of the Secretary-General dated 13 December 1991 (A/46/634/Rev.1 and Corr.1). In paragraph 22 (c) of the plan of action, aimed at ushering in, in the twenty-first century, a world free from colonialism, the Assembly, inter alia, requested the Special Committee to:

“organize during the Decade seminars in the Caribbean and Pacific regions alternately, as well as at United Nations Headquarters, to review the progress achieved in the implementation of the plan of action, with the participation of the peoples of the Non-Self-Governing Territories, their elected representatives, the administering Powers, Member States, regional organizations, specialized agencies, non-governmental organizations and experts.”

85. At its fifty-fifth session, the General Assembly adopted resolution 55/146 of 8 December 2000, declaring the period 2001-2010 the Second International Decade for the Eradication of Colonialism, and called upon Member States to redouble their efforts to implement the plan of action contained in the annex to the report of the Secretary-General dated 13 December 1991, updated where necessary, to serve as the plan of action for the Second Decade. The updated plan of action is contained in the report of the Secretary-General on the Second Decade (A/56/61).

86. At its 1st meeting, on 17 February 2005, the Special Committee, mindful of the mandate entrusted to it by the General Assembly in the implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples, and by approving the recommendations of its Chairman on the organization of work of the Special Committee for the year (see A/AC.109/2005/L.2 and Corr.1), decided to allocate to plenary meetings of the Special Committee, as appropriate, the question of the Second International Decade for the Eradication of Colonialism.

87. The Special Committee considered the questions of the Second International Decade for the Eradication of Colonialism and the Caribbean regional seminar on midterm review, follow-up and priorities for action of the Decade, held at Canouan, Saint Vincent and the Grenadines, from 17 to 19 May 2005, at its 1st, 2nd and 10th meetings, on 17 February, 11 March and 20 June 2005.

88. The Special Committee had before it the guidelines and rules of procedure for the Caribbean regional seminar (A/AC.109/2005/1).

89. At its 2nd meeting, on 11 March, following a statement by the Chairman, the Special Committee approved the composition of the official delegation of the Special Committee to the Caribbean regional seminar (see A/AC.109/2005/SR.2).

90. The Special Committee also decided to invite United Nations organs, agencies and institutions to apprise the Secretary-General of actions they had taken in implementation of General Assembly resolution 55/146 of 8 December 2000 and to submit a report to the Assembly at its sixty-first session, subject to any directives that the Assembly might give at its sixtieth session in that regard (see A/AC.109/2005/L.14, para. 13).

91. At the 10th meeting, on 20 June 2005, the Chairman of the Special Committee drew attention to the draft report of the Caribbean regional seminar, which had been circulated to members of the Special Committee as a conference room paper A/AC.109/2005/CRP.1 (see A/AC.109/2005/SR.10).

92. At the same meeting, following a statement by the Chairman, the Committee adopted the draft report of the Caribbean regional seminar and decided to annex it to its report to the General Assembly. The full text of the report of the Caribbean regional seminar is contained in the annex to the present chapter.

93. At its 11th meeting, on 24 June, the Special Committee adopted without a vote draft resolution A/AC.109/2005/L.12, entitled “Implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples”, submitted by the Chairman.

94. At the same meeting, the Special Committee adopted without a vote draft resolution A/AC.109/2005/L.16 entitled “Second International Decade for the Eradication of Colonialism”, submitted by the Chairman.

95. The text of draft resolutions A/AC.109/2005/L.12 and A/AC.109/2005/L.16, adopted by the Special Committee at its 11th meeting, on 24 June 2005, appears in the form of recommendations of the Special Committee to the General Assembly in chapter XII, sections H and I, accordingly, of the present report.

I. Introduction

1. At its fifty-fifth session, the General Assembly adopted resolution 55/146 of 8 December 2000, declaring the period 2001-2010 the Second International Decade for the Eradication of Colonialism, and called upon Member States to redouble their efforts to implement the plan of action contained in the annex to the report of the Secretary-General dated 13 December 1991 (A/46/634/Rev.1 and Corr.1), updated where necessary, to serve as the plan of action for the Second Decade. The report of the Secretary-General on the Second International Decade for the Eradication of Colonialism (A/56/61) contains an updated plan of action.

2. In its resolution 59/136 of 10 December 2004, the General Assembly approved the report of the Special Committee, which, inter alia, called for the holding of a seminar in the Caribbean region in 2005, to be organized by the Special Committee.

3. As stated in the guidelines and rules of procedure for the seminar (A/AC.109/2005/1), the purpose of the seminar is to carry out a midterm review of the progress achieved in the implementation of the plan of action of the Second International Decade for the Eradication of Colonialism, in order to define priorities for follow-up and intensified action in the remaining years of the Decade. The seminar will also assess the situation in the Non-Self-Governing Territories,<sup>b</sup> in particular their constitutional evolution towards self-government and self-determination, with a view to developing, in cooperation with the administering Powers and the representatives of the Non-Self-Governing Territories, a constructive programme of work on a case-by-case basis for the decolonization of the Non-Self-Governing Territories. The seminar will also identify areas in which the United Nations system and the international community at large could enhance programmes of assistance to the Territories within an integral framework ensuring the political and sustainable socio-economic development of the Territories concerned.

4. The topics considered by the seminar will assist the Special Committee in making a realistic evaluation of the situation in the Non-Self-Governing Territories. The seminar gave pre-eminence to a broad range of views of the peoples of those Territories. It also sought to secure the participation of organizations and institutions that are actively involved in the political, economic and social development of those Territories.

5. The contributions of the participants served as a basis for the conclusions and recommendations of the seminar, which will be carefully studied by the Special Committee with a view to submitting proposals to the General Assembly concerning the fulfilment of the objectives of the Second International Decade for the Eradication of Colonialism.

II. Organization of the seminar

6. The seminar was held in Canouan, Saint Vincent and the Grenadines, from 17 to 19 May 2005.

7. The seminar held six meetings, in which representatives of States Members of the United Nations, Non-Self-Governing Territories, administering Powers, non-governmental, regional and other organizations and experts took part. The list of participants is given in appendix I. The seminar was organized to encourage an open and frank exchange of views.

III. Conduct of the seminar

A. Proceedings of the seminar

11. On 17 May, Julian Robert Hunte (Saint Lucia) opened the seminar in his capacity as its Chairman.

12. The Honourable Michael Browne, Minister of Foreign Affairs, Commerce and Trade of Saint Vincent and the Grenadines, addressed the seminar. His statement is reproduced in appendix II.

13. At the same meeting, the Chairman of the Special Committee made an opening statement (see appendix III).

14. At the same meeting, Maria Maldonado, Chief of Decolonization Unit, Department of Political Affairs, United Nations Secretariat, read out a message from the Secretary-General (see appendix IV).

15. At the same meeting, on the proposal of the Chairman, the members of the Special Committee attending the seminar decided to annex the statement of the Rapporteur of the Committee to the present report (see appendix V).

16. On 20 May, at the sixth meeting, the Chairman made a concluding statement.

17. At the same meeting, the participants adopted by acclamation a resolution expressing appreciation to the Government and the people of Saint Vincent and the Grenadines (see appendix VI).

B. Summary of statements and discussions

Member States

18. The representative of Algeria stated that since 1965, the General Assembly had repeatedly called for the decolonization of Western Sahara, while confirming the inalienable right of the Saharawi people to self-determination. The people of Western Sahara had shown their confidence in the United Nations by accepting a referendum and settlement plan. Morocco had also accepted the plan but it had prevented the holding of a referendum for self-determination. The Security Council invited the two parties — Morocco and the Frente Polisario — to continue to overcome the problems facing the implementation of the Settlement Plan and to explore other solutions with a view to resolving their differences. In 2003, responding to a Security Council request for finding a solution, the Secretary-General's Personal Envoy, Mr. Baker, presented a Peace Plan for the self-determination of the people of Western Sahara which envisaged that after 4 years of Saharawi administration under Moroccan sovereignty the people of the Territory, including Moroccan inhabitants, would choose among the options of independence, integration or continuation of autonomy under Morocco. The plan was supported by the Security Council and the General Assembly. The Frente Polisario accepted the plan, despite concerns about the fate of the Settlement Plan, but Morocco rejected it in April 2004. Since then, the Security Council, while making reference to the Baker plan, has continued to call for a mutually acceptable solution that would provide self-determination for the people of Western Sahara.

