Overall orientation

13.1 The United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime (UNODC) works with Member States to enhance their efforts to combat the intertwined problems of drug use, trafficking, transnational crime, corruption and terrorism by helping to create and strengthen legislative, judicial and health systems to safeguard some of the most vulnerable persons in society.

13.2 Global criminal activities are transforming the international system by posing an increasingly strategic threat to Governments, civil societies and economies. Global trafficking networks are likewise having a major impact on security and development and on business and finance. Since these threats are transnational, responses to them must also be forged across borders. UNODC aims to provide the community of nations with relevant forums to arrive at common strategies and tools to address these issues.

13.3 The conceptual foundation for these joint responses is the notion of the rule of law, which includes comprehensive legislation, effective international cooperation, security, justice and a fair, accessible, accountable, effective and credible criminal justice system. Seen thus, it is clear that the rule of law is a necessary precondition for long-term and equitable socio-economic and human development, and conversely, equitable development is key to reducing crime as well as the world's supply of drugs. A fair, accessible, accountable, effective and credible criminal justice system acts as a shield against the effects of crime, trafficking, corruption and instability. Development and the rule of law together promote the licit use of resources rather than their criminal abuse: trafficking in human beings, trafficking in illicit forest products, drugs and firearms and the smuggling of migrants.

13.4 The policy directions of the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime are grounded in (a) the international drug control conventions, the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime and the Protocols thereto (United Nations, Treaty Series, vols. 2225, 2237, 2241 and 2326, No. 39574), the United Nations Convention against Corruption (United Nations, Treaty Series, vol. 2349, No. 42146) and the universal legal instruments against terrorism in all its forms and manifestations; (b) the Millennium Declaration (see General Assembly resolution 55/2); (c) key resolutions of legislative organs, in particular General Assembly resolution 46/152, establishing the crime prevention and criminal justice programme, and resolutions 45/179 and 46/185 C on the drug control programme; (d) the twentieth special session of the General Assembly on countering the world drug problem; (e) the Vienna Declaration on Crime and Justice: Meeting the Challenges of the Twenty-first Century, adopted by the Tenth United Nations Congress on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders (General Assembly resolution 55/59, annex), the related plans of action (General Assembly resolution 56/261, annex) and the Salvador Declaration on Comprehensive Strategies for Global Challenges: Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Systems and Their Development in a Changing World, adopted at the Twelfth United Nations Congress on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice, held in Salvador, Brazil, from 12 to 19 April 2010 (General Assembly resolution 65/230, annex); (f) the recommendations resulting from the 2005 World Summit Outcome (General Assembly resolution 60/1); (g) Economic and Social Council resolutions 2007/12 and 2007/19; and (h) the Political Declaration and Plan of Action on International Cooperation towards an Integrated and Balanced Strategy to Counter the World

Drug Problem, as adopted by the Commission on Narcotic Drugs at the high-level segment of its fifty-second session (United Nations publication, Sales No. E.10.XI.8).

13.5 Member States have also expressed their support for the integrated programming approach to programme cycle management through Economic and Social Council resolutions 2009/23, on support for the development and implementation of the regional programmes of UNODC, and 2010/20, on support for the development and implementation of an integrated approach to programme development at UNODC.

13.6 The Office's work flows logically from these mandates and is reflected in its mission, which is "to contribute to the achievement of security and justice for all by making the world safer from drugs, crime and terrorism" (E/CN.7/2007/14-E/CN.15/2007/5).

13.7 In implementing its strategy for the period 2012-2015, the Office has responded to the growing demand for its services by establishing a strongly integrated mode of programme planning and implementation. Essential to this approach is the development of regional programmes, which allow the Office to respond to Member States' priorities in a more sustainable and coherent manner. By building on the normative and technical skills of its staff, the Office has realigned its work to ensure continuity between the normative and operational and technical assistance aspects. This new approach focuses on leveraging the Office's scarce technical resources to provide a greater volume and quality of services in the field. Notably, this approach deepens the engagement with a wide cross-section of stakeholders from Member States, including academic, technical, political and civil society actors. Also, it should be noted that this process of realignment is a dynamic and ongoing one, and as such any imbalances in terms of resources reflect an evolutionary stage in the development of the Office.

13.8 Human rights are at the core of all work of the United Nations system and — together with peace and security and development — represent one of the three, interlinked and mutually reinforcing pillars of the United Nations enshrined in the Charter. UNODC is in the unique position of working across all three pillars in its efforts against crime, drugs and terrorism and in supporting Member States to deliver safe societies founded on the rule of law. Over the last biennium, the Office has worked hard to systematically integrate human rights issues into its programme planning, monitoring and evaluation. There has been a renewed emphasis on promoting the adoption of United Nations standards and norms on crime prevention and criminal justice as well as ensuring maximum positive impact of the Office's work in terms of human rights.

13.9 In order to enhance the Office's effectiveness and accountability, the programme for the biennium 2014-2015 has been reorganized into six thematic subprogrammes and three subprogrammes under which the Office provides cross-cutting services to Member States; the main United Nations policymaking organs in matters of international drug control, crime prevention and criminal justice, which function as governing bodies of the Office (the Commission on Narcotic Drugs and its subsidiary bodies, the Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice, the United Nations Congress on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice, the Economic and Social Council and the General Assembly); and the International Narcotics Control Board.

13.10 Each subprogramme falls within the current three-division organizational structure, which allows for the leveraging of complementarities and synergies between divisions and field operations, as thematic experts of the Office will perform both normative and operational work.

13.11 In pursuing its objectives, the Office will make every effort to integrate a gender perspective, in particular as it relates to drug use, drug dependence, human trafficking and women in the criminal justice system. Furthermore, the Office is updating its technical assistance planning documents to ensure the collection of gender-disaggregated data.
