13. In the concluding session, Mr. Asif Ibrahim (on behalf of EBAC), Hon. Faiszer Musthapa and Dr. Ravi Ratnayake highlighted the outcomes of the Forum and presented overarching recommendations to both the public and private sectors.
14. Three pre-Forum events were organized. The first was a Welcome Reception hosted by the Government of Sri Lanka held on 25 November 2014. The second event was the Eighth Session of the ESCAP Business Advisory Council (EBAC), which was held on 25 November 2014 while various task forces informally met on 24 November 2014. The third was the Fourth Session of the Asia-Pacific Foreign Direct Investment Network for Least Developed and Landlocked Developing Countries on 25 November 2014.
15. During the Forum three side events were held. Poonia (Director, National Institute of Technical Teachers Training and Research) and Mr. Michael Greenslade (Trade Commissioner, Pacific Islands Trade and Invest) signed a memorandum of understanding (MoU) to deliver the Young Business Leader's Programme in Australia, New Zealand and Fiji in March 2015, with the hope of rolling it out through the Pacific subsequently. The Young Business Leader's Programme is designed to provide young business leaders and "entrepreneurs-in-making" with relevant Socially Responsible Business (SRB) education and training through courses, interactive seminars, orientation programmes, online training, workshops and speaker series in order to increase their understanding of SRB and its importance in fostering sustainable business practices.

18. During APBF 2014, an MoU was also signed between the Trade and Industry Association of Singapore represented by Mr. Ken Pan Yancheng and the International Business Council in Sri Lanka represented by Mr. Kosala Wickramanayake to further enhance strategic cooperation in promoting trade, investment and creating a better business environment.

B. Attendance

19. The Forum was attended by approximately 300 people, consisting of 30 per cent from the private sector, 40 per cent from the public sector, 15 per cent from international organizations, 10 per cent from academia or research institutions, 6 per cent from non-governmental organizations and 3 per cent from others. Approximately 77 per cent of the participants, who completed the Forum's evaluation form, were from outside the host country.

II. Conclusions, recommendations and outcomes of the substantive deliberations

A. Special address by Mr. R.C. Bhargava, Chairman of Maruti Suzuki: enhancing regional business sustainability

20. Mr. R.C. Bhargava, Chairman of Maruti Suzuki, highlighted the need to create the essential conditions for investment and growth. In particular, the political, legal and regulatory environment should facilitate investment, and ensure free and fair competition and an adequate return on capital. Infrastructure requirements, formulation of tax laws and the development of skilled labour, among other issues, should be discussed and addressed by government in collaboration with industry on the basis of trust and mutual understanding. Mr. Bhargava also urged businesses to behave with integrity, honesty, modesty and to treat employees as human beings and not merely as a resource for production. He also noted that there remains scope for further regional cooperation to enhance development.

B. Special address by H.E. Mr. Mohamed Nasheed, former President of the Republic of Maldives: connecting business in small island economies to the region

21. H.E. Mr. Mohamed Nasheed, former President of the Republic of Maldives, expressed his delight that sustainability was at the top of the agenda of this year's APBF as it is often left as an after-thought which leads to poor planning. He expressed concerns about the resort model of tourism in the Maldives as it excluded the common people while only benefiting the resort owners, tour operators and government. He demonstrated however that this need not be the case by introducing a guesthouse programme which allowed the benefits of tourism to spread to ordinary people. Mr. Nasheed also raised several key challenges for small island economies namely poor accessibility, waste management and energy production. The solutions he proposed involved developing waterways, encouraging recycling and using renewable energy sources to meet energy needs and address climate change.

C. High level dialogue: investment as a driver of growth

22. The High Level Dialogue was moderated by Hon. G.J.L. Neomal Perera, Deputy Minister of External Affairs, Sri Lanka and consisted of the following Panelists:

- Mr. R.C. Bhargava, Chairman, Maruti Suzuki
- Dr. Supachai Panitchpakdi, former Secretary-General of UNCTAD and former Director-General of WTO
- H.E. Tith Chantha, Vice Minister of Tourism of Cambodia
- Hon. Faiszer Musthapa, Deputy Minister of Investment Promotion of Sri Lanka

23. The High Level Dialogue discussed the following topics:

- The importance of investment in the region
- Investment in tourism
- Creating a favourable investment environment.

24. The main conclusions, recommendations and outcomes of the High Level Dialogue were as follows:

- Investments in infrastructure, education, health and communication are vital in order for countries to compete in the global economy.
- Investment can be promoted and facilitated by establishing a favourable and competitive investment environment. For example, a one-stop-service for investments would be beneficial to streamline and fast-track investment applications.
- The development of a competitive manufacturing sector remains crucial to ensure equitable economic development.
- Growth with carbon should not be considered inevitable. More investment in renewable technologies is crucial for attaining the goals of sustainable development.
- Recent economic crises as a result of exposure to vulnerabilities in the global economy have prompted countries to move away from the export-led development model. However, exports would continue to be important for most countries that could not rely on only domestic demand and, hence, export-oriented investment would also remain important, particularly in the context of growing global value chains.
- There is a need to balance high-end and low-end tourism by encouraging investment in the tourism sector from different sources.