19. The representative of Argentina stated that decolonization and self-determination were not synonyms. Self-determination should not be applicable in the case of any attempt aimed at the partial or total disruption of the national unity and the territorial integrity of a country. Quoting General Assembly resolution 1514 (XV), he pointed out that on the question of the Malvinas (Falkland Islands), self-determination had been ruled out due to the fact that the inhabitants of the Territory could not be distinguished from the occupying power, as they were descendants of the population illegally transplanted there by the United Kingdom. This was understood by the Special Committee and the General Assembly through resolution 2065 (XX), in which it recognized a dispute between the Argentine Republic and the United Kingdom over sovereignty of the Malvinas (Falkland Islands) and invited both Governments to negotiate a peaceful solution, taking into consideration the objectives of the Charter, resolution 1514 (XV) and the interests of the inhabitants of the Islands. The representative of Argentina said that the Special Committee should continue to encourage the resumption of the negotiations between the Argentine Republic and the United Kingdom in order to find a solution to the question in accordance with the recent resolutions and decisions of the United Nations.

20. The representative of the Congo stated that the dissemination of information among the peoples of the Non-Self-Governing Territories regarding their rights to self-determination was a crucial part of the decolonization process. Only the people who were well-informed could make the right choice and avoid being “abused”. The special Committee should continue to bring attention to the responsibilities of the administering Powers, engaging them in a constructive dialogue with a view to implementing the mandate of the General Assembly. The active participation and engagement of the administering Powers was crucial in this process. The Special Committee should systematically review on an annual basis the implementation of the specific recommendations on decolonization and take into account the accurate needs expressed during this seminar by the representatives of the Non-Self Governing Territories.

21. The representative of Morocco underlined the unique position held by Morocco in the history of colonization as well as in the decolonization process, having been subject to three-fold colonization. Morocco, participated in good faith in the implementation of the Settlement Plan proposed in 1991. However, implementation of the plan was thwarted by obstacles leading to the conclusion by the Secretary-General and his Personal Envoy of the inapplicability of the settlement plan and their recommendation for the search of an agreed political solution. This political solution was put forward by the Personal Envoy, Mr. Baker, in his first plan entitled “Draft Framework Agreement” in June 2001. Morocco accepted to engage in negotiations on the basis of this Draft Framework Agreement with the necessary flexibility, in order to settle definitively this regional dispute while the other parties rejected the proposal. Since the Security Council found it impossible to choose between the various options presented to it at that time, Mr. Baker, in January 2003 and without prior consultations, presented to the parties his proposed peace plan in which he tried to combined two irreconcilable approaches, that is, the Settlement Plan of which the failure and inapplicability were duly noted and the Draft Framework Agreement. Morocco’s conception of a political solution is to bring the parties, through dialogue and negotiations, to agree on a negotiated and mutually acceptable political solution on the basis of a proposal of autonomy with respect for sovereignty and keeping with the recognition of self-determination as the preferred means of exercising individual and collective rights, and therefore overcome the current impasse and achieve progress towards a just, lasting and mutually acceptable political solution, particularly in the light of the recent promising developments in the region of Maghreb.

Representatives of the Non-Self-Governing Territories

22. The representative of American Samoa said that the position of the people of American Samoa had been consistent, with their desire to retain their political status with the United States. They were independent within a federalized system of self-governing States and Territories. American Samoa had made progress on the issue of self-governance and was in the process of now calling for a constitutional review in 2005. Two issues needed to be clarified before conducting this constitutional convention. A clear definition by the Special Committee of what self determination was, different from what American Samoa was doing, and second, a detailed process of what the Special Committee believed American Samoa needed to do to achieve self-governance different from what they were currently doing.

23. The representative of the British Virgin Islands noted that the islands had a mixed system in its Legislative Council. There were 13 members, 4 of whom were elected at large or territorial-wide and 9 District or Constituent Representatives. The Territory balanced its budget with a surplus and had done so over the last number of years. It received no aid from the United Kingdom in this respect. The 1999 White Paper, "Partnership for Progress", indicated that the United Kingdom wanted freedom for the Territories to run their own affairs to the greatest degree possible. Real progress was being realized, he said through the establishment of the Constitutional Review Commission in February 2004. It consisted of 9 members of varied backgrounds and had 7 specific terms of reference and a general reference to review the overall constitution. The report of the Commission had been submitted in April 2005 and would shortly be debated in their Legislative Council.

24. The representative of Saint Helena asked that the Special Committee, on behalf of the people of Saint Helena take up the following points of concern, with the British Government: the required infrastructure to support the airport project should not be funded from Saint Helena's annual aid programme. If air access was to deliver sustainable economic development, then it was prudent that it continued with its long-awaited programme of refurbishment and update of its present essential services to allow it to survive, cost-effectively. The policy of the Department for International Development of full cost recovery and increase of tariff before project approval was given, had to be addressed so as to encourage people to remain on the island and others to return, he said. The representative of the Territory also noted that the right to nationality should in principle be included in their new constitution, as set forth in Article 15 in the Universal Declaration of Human Right. Saint Helenians had been without a nationality when they were deprived of British citizenship, which was only restored in 2002, and they did not want a recurrence of this. He further noted that the Saint Helena status should not be included in their new constitution as it was not a human right and, therefore, not applicable. Saint Helenians did not need to be protected in this way. Provision for the acquisition of Saint Helena status was contained in the local legislation. Inclusion of the Saint Helena status in the constitution would undermine that law and could create an unsatisfactory situation in the future for Saint Helena.

25. The representative of Turks and Caicos Islands stated that the Turks and Caicos Islands was a British Overseas Territory. As a Government, they were not content with the relationship or constitutional arrangement. They had come into office on a mandate for economic as well as political change. The Constitutional Commission submitted its report over two years ago, and while they had had two meetings with United Kingdom officials on the matter, the talks now seemed stalled. Further, in the talks that had taken place, it did not appear to this government that there was a sincere willingness or effort to negotiate in good faith a new constitutional arrangement that reflected the aspiration of the Turks and Caicos people, as it had been reflected in their vote in the 2002 election and the Constitutional Commission recommendations. The Chief Minister therefore called upon the Special Committee to use its influence to encourage the Government of the United Kingdom to meet its responsibilities to their territories, which aspired to be decolonized and to assist them in doing so and not tell them, as they had done in the past, to accept the status quo or jump to independence, without offering a parachute. This was a direct violation of human rights and dignity of the people of the Turks and Caicos Islands. A reasonable period of full-internal self-governance was the parachute they were seeking, a period to put in place the necessary institutions to ensure the protection of human rights, democratic principles, independence of the judiciary, and good governance, among others, in a new State.

26. The representative of the United States Virgin Islands indicated that the participation of his territory in international organisations was important to capacity building in preparation for the assumption of more autonomy. He outlined the programme of government participation in the United Nations proceedings on decolonization dating back to 1975, and the annual presentation of official statements to the Special Committee and Fourth Committee since the 1980s. He chronicled the role of the United States Virgin Islands as an associate member in the United Nations Economic Commission for Latin America and the Caribbean, and in its subsidiary Caribbean Development and Cooperation Committee, the latter of which the territory served as chairman in 1988-1989, and again in 2004-2005. He presented information on the historical participation of the United States Virgin Islands, and a number of other Non-Self Governing Territories, in the capacity of observers, in United Nations world conferences in the economic and social sphere, beginning with the 1992 Earth Summit and most recently in the 2005 International Meeting on the Sustainable Development of Small Island States, as well as in selected special sessions of the General Assembly. He expressed concern that there had been no action on the request contained in the relevant General Assembly resolution calling for the participation of the United States Virgin Islands in the UNESCO Archival Programme, and called for implementation of the relevant resolutions of the General Assembly and ECOSOC on assistance to the Non-Self Governing Territories.

27. The representative of the Frente Popular para la Liberación de Saguía el-Hamra y de Río de Oro (Frente POLISARIO) stated that the decolonization of Western Sahara has not been achieved, despite the efforts carried out by the international community during the last 15 years. Morocco, which invaded the Territory in 1975 in the framework of the illegal agreements she signed with the former colonial power, Spain, had refused to continue the implementation of the Settlement Plan approved by the Security Council in 1990-1991 and had rejected the latest peace plan elaborated by the former Personal Envoy of the Secretary-General, James Baker, which had received strong support of the Council as stated in its resolution 1495 (2003). Morocco's obstruction to the efforts undertaken by the international community constituted a serious challenge to the United Nations credibility and particularly to that of the Special Committee, which, he said in the frame work of its mandate, should reaffirm its interest and responsibilities on the matter. As a question of decolonization, the conflict had to be resolved on the basis of the right of the people of Western Sahara to self-determination, in conformity with the Charter of the United Nations and with the relevant resolutions of the General Assembly and of the Security Council. The current stalemate represented a denial of this essential right and put regional stability and security at risk. Frente Polisario believed that the Committee should send a mission to the Territory. A fresh assessment of the situation could bring both new momentum to the decolonization process and new hope to the Saharawi people.

United Nations Development Programme

28. The representative of the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) stated that UNDP corporately and through its field offices has been consistent in its support of the United Nations decolonization mandate and resolutions with the provision of technical assistance inputs and expertise. In the case of the Caribbean, the Caribbean Non-Self Governing Territories received support for the implementation of in-country policy and public awareness processes. Earlier this year, UNDP Offices in the Caribbean had proposed providing support for a Regional Governance Programme which was seeking to build on and strengthen the robust governance traditions of the Caribbean. UNDP Barbados office would support programming strategies to strengthen participatory democracy and promote greater participation by civil society and all population groups with the introduction of a democratic dialogue programme — using multi-stakeholder dialogue to support governance reforms in Barbados and the Organization of Eastern Caribbean States.

Representatives of the regional organizations

29. The representative of the African Union (AU) stated that the AU fully supported the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples and the exercise to the right of self-determination and independence by the populations of the remaining Non-Self-Governing Territories. The AU also supported the Plan of Action of the Second International Decade for the Eradication of Colonialism which aims at advancing the decolonization process in the Territories. He underscored that the AU was seized of the question of Western Sahara and the issue of its self-determination. The AU emphasized the importance of diplomacy and negotiations in conflict resolution. In concluding, he remarked that efforts should be made to re-examine the bottlenecks in the implementation of the Peace Plan on Western Sahara.

30. The representative of the Organization of American States (OAS) thanked the Special Committee for its invitation to participate in the forum. She observed that the OAS had a long tradition of supporting and promoting democracy and noted that the OAS Charter, signed in 1948, identified the promotion and consolidation of representative democracy as one of the Organization's primary principles. She drew the Committee's attention to the Inter-American Democratic Charter, which promotes representative democracy as a necessary condition for the full social, economic and political development of the peoples of the Americas and in this regard commended the Charter as required reading for those who sought to promote, strengthen and preserve democracy and democratic institutions. She noted the proposal of the Chairman of the Special Committee, that the OAS consider the dichotomy between colonization and the principles espoused in the Democratic Charter, and undertook to bring the issue to the attention of her principals.

Experts

31. Experts presented papers dealing with questions and issues proposed by the Special Committee:

(a) An expert from the United States Virgin Islands stated that in assessing the level of implementation of the Second International Decade for the Eradication of Colonialism, he had examined the recommendations of the regional seminars and the resolutions during the first decade in comparison with those of the Second International Decade at midterm. He outlined the recurrent themes which emerged from the recommendations and resolutions in areas as political education, autonomy, legitimate political options, the UN role in the self-determination process and the human rights dimension of self-determination. He also noted the themes of ownership of natural resources by the Territories, participation of the territories in UN programmes, the role of visiting missions, the need for expanded dissemination of information on decolonization, and the lack of implementation of decolonization resolutions including the research requirements contained in the plan of action of the International Decade. He concluded that the achievement of full self-government should be the goal of the UN, rather than the mere adoption of resolutions to that effect, and that unless implementation of the decolonization mandate becomes the priority, the UN may not be able to withstand the pressure of inertia.

(b) An expert from Bermuda said that Independence remained the primary option for the achievement of self-determination by the people of the Non-Self-Governing Territories. Elections and referendums were equally valid means for reflecting the will of the people although a referendum offered more safeguards for the incumbent party. Integration was not an option embraced by the administering Powers but actions of the European Union through its constitution reflected an ominous move in that direction without any input from the Territories under the administration of the United Kingdom.

(c) An expert from Montserrat said that Political progress was defined as a reduction of the autonomy deficit inherent in the colonial relationship. To achieve this, the 'reserved powers' of Governors had to be negotiable. The UK Foreign Office, however, was strongly opposed to this while all the Caribbean Chief Ministers were unanimous in their desire for minimal powers for the Governors. The growing frustration caused by this situation could catalyse and accelerate the movement towards full self-government. Meanwhile the perceived nexus between the affluence of the Territories and their constitutional status, persisted. More political education was needed to break the psychology and culture of dependence.

(d) An expert from Anguilla noted that her discussion paper on the dissemination of information on decolonization and the development of political education programmes highlighted the importance of the landmark Anguilla Seminar which created an unprecedented level of awareness and of discussion on options of self-determination (free association, integration and independence). Her paper called for a "de-shrouding" of the terms used to define the colonial reality, suggesting that the terms "British Overseas Territory" and "Administering Power" instead of "Colonies" and "Colonizing Power" created an illusion of partnership and equality. The paper pointed out that the education process must ensure the understanding that "self-determination and self-governance" were fundamental right of the peoples and that the fact that they were "non-self-governing" meant that this basic right had been denied and violated. The paper further called on the Special Committee as well as the political leaders and the peoples of the Non-Self-Governing Territories to challenge the Administering Power on its disregard for the options of free association and integration (options approved by the General Assembly) and its failure to prepare the Territories for self-determination.

Non-governmental organizations

32. A representative of the Anguilla Constitutional and Electoral Reform Committee noted that many of the people of Anguilla believed that the Foreign and Commonwealth Office already had a special constitution prepared for Anguilla, although she hoped that was not the case. The constitutional process in Anguilla had stalled, but they were hoping to move forward very soon with renewed vigour. The people of Anguilla called upon the United Nations to assist them and to their view that constitutional provisions should no longer be imposed upon the people of the Non-Self-Governing Territories.

33. A representative of the Bermuda Independence Commission (Bermuda) stated that the Commission (BIC) was formed in December of 2004 by the Premier of Bermuda, the Honourable Alex Scott J.P.M.P. Commissioners represented a broad cross section of the community. The Commission was charged with causing a full debate on the subject, educating the people of Bermuda on independence, collecting information and presenting its report to the cabinet by the end of June 2005. The Commission had visited a wide range of countries, consulted with experts and met with the representatives of the United Kingdom's Foreign and Commonwealth Office. It has been made clear to the Commission by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office that the only options open to Bermuda, which by definition had a relatively advanced constitution with cabinet and a Premier, are full independence or status quo. The Premier was likely to submit the BIC report to parliament causing further national debate. A decision on whether the option of independence should be put to the people is likely to follow that debate.

34. A representative of the Cayman Islands Chamber Non-Governmental Organizations Constitutional Working Group observed that he spoke on behalf of non-governmental organizations in the Cayman Islands involved in Constitutional Review. These organizations included: the Cayman Islands Chamber of Commerce, Cayman Ministers Association, People for Referendum, Concerned Citizens Group and the Forum. Pastor Ebanks, who chairs the NGO group, expressed disappointment that no progress had been achieved by the Special Committee to carry out the action plan to introduce United Nations-funded programmes to educate the people about the self-determination options that had been promised during the historic Caribbean seminar held in Anguilla in 2003.

35. A representative of the Colegio de Abogados de Puerto Rico emphasized that since 1898 Puerto Rico had been and still was a colony of the United States. The approval of Puerto Rico's constitution in 1952 did not change the nature of its colonial political relation with the United States of America. In the past, several initiatives had been tried by the people of Puerto Rico, such as proposals to the United States Congress and the President, regarding plebiscites, referendums and even legal actions, with no results. It seemed that the United States Government had no interest in dealing with the colonial situation of Puerto Rico. For the first time in many years there was a general consensus in Puerto Rico that the present political situation was unacceptable. The only discussion was about what should be the best and more effective process to achieve decolonization. His organization was proposing the Constitutional Assembly on Status as the only true mechanism of self-determination. This proposal had been adopted by two of the three political parties. At the moment there was no serious response from the United States Government. The representative of the Colegio de Abogados de Puerto Rico proposed that the Committee recommend to the General Assembly that Puerto Rico be re-inscribed on the list of Non-Self Governing Territories. He expressed the hope that the Special Committee would promote an educational process in Puerto Rico, regarding all aspects of decolonization with emphasis on mechanisms such as the Constitutional Assembly on Status. He also proposed that as part of the educational process, the Special Committee should send a visiting mission to Puerto Rico.

36. A representative of Free Montserrat United Movement stated that the administering Power had used its power, influence and finances to keep Montserrat in a state of colonial dependency. He added that the administering Power had used the volcanic activity on Montserrat, to further its own agenda for holding on to Montserrat and to thwart the hopes and aspirations of the people to see some progressive move forward out of their colonial state. Montserrat had requested that the Associated Statehood option be revisited. He pointed out that this development was a clear indication that the people of Montserrat were not in favour of maintaining the status quo and that they wanted to see some indication of a process that would eventually lead to their own national identity and nationhood. For its part, the administering Power contended that Montserrat had only two options: to remain tied to it in a perpetual state of dependency and control or to achieve independence. That was the stated position that the administering Power had maintained for many years. The administering Power appeared to have no problems spending money to keep Montserrat dependent. However, the administering Power had yet to suggest a modality by which it would assist the Territory to move out of its colonial state, and eventually achieve independence.

37. A representative of the United Nations Association of the Virgin Islands stated that the Committee's recent experiences of direct contact on the ground in non-self-governing territories had illustrated the need for, and usefulness of, accurate and authoritative information on self-determination being provided to the governments and people of the Non-Self-Governing Territories by the United Nations. Recent events in the United States Virgin Islands revealed a profound lack of information and understanding of the issues of decolonization, self-determination and political status within the political directorate and the population, and a disinclination to accept correct information from local persons. There was an urgent need for the Committee to facilitate the provision of information and education on political status issues to the Territories.

IV. Conclusions and recommendations

38. At its 6th meeting, held on 19 May 2005, the Chairman presented to the participants the following conclusions and recommendations:

Eradicating colonialism, role of the Special Committee and plan of action

1. The United Nations has a valid ongoing role in the process of decolonization. The mandate of the Special Committee is a major political programme of the United Nations.
2. After carrying out a midterm review, the seminar recommended that the Special Committee, the administering Powers and the Non-Self-Governing Territories engage in constructive discussions and innovative ways to expedite the implementation of the goals of the Second International Decade and its

Plan of Action for the Eradication of Colonialism as contained in General Assembly resolution 55/146 of 8 December 2000.

3. The participants reaffirmed the role of the Special Committee as the primary vehicle for fostering the process of decolonization and for expediting the implementation of the Plan of Action towards achieving the goals of the Second International Decade for the Eradication of Colonialism, in accordance with General Assembly resolution 55/146.

4. The seminar recommended that the Special Committee continue to participate actively in monitoring the evolution of the Non-Self-Governing Territories towards achieving self-determination.

5. The Special Committee should include, as appropriate, the participation of the representatives of the Non-Self-Governing Territories, on a case-by-case basis, at the consultations between the Special Committee and the administering Powers.

6. Any attempt aimed at the partial or total disruption of the national unity and the territorial integrity of a country is incompatible with the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations.

7. The participants noted that, in the development of work programmes for individual Territories, the participation of representatives of the Non-Self-Governing Territories in which there is no dispute over sovereignty should be ensured. They also pointed out that any work programme should include an information and education campaign for the peoples of these Territories, visiting missions of the Special Committee to ascertain the situation in those Territories first-hand and a consultation process acceptable to the peoples in those Territories leading to the exercise of their right to self-determination in accordance with United Nations resolutions.

8. The Special Committee should continue to develop a mechanism to systematically review, on an annual basis, the implementation of the specific recommendations on decolonization with a focus on implementing the mandate as contained in General Assembly resolutions and the plan of action of the Second International Decade for the Eradication of Colonialism.

Right to self-determination

9. The implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples contained in General Assembly resolution 1514 (XV) of 14 December 1960 is not complete as long as there remain Non-Self-Governing Territories that have yet to exercise their right to self-determination, in accordance with the relevant United Nations resolutions, including General Assembly and the Special Committee resolutions on special and particular colonial situations.

10. As long as the administering Powers exercise unilateral authority to make laws and other regulations affecting the Non-Self-Governing Territories without their consent, pursuant to such methods as legislation, orders in council and other methods, a Territory should not be considered self-governing.

11. In the process of decolonization, and where there are no disputes over sovereignty, there is no alternative to the principle of self-determination, which is also a fundamental human right. All available options for self-determination are valid as long as they are in accordance with the freely expressed wishes of the peoples concerned and in conformity with the clearly defined principles contained in the Charter of the United Nations, and as enunciated in General Assembly resolutions 1514 (XV) of 14 December 1960 and 1541 (XV) of 15 December 1960 and other relevant resolutions and decisions.

12. The participants expressed the view that, as long as there are Non-Self-Governing Territories, the inalienable rights of the peoples of those Territories must be guaranteed by the United Nations and the Special Committee in conformity with the Charter of the United Nations and General Assembly resolutions 1514 (XV) and 1541 (XV).

Public awareness and information campaigns

13. Continued examination of the spectrum of options for self-determination by all parties concerned and dissemination of relevant information among the peoples of the Non-Self-Governing Territories are important elements in achieving the goals of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples and the plan of action.

14. The participants affirmed the need for the Special Committee to actively embark on a public awareness campaign aimed at fostering an understanding among the people of the Territories of the options for self-determination included in the relevant United Nations resolutions on decolonization, especially within the context of developing programmes of work for specific Territories.

15. The seminar recommended that the Special Committee, in conjunction with the Department of Public Information and other relevant United Nations bodies, develop a programme to disseminate information and raise public awareness in the Territories in order to heighten people's understanding of the legitimate political status options available to them in accordance with the relevant United Nations resolutions, including the 1960 Declaration, and bearing in mind the successful programmes in this vein undertaken for the former Trust Territories.

16. United Nations information centres should be directed to disseminate information on decolonization to the Territories and to the administering Powers. In this regard, the participants stressed that information centres, especially those located in the Caribbean and Pacific regions, could play a significant role in disseminating information, promoting public awareness and mobilizing support for the work of the United Nations with respect to the decolonization process.

17. The Electoral Assistance Division of the Department of Political Affairs of the United Nations should be asked to provide support and assistance for any consultation process to be held in a Non-Self-Governing Territory regarding any act of self-determination.

18. The participants encouraged the United Nations to assist those Non-Self-Governing Territories that are granted observer status at United Nations world summits and conferences and special sessions of the General Assembly by facilitating the dissemination of information to them regarding the conferences and sessions.

Visiting missions

19. The participants confirmed the need to dispatch periodic visiting missions to the Non-Self-Governing Territories with the aim of raising public awareness of decolonization issues and possible options available for self-determination, while assessing the situation in those Territories and of ascertaining the wishes and aspirations of the peoples thereof regarding their future status, and called on the administering Powers to cooperate in facilitating such visiting missions. They noted the numerous requests made at the seminar from representatives of Non-Self-Governing Territories for visiting missions to be undertaken as soon as possible.

Cooperation with and assistance from agencies of the United Nations system and regional organizations

20. The participants supported closer cooperation between the Special Committee and the Economic and Social Council in order to promote increased United Nations assistance in the economic and social sphere to the Non-Self-Governing Territories.

21. All Non-Self-Governing Territories should be given access to relevant United Nations programmes in the economic and social sphere, including those emanating from the plans of action of United Nations major summits and conferences, in furtherance of capacity-building and consistent with the necessary preparation for the attainment of a full measure of internal self-government.

22. The seminar stressed that the wider United Nations system should continue to explore ways to strengthen existing measures of support and formulate appropriate programmes of assistance to the remaining Non-Self-Governing Territories and seek concrete proposals for the full implementation of the relevant resolutions by the specialized agencies, as detailed in General Assembly resolution 56/67 of 10 December 2001.

23. The participants urged the Special Committee to solicit the assistance of the Economic and Social Council regarding the implementation of Council resolution 2004/53 of 23 July 2004 on the implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples by the specialized agencies and international institutions associated with the United Nations.

24. The participants recognized the vulnerability of small island Non-Self-Governing Territories, which continues to be of major concern and that this vulnerability will grow unless urgent steps are taken to address and strengthen the Territories' capacities, in accordance with the Mauritius Declaration of January 2005.<sup>c</sup>

25. The seminar reiterated its support for the current participation of the Non-Self-Governing Territories in the relevant regional commissions of the United Nations and in specialized agencies of the United Nations. It called for the increased involvement of the Non-Self-Governing Territories in programmes and activities of the United Nations system in furtherance of the decolonization process, subject to the rules of procedure of the General Assembly and in accordance with the relevant United Nations resolutions and decisions, including General Assembly and Special Committee resolutions and decisions on specific Territories.

26. Participants commended the activities of the United Nations Development Programme in providing assistance to Non-Self-Governing Territories and encouraged it to further develop programmes specifically designed for the Territories.

27. The participants requested those members of the Special Committee that are members of the Economic and Social Council to support the inclusion of Non-Self-Governing Territories that are associate members of United Nations regional commissions as observers in the Council, pursuant to the relevant resolution of the Economic Commission for Latin America and the Caribbean and in accordance with the rules of procedure of the Council.

28. The participants recommended that the Special Committee establish closer ties with CARICOM and Organization of Eastern Caribbean States (OECS), and encouraged Non-Self-Governing Territories in the Caribbean region to develop closer contacts with the two organizations.

Constitutional and self-determination issues in the Non-Self-Governing Territories in the Caribbean and the other regions

29. The participants took note of the advances made and challenges faced by some Non-Self-Governing Territories in the Caribbean which may contribute to a decision regarding their exercising the right to self-determination in the near future, while others are still facing difficulties in developing a process leading to their self-determination.

30. The Participants drew the attention of the administering Powers to the three options listed in resolution 1541 (XV) of 1960, by which the General Assembly declared that a Non-Self-Governing Territory could attain a full measure of self-government, as envisaged in the Charter, by: emergence as a sovereign independent State; free association with an independent State; or integration with an independent State.

31. The participants took note of the ideas expressed by the representative of the Governor of American Samoa, including the idea that a single standard of decolonization should not be applied to every Territory. Furthermore, they expressed their willingness to support the choice of the people of American Samoa as determined through United Nations mechanisms. Participants also took note of the statement by the representative of American Samoa requesting information regarding the steps the Territory should take to complete the process of decolonization.

32. The participants noted with concern the military installations and activities of the administering Powers in Non-Self-Governing Territories, which run counter to the rights and interests of the people concerned and which create serious health and environmental hazards.

33. The participants, taking note of the statement made by the representative of Argentina, reiterated that the Special Committee should continue to encourage the resumption of negotiations between the Governments of Argentina and the United Kingdom with the aim of finding a solution to the question of the Falkland Islands (Malvinas), taking into consideration the interests of the population of the Territory, in accordance with the relevant resolutions and decisions of the United Nations.

34. With regard to Western Sahara, the participants urged the two parties to achieve a just, lasting and mutually acceptable political solution, which will provide for the self-determination of the people of Western Sahara in the context of arrangements consistent with the principles and purposes of the Charter of the United Nations, noting the role and responsibilities of the parties in this respect, and urged the parties and States of the region to continue to cooperate fully with the United Nations to end the current impasse and to achieve progress towards a just, lasting and mutually acceptable political solution. The participants recalled the mandate of the Special Committee towards the self-determination for the people of Western Sahara.

Administering Powers and other Member States of the United Nations, inter-governmental organizations, United Nations programmes and civil society

35. The participants welcomed the presence of the representative of France as an observer and regretted the lack of representation of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, taking into account its participation at previous seminars. They reiterated their call upon all administering Powers to engage the Special Committee in constructive dialogue in the future.

36. The Special Committee expressed its appreciation to Argentina, Algeria, Morocco and Spain for their participation in the seminar and encouraged other Member States to continue to cooperate with the Special Committee.

37. The Special Committee also expressed its appreciation for the participation of representatives of the African Union, the Organization of American States, the United Nations Development Programme as well as non-governmental organizations.

Role of the regional seminars

38. As activities of the plan of action of the Second International Decade for the Eradication of Colonialism, the regional seminars serve as an effective forum for focused discussion on matters of concern to the Non-Self-Governing Territories and afford opportunities for representatives of the peoples of the Territories to present their views and recommendations to the Special Committee.

39. The regional nature of the seminars, alternating between the Caribbean and the Pacific, remains a crucial element in their success. The administering Powers should be urged to facilitate the participation of the elected representatives of the Territories in the seminars and in sessions of the Special Committee and the Special Political and Decolonization Committee (Fourth Committee) in conformity with the relevant resolutions and decisions of the United Nations.

40. The participants recommended that the Special Committee integrate, to the extent possible, the recommendations of the Canouan seminar into its relevant resolutions on decolonization, as those recommendations are important expressions of the will of the people of the Territories.

41. The participants reiterated their appreciation of the outcome of the Madang seminar in 2004 and confirmed the need for the Special Committee to review the recommendations of the seminar and to make all possible efforts to include them in its follow-up actions.

42. The participants took note of the decision of the Special Committee to coordinate its annual seminars with other relevant activities to be conducted in the Non-Self-Governing Territories, including visiting missions, as appropriate, in order to better utilize its resources.

43. The Special Committee should adopt the report of the Canouan seminar and include it in its report to the General Assembly, as it did with the reports of the previous regional seminars.

44. The participants reiterated the importance of the conclusions and recommendations at the previous regional seminars, held in Vanuatu (1990), Barbados (1990), Grenada (1992), Papua New Guinea (1993, 1996 and 2004), Trinidad and Tobago (1995), Antigua and Barbuda (1997), Fiji (1998 and 2002), Saint Lucia (1999), the Marshall Islands (2000), Cuba (2001) and Anguilla (2003).

39. Also at the 6th meeting, the participants adopted a resolution expressing appreciation to the Government and the people of Saint Vincent and the Grenadines (see appendix VI).

Appendix II

Statement by the Honourable Michael Browne, Minister for Foreign Affairs, Commerce and Trade of Saint Vincent and the Grenadines

On behalf of the government and people of Saint Vincent and the Grenadines, I wish to extend a warm welcome to the beautiful island of Canouan, one of the lovely jewels of our multi-island country here in the Windward Islands. It is a special pleasure for me to address this opening ceremony of the 2005 Caribbean Regional Seminar on the Implementation of the Second International Decade for the Eradication of Colonialism.

We are delighted that the Committee on Decolonisation accepted our invitation to host this important forum which we in the Eastern Caribbean regard as a highly significant activity to promote the future development of the remaining small island non-self-governing territories in the Atlantic/Caribbean region and elsewhere.

Caribbean countries take seriously the responsibility of fostering the self-determination and decolonization processes, especially in our neighbouring countries which are part and parcel of our Caribbean civilization, but which have not yet achieved a full measure of self-government. In the Eastern Caribbean, this is especially critical since we regard the small territories — many of whom are our closest neighbours — as integral to the social and economic fabric of the Caribbean. To confirm this commitment, all six of the independent States of the Organisation of Eastern Caribbean States (OECS) are members of the Special Committee.

Caribbean governments have provided important mechanisms for the integration of many of these territories in our institutions. In the Organisation of Eastern Caribbean States (OECS), three Caribbean territories are associate members while one is a full member. In the Caribbean Community (CARICOM), five territories are associate members and one is a full member. Further, two of the territories under review of the Special Committee share our common Eastern Caribbean currency.

Saint Vincent and the Grenadines views the continued and expanded participation of these territories in regional institutions as a natural part of the Caribbean regional integration process. These regional bodies also have a special and complex dimension in this era of rapidly accelerating globalisation, requiring innovative strategies to meet the target of full decolonization by the end of this decade. As was concluded at the 2004 seminar in Papua New Guinea, we must begin to think outside of the basket. Clearly, the dynamic chairman of the Special Committee would have it no other way.

I am confident that these next three days will yield important results which will inform the process as it proceeds through the Special Committee proceedings in June, through to the General Assembly in the Fall, and most importantly, into the implementation phase. Indeed, without implementation, the recommendations will only gather dust on the shelf. We must ensure that this does not continue, as has happened so tragically in the past.

I wish you, the participants, all the best in your important deliberations. I hope you will find time to enjoy the unique attractions of this beautiful Island and also visit some of the neighbouring Islands. Just to the South are the world famous Tobago Cays. It would be a shame if you failed to enrich your life experience by seeing these national treasures first hand.

I now formally declare open the 2005 Caribbean Regional Seminar on the implementation of the Second International Decade for the Eradication of Colonialism.

Appendix III

Statement by Julian Robert Hunte, Permanent Representative of Saint Lucia to the United Nations, Chairman of the Special Committee

On behalf of the member States of the Special Committee, I wish to reiterate my thanks to the Government of Saint Vincent and the Grenadines for its generous offer to host this midterm review of the implementation of the Second International Decade for the Eradication of Colonialism, as we seek to assess progress made by the international community in carrying out its sacred mandate of advancing the self-determination process for the peoples of the remaining non self-governing territories.

Members of the Special Committee join me in expressing our gratitude for the most gracious hospitality extended to us since our arrival in this most picturesque part of the beautiful Windward Islands. My own country of Saint Lucia, as a neighbouring Windward Island State, takes special pride in the fact that Saint Vincent and the Grenadines has become the most recent of our small island countries to offer itself as the venue for these proceedings. This region has a special role to play in completing the decolonization process for the remaining territories whose shores are washed by our beloved Caribbean Sea, and whose peoples are integral to the further development of our Caribbean civilization.

It was not so long ago that many of our countries were in a similar position of political and constitutional deficiency. We faced some of the same uncertainties regarding “the way forward” that are experienced today in many of the remaining territories. It is hoped that those of us who achieved a full measure of self-government in year’s past, through independence, free association or integration, can provide useful insights for those who will follow.

The year 2005 is a significant historical benchmark in the decolonization process, as two important activities converge to shed light on how far we have come in advancing the self-determination process, and how much remains to be done.

The first activity to which I refer is the five-year review of the Millennium Declaration which, among its important pronouncements, is the re-dedication of the international community to support efforts towards the right to self-determination of peoples. The second event is the midterm review of the Second International Decade for the Eradication of Colonialism which is designed to assess the state-of-play in decolonization. This seminar convenes at the convergence of these two events, and a “Canouan Consensus” emerging from our dialogue should offer important insights for implementation of the road map on self-determination.

Preceding the Millennium Declaration, and the first — and now second — Plan of Action for the Second International Decade for the Eradication of Colonialism, has been a long legislative authority for the realization of decolonization. We recall the series of resolutions adopted by the United Nations General Assembly, since its creation, through to the present day. We cite similar resolutions approved by the United Nations Economic and Social Council. We note the significant mandates contained in various human rights conventions such as:

- The International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights;

- The International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights;
- The Convention on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination

Arising from this extensive mandate is the consistent reaffirmation by all United Nations Member States to develop programmes of political education in the territories on the options of political equality, to provide assistance to the territories from United Nations agencies, to conduct visiting missions, to operationalize the human rights dimension of self-determination, and to promote the repatriation of natural resources to the territories, among other directives. We are aware of the annual re-affirmation by the General Assembly for a transfer of powers to the peoples of the territories, consistent with sustained requests for such devolution of power resonating in many of these territories.

We are also aware of the many forward-thinking recommendations advanced before the Special Committee by the peoples of the territories themselves, including the enhancement of the role of such United Nations bodies as the Electoral Unit, the Committee on Human Rights, the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP), United Nations regional commissions, and the United Nations specialized agencies in providing support to the territories in their process of political and socio-economic advancement.

We are further mindful of the measures called for in the plans of action of the international decades, especially the essential research and analysis on the situation on the ground in the individual territories that is critical to bridging the information deficit on decolonization.

These commitments continue to serve as the extensive and fundamental legislative authority for the way forward. The fact remains, however, that this issue is very much unresolved precisely because the critical element of implementation of the decolonization mandate has been woefully insufficient. It is only through implementation that we can bring to fruition this unfinished agenda of the United Nations by the end of this second decade.

In my opening address to the 2005 session of the Special Committee last February, I pointed out that we are going to have to undertake innovative measures to bridge the information gap on the situation in the territories, to urge the wider UN system to fulfil its mandate on assistance to the territories, and to enact a sustainable approach to the attainment of the full measure of self-government.

Indeed, these issues have been with us for much too long, and it must be emphasized that the responsibility of member States and the United Nations machinery does not end with the adoption of resolutions on decolonization. The second half of this decade must be concentrated on implementation. Otherwise, we will continue in a never-ending spiral of in-action, to return, year after year, to begin again. It is not my intention — nor, I am sure, the intention of my colleagues on the Special Committee — to be party to a process of inaction, with the adoption of resolutions as our only goal.

It is our intention, however, to accelerate our efforts, to “think outside the box,” by expanding our engagement with the wider United Nations system, and other relevant bodies.

This is why I am especially heartened that we have with us at this seminar Mrs. Paula Mohammed of the UNDP Office in Barbados who oversees the governance programme for the Eastern Caribbean. The role of UNDP in providing support for the constitutional reform process in Anguilla several years ago was an important step in advancing the critical role that UNDP can play in modernizing the governance models in the remaining territories. The present assistance provided by UNDP to the United Nations Special Mission to Bermuda is another indication of that role, and I take this opportunity to express our appreciation to Mr. Tom Gittens, UNDP's programme manager for the Atlantic/Caribbean, for his encouragement and commitment to the advancement of the territories under his purview. On the Pacific side, discussions on UNDP assistance to the New Zealand-administered territory of Tokelau, as it proceeds towards free association, is another promising development.

Just as decolonization is essentially a function of governance, it is, undeniably, also a function of democracy. I am therefore especially heartened by the presence of Ms. Merlene Glynn, the representative of the Organization of American States based here in Saint Vincent and the Grenadines. The OAS has had an historical role in monitoring the decolonization process, within the framework of its earlier agenda item on "Non-Autonomous Territories in the American Hemisphere." Whilst this is no longer an active OAS agenda item, the self-determination of the territories in the Americas remains very much a hemispheric issue, and can be viewed within the scope of the OAS Democracy Charter. Indeed, colonialism as a contemporary practice is inconsistent with the principle of democracy, and the OAS can contribute significantly to the decolonization process by considering this dichotomy within its activities related to the Democracy Charter.

As we continue to move ahead, we are pleased to see the sustained interest among those who have historically supported these efforts. In this connection, I am delighted to acknowledge the presence of Ms. Susan Gordon, the Director of the Multilateral Relations Division of the Republic of Trinidad and Tobago Ministry of Foreign Affairs, who only a few short years ago represented her country on the Special Committee at United Nations Headquarters. Indeed, my colleague Ambassador Phillip Sealy, the Permanent Representative of Trinidad and Tobago to the United Nations, was a member of the Special Committee visiting missions to several Caribbean territories in the earlier stages of his career.

It is our goal here in Canouan to ascertain at this midpoint of the second decade what steps we need to put in place to advance the decolonization process. The work of the United Nations in this area is enhanced each year through the convening of these regional seminars which bring together, for an important exchange of views and information, the various stakeholders in the advancement of democratic governance.

I am confident that this regional seminar will serve to heighten the awareness of Member States on the complexities of the situation in the individual territories.

I am optimistic that we will also be able to enhance the knowledge base of the representatives of the territories here with us on the statutory role of the wider United Nations system in facilitating the attainment of absolute political equality.

I am hopeful that we will be able to elaborate on the importance of the minimum standards of absolute political equality set forth in the legitimate political status options of integration, free association, or independence.

Now more than ever, I am of the view that the principles of full and absolute political equality must continue as the guiding standard in addressing the self-determination process of the small island territories, if we are to avoid the spectre of “colonies in perpetuity” where the unilateral authority of the administering powers remains the determining factor in the decision-making process.

I anticipate serious discussion on these issues here in Canouan this week, and I look forward to our dialogue as we seek to further refine our approach to solving the decolonization dilemma held over from the twentieth century.

Message from the Secretary-General

It gives me pleasure to send my greetings to all the participants in this Caribbean Regional Seminar on Decolonization, which takes place during the week of solidarity with the peoples of the Non-Self-Governing Territories. The people and Government of Saint Vincent and the Grenadines merit our gratitude for hosting this event and for their ongoing support of the United Nations.

This gathering of representatives of the Territories, the administering Powers, and civil society provides a valuable opportunity to take stock of the progress that has been made in decolonization, and more importantly to formulate strategies for achieving the objective of eradicating colonialism before the end of this decade. I urge you to have an open, frank and constructive exchange of views.

The successes of the United Nations in decolonization should inspire and encourage us in our efforts to ensure that the people of the remaining Non-Self-Governing Territories can exercise their right to self-determination, in accordance with the 1960 Declaration regarding colonial countries and peoples. Toward that end, it is essential that they understand the options regarding their political status and their right to choose their future freely. It is also important that they are aware of the United Nations activities and programmes of assistance that are available to them.

As was seen in the case of Tokelau, cooperation on the part of all concerned, especially the administering Powers, is vital. The Secretariat will continue to support your efforts, and stands ready to help develop decolonization plans on a case-by-case basis with the participation of the representatives of the people of the Territories.

I commend the Special Committee for its hard work, and offer all the participants in this seminar my best wishes for success.

Statement by the Rapporteur of the Special Committee

First of all, this Seminar is about carrying out a review and appraisal of the implementation of the objectives of the Second International Decade for the Eradication of Colonialism. The Plan of Action adopted by the General Assembly is very clear about what the ultimate goal of the Decade is: the full implementation of the 1960 Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples, what we call for short, the Declaration on Decolonization, which is contained in resolution 1514 (XV).

The Plan of Action is specific as to the measures that should be taken at various levels, be it at the international level, by Member States, by the United Nations — including the Special Committee and the Secretary-General — by the administering Powers, by the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system and by non-governmental organizations.

That is why, we have formulated our agenda to reflect the issues highlighted in the Plan of Action. In convening this Seminar at the mid-point of the Decade, the Special Committee wished to benefit from the constructive analysis and critique by the participants at this event, in taking stock of what has been achieved thus far and specially, of what remains to be done. We look forward to your contribution in this important task.

I will refer to only a few points in the Plan of Action.

In Section II of the Plan of Action, the Assembly states that the international community, composed of member States, the United Nations system and governmental and non-governmental organizations should join to assist the Territories.

In this respect, I should like to point out that there are many instances of assistance to Territories from individual Member States as well as from the United Nations system. However, it is also increasingly apparent that whereas several Territories have benefited from such assistance, there are many other Territories have had scant or no information as to what assistance is available to them. These Seminars are one way in which the Special Committee disseminates information on decolonization and on the activities of the United Nations in favour of the Non-Self-Governing Territories. The presence of representatives of the United Nations Development Programme, the Economic Commissions and specialized agencies at these meetings is particularly helpful and we wish to draw the attention to participants from the Territories that attendance to the Seminars of the Special Committee provides an opportunity for them to have direct access to these representatives. We invite participants to make suggestions as to how the dissemination of information on assistance available could be enhanced.

In this respect, I should also like to point out that some Territories have become associate members of United Nations Economic Regional Commissions and as such, they participate in the work of these Commissions and in activities of the United Nations — such as international conferences and special sessions of the General Assembly — subject to the relevant rules of procedure and decisions. The advantages of having access to forums where issues of vital concern are discussed and where policy recommendations are made are self-evident.

The Plan of Action calls for the international community to enable the peoples of the Territories to exercise their right to self-determination and decide on their future political status with complete knowledge and awareness of the full range of political options available to them. It specially calls on the United Nations in cooperation with the administering Powers to ensure that such information is available to the peoples of the Territories. This is a key issue. Resolution 1541 (XV) outlines three options — independence, integration and free association. Resolution 2625 (XXV) mentions “any other political status freely determined by a people”.

In practice, in some cases popular consultations or referendums have given the people of the Territory a choice between integration or independence (for instance, in East Timor, now Timor Leste). In others, the choice has been between free association and independence (for instance Palau and the Marshall Islands). The Special Committee recognizes that each Territory is unique and therefore the decolonization process for the Territories has to be considered on a case-by-case basis.

The Plan of Action also calls on the international community to ensure that all political exercises relating to self-determination are carried out in an atmosphere conducive to the open expression of the interests and aspirations of the peoples of the Territories with the United Nations playing an appropriate role. The Special Committee has reiterated these necessary conditions in its pronouncements and consultations with the administering Powers and representatives of the Territories.

This brings me to another point emphasized by the Plan of Action in Section III: that the United Nations with the administering Powers ensure that all acts of self-determination be preceded by adequate and unbiased campaigns of political education.

The Special Committee has carried these messages to the Non-Self-Governing Territories, most recently to Bermuda, during the special mission that visited the Territory last March.

As you know, the obligations of the administering Powers in promoting political, economic, social, cultural and economic advancement of the inhabitants of the Territories are established by the Charter of the United Nations as is the responsibility of the administering Powers to transmit information on the Territories.

I should like to recall that the Special Committee presented to the administering Powers in 1999 a proposal to hold informal consultations and develop, with the participation of the representatives of the Territories, a programme of work for the decolonization of the Territories on a case by case basis, taking into account the unique characteristics of each Territory. We in the Special Committee intend to follow up on this proposal and invite the administering Powers during the 2005 session of the Special Committee, to resume dialogue in this regard. We are keenly aware of the fact that for the Special Committee to make progress in fulfilling its decolonization mandate, it needs the cooperation of the administering Powers. The cooperation of New Zealand with respect to Tokelau is exemplary as it is encouraging.

In Section IV, the Plan of Action calls on the administering Powers to continue to cooperate or resume cooperation with the Special Committee and actively involve themselves in its work. The Special Committee has shown flexibility in agreeing to informal discussions to advance the cause of decolonization. We hope that in this spirit, we can resume informal consultations with the administering Powers.

The Plan of Action also contains specific requests of the Special Committee. For instance, it states that the Special Committee should continue to seek, as a matter of priority the full cooperation of administering Powers with regard to the dispatch of visiting missions to the Non-Self-Governing Territories. The Committee has sought such cooperation convinced of the usefulness of such activities. I mentioned earlier that a special mission visited Bermuda in March. The Mission's report has not yet been published as a document, but in informal discussions with the members of the Special Mission that visited Bermuda, it becomes evident that a great wealth of information has been gained as a result of the visit, by both the people in the Territory and the members of the Special Committee. Obviously, it would be desirable that the visiting missions or special missions could take place in the framework of a plan for the decolonization of specific Territories agreed to with the administering Power and the representatives of the Territories on a case-by case basis. The political impact of such visits is also important in that it reassures the Non Self Governing Territories of the fact that their situation is monitored and followed at the United Nations and that their cause can count on the support of the international community.

The Committee has been asked to prepare periodic analyses of the progress and extent of the implementation of the Declaration. This matter has been brought up in previous seminars and meetings of the Special Committee. The reports of the Committee, the statements of its Chairman and the recommendations it submits to the General Assembly on individual Territories and on issues such as international assistance and economic interests are parts of such analysis. The Committee relies on information received at Seminars, meetings of the Committee, reports of the Secretary-General and of the President of ECOSOC, submissions by experts and non-governmental organizations and at visiting missions, to monitor the implementation of the Declaration. In this connection, the Seminars continue to be a useful forum to review progress achieved, particularly because of the open and frank nature of the discussions that take place. The Plan of Action foresaw this important role of the Seminars when it requested the Committee to organize them during the Second Decade. Another issue on which we seek information from Seminar participants is in the review of the impact of the economic and social situation on the constitutional and political advancement of the Non-Self-Governing Territories. These issues are a permanent concern of the Committee and we encourage and welcome the input of the representatives of the Territories, Member States, experts and NGOs.

The ideas, suggestions and recommendations of participants will be given full consideration by the Special Committee and will assist in formulating its own recommendations for action with particular emphasis on the next five years of the Decade.

Recalling General Assembly resolution 1514 (XV) of 14 December 1960, containing the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples, and all resolutions and decisions of the United Nations relating to Non-Self-Governing Territories, in particular General Assembly resolution 59/133 of 10 December 2004,

Noting with appreciation the continuing exemplary cooperation of New Zealand as the administering Power with regard to the work of the Special Committee relating to Tokelau and its readiness to permit access by United Nations visiting missions to the Territory,

Noting also with appreciation the collaborative contribution to the development of Tokelau by New Zealand and the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system, in particular the United Nations Development Programme,

Recalling the inauguration in 1999 of a national legislative body, the General Fono, based on village elections by universal adult suffrage and the assumption by that body in June 2003 of full responsibility for the Tokelau budget,

Recalling that New Zealand and Tokelau signed in November 2003 a document entitled “Joint statement of the principles of partnership”, which sets out in writing, for the first time, the rights and obligations of the two partner countries,

8. Welcomes the establishment of the Tokelau International Trust Fund to support the future development needs of Tokelau and the facilitation of this process through a donor round table to be convened by the United Nations Development Programme following an act of self-determination by Tokelau, and calls upon Member States and international and regional agencies to announce contributions to the Fund and thereby lend practical support to assist this emerging country in overcoming the problems of smallness, isolation and lack of resources;

the freely expressed wishes of the people of Tokelau with regard to their future status;

10. Further welcomes the cooperative attitude of the other States and territories in the region towards Tokelau, its economic and political aspirations and its increasing participation in regional and international affairs;

189. The text of consolidated draft resolution A/AC.109/2005/L.11, adopted by the Special Committee at its 9th meeting, on 20 June 2005, appears below in the form of recommendations of the Special Committee to the General Assembly.

Draft resolution VI*Questions of American Samoa, Anguilla, Bermuda, the British Virgin Islands, the Cayman Islands, Guam, Montserrat, Pitcairn, Saint Helena, the Turks and Caicos Islands and the United States Virgin Islands*A*General

The General Assembly,

Having considered the questions of the Non-Self-Governing Territories of American Samoa, Anguilla, Bermuda, the British Virgin Islands, the Cayman Islands, Guam, Montserrat, Pitcairn, Saint Helena, the Turks and Caicos Islands and the United States Virgin Islands, hereinafter referred to as “the Territories”,

Having examined the relevant chapter of the report of the Special Committee on the Situation with regard to the Implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples,<sup>12</sup>

Recalling all resolutions and decisions of the United Nations relating to those Territories, including, in particular, the resolutions adopted by the General Assembly at its fifty-ninth session on the individual Territories covered by the present resolution,

Recognizing that all available options for self-determination of the Territories are valid as long as they are in accordance with the freely expressed wishes of the peoples concerned and in conformity with the clearly defined principles contained in resolutions 1514 (XV), 1541 (XV) and other resolutions of the Assembly,

Recalling General Assembly resolution 1541 (XV) of 15 December 1960, containing the principles that should guide Member States in determining whether or not an obligation exists to transmit the information called for under Article 73 e of the Charter of the United Nations,

Expressing its concern that more than forty-four years after the adoption of the Declaration there still remain a number of Non-Self-Governing Territories,

Conscious of the importance of continuing effective implementation of the Declaration, taking into account the target set by the United Nations to eradicate colonialism by 2010 and the plan of action for the Second International Decade for the Eradication of Colonialism,<sup>13</sup>

Recognizing that the specific characteristics and the sentiments of the peoples of the Territories require flexible, practical and innovative approaches to the options of self-determination, without any prejudice to territorial size, geographical location, size of population or natural resources,

Taking note of the stated position of the Government of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland on the Non-Self-Governing Territories under its administration,<sup>14</sup>

Taking note also of the stated position of the Government of the United States of America on the Non-Self-Governing Territories under its administration,<sup>15</sup>

Taking note further of the stated positions of the representatives of the Non-Self-Governing Territories before the Special Committee and in its regional seminars,

Noting the constitutional developments in some Non-Self-Governing Territories about which the Special Committee has received information,

Aware of the importance both to the Territories and to the Special Committee of the participation of elected and appointed representatives of the Territories in the work of the Special Committee,

Convinced that the wishes and aspirations of the peoples of the Territories should continue to guide the development of their future political status and that referendums, free and fair elections and other forms of popular consultation play an important role in ascertaining the wishes and aspirations of the people,

Convinced also that any negotiations to determine the status of a Territory must take place with the active involvement and participation of the people of that Territory, under the supervision of the United Nations, on a case-by-case basis, and that the views of the peoples of the Non-Self-Governing Territories in respect of their right to self-determination should be ascertained,

Aware of the importance of the international financial services for the economies of some of the Non-Self-Governing Territories,

Noting the continued cooperation of the Non-Self-Governing Territories at the local and regional levels, including participation in the work of regional organizations,

Mindful that United Nations visiting missions provide an effective means of ascertaining the situation in the Territories, that some Territories have not received a United Nations visiting mission for a long time and that no visiting missions have been sent to some of the Territories, and considering the possibility of sending further visiting missions to the Territories at an appropriate time and in consultation with the administering Powers,

Mindful also that, in order for the Special Committee to enhance its understanding of the political status of the peoples of the Territories and to fulfil its mandate effectively, it is important for it to be apprised by the administering Powers and to receive information from other appropriate sources, including the representatives of the Territories, concerning the wishes and aspirations of the peoples of the Territories,

Recognizing the need for the Special Committee to embark actively on a public awareness campaign aimed at assisting the peoples of the Territories in gaining an understanding of the options of self-determination,

Mindful, in this connection, that the holding of regional seminars in the Caribbean and Pacific regions and at Headquarters and other venues, with the active participation of representatives of the Non-Self-Governing Territories, provides a helpful means for the Special Committee to fulfil its mandate, and that the regional nature of the seminars, which alternate between the Caribbean and the Pacific, is a crucial element in their success, while recognizing the need for reviewing the role of those seminars in the context of a United Nations programme for ascertaining the political status of the Territories,

Mindful also that, by holding a Caribbean regional seminar in Canouan, Saint Vincent and the Grenadines, from 17 to 19 May 2005, the Special Committee was able to hear the views of the representatives of the Territories and Member States as well as organizations and experts in the region, in order to review the political, economic and social conditions in the Territories,

Conscious of the particular vulnerability of the Territories to natural disasters and environmental degradation and, in this connection, bearing in mind the applicability to the territories of the programmes of action of the United Nations Conference on Environment and Development,<sup>16</sup> the World Conference on Natural Disaster Reduction,<sup>17</sup> the Global Conference on the Sustainable Development of Small Island Developing States,<sup>18</sup> the International Conference on Population and Development,<sup>19</sup> the United Nations Conference on Human Settlements (Habitat II),<sup>20</sup> the World Summit on Sustainable Development,<sup>21</sup> the World Conference against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance<sup>22</sup> and other relevant United Nations world conferences and summits,

1. Reaffirms the inalienable right of the peoples of the Territories to self-determination, in conformity with the Charter of the United Nations and with General Assembly resolution 1514 (XV), containing the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples;

2. Also reaffirms that, in the process of decolonization, there is no alternative to the principle of self-determination, which is also a fundamental human right, as recognized under the relevant human rights conventions;

3. Further reaffirms that it is ultimately for the peoples of the Territories themselves to determine freely their future political status in accordance with the relevant provisions of the Charter, the Declaration and the relevant resolutions of the General Assembly, and in that connection reiterates its long-standing call for the administering Powers, in cooperation with the territorial Governments, to promote political education in the Territories in order to foster an awareness among the people of their right to self-determination in conformity with the legitimate political status options, based on the principles clearly defined in General Assembly resolution 1541 (XV);

4. Requests the administering Powers to transmit regularly to the Secretary-General information called for under Article 73 e of the Charter;

11. Invites the administering Powers to participate fully in the work of the Special Committee in order to implement the provisions of Article 73 e of the Charter and the Declaration and in order to advise the Special Committee on the implementation of provisions under Article 73 b of the Charter on efforts to promote self-government in the Territories;

13. Notes that some Non-Self-Governing Territories have expressed concern at the procedure followed by one administering Power, contrary to the wishes of the Territories themselves, namely, of amending or enacting legislation for the Territories through Orders in Council, in order to apply to the Territories the international treaty obligations of the administering Power;

14. Takes note of the constitutional reviews in the Territories administered by the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and led by the territorial Governments designed to address the internal constitutional structure within the present territorial arrangement;