- Public-private-people-partnerships (4Ps) are required to ensure that the benefits of development are shared by all.
- Countries should not give too much away in terms of concessions and incentives to attract investment. A “race to the bottom” might yield limited short-term results but it would hurt all host countries in the long term. Instead countries should try to create an environment where investments can be made and implemented in the most efficient and competitive manner.

D. Plenary session 1: connecting the region through trade and investment

25. A special presentation was made by Mr. Umberto de Pretto, Secretary-General of the International Road Transport Union (IRU). Mr. de Pretto observed that road transport was a vital tool that enables trade in the region. The main problem at the moment was not infrastructure but lack of efficient border crossings. This significantly increased costs with time lost, unofficial charges paid and the environmental cost of waiting. In this regard, he observed that the Convention on International Transport of Goods Under Cover of TIR Carnets (TIR Convention) addressed these problems by allowing goods to transit through countries securely but without the requirement of being checked at each border.

26. A panel discussion was held moderated by Mr. Mahbubur Rahman, President, International Chamber of Commerce Bangladesh (ICCB) and the following Panelists:

- Mr. Simon Bell, Board Director, European Chamber of Commerce of Sri Lanka (ECCSL)
- Mr. Chandrakant Salunkhe, Founder and President, SME Chamber of India
- Dr. Saman Kelegama, Executive Director, Institute of Policy Studies of Sri Lanka
- Mr. Tariq M. Rangoonwala, Chairperson, Rangoonwala Group of Companies.

27. The panel discussed the following topics:

- What does AEC 2015 mean for the region? What are the key opportunities and challenges for business?
- How can stronger economic linkages between SAARC and ASEAN be forged?
- How does the emergence of regional supply chains impact on the development of the region?
- What are the changing trade and investment patterns and their implications for the region?

28. The main conclusions, recommendations and outcomes of the panel were as follows:

- Enhanced levels of intraregional trade that is complementary to North-South low-cost manufacturing trade are required to help countries reach mid- to high-income status.

- Enhanced cooperation between SAARC and ASEAN could be facilitated by BIMST-EC, particularly in road transport connectivity. The chambers of commerce from the two subregions could also increase their level of interaction. Joint ventures and other investments from ASEAN countries into SAARC countries serve as a building block for further integration.
- ASEAN could serve as an entry point for SAARC to enter global value chains.
- Mr. Tariq Rangoonwala recommended to ESCAP that the TIR agreement be implemented in the region as it offers a comprehensive contribution to regional integration. He also sought from the United Nations a common definition of SMEs.
- Sri Lanka is recognized as a hub of knowledge services such as accounting. It competes on the basis of its highly skilled talent pool and not simply on cost. Similarly other countries in the region need to develop their competitive advantage in delivering higher quality products and services rather than just bulk shipments.
- The moderator concluded that as hopes of multilateral integration through the WTO Doha process have faded there is more need for consensus at the regional level to address development challenges.

E. Special address by Dr. Supachai Panitchpakdi, former Secretary-General of UNCTAD and former Director-General of WTO: reshaping public-private partnerships for enhanced regional connectivity

29. Dr. Supachai Panitchpakdi, former Secretary-General of UNCTAD and former Director-General of WTO, delivered a special address on the importance of public-private partnerships to promote regional connectivity. He emphasized the importance of the private sector for economic development and called for reforms that removed unnecessary regulations. He argued that the State must not only develop adequate transportation but also telecommunications, IT, energy and infrastructure more broadly. On account of the large amount of financing required for these projects the State should pull back and invite participation from the private sector to raise the $40-50 billion required in the region. He emphasized that the key challenge of our time is to address environmental, social and governance (ESG) issues. On environmental issues, public-private partnerships are needed to set standards that can be used to generate environmental report cards. The importance of regional integration cannot be understated. Simply reducing tariffs is not sufficient. There needs to be reductions in non-tariff measures as well. The private sector can collectively push for a much bigger role in making this the Asian Century.

F. Plenary session 2: how can business drive sustainable development?

30. A special presentation was made by Mr. Thapana Sirivadanabhakdi, President and CEO of Thai Beverage Public Co, Ltd. He observed that the key issue for governments was to balance growth and stability, growth and safety nets, and advances in industry and environmental consciousness. He also observed that companies could have a much larger impact on social issues than government and so should lead the way. Finally, he encouraged forums such as EBAC and APBF not just to exchange views but to deliver tangible results that promote sustainable development and a caring and sharing society.

31. A panel discussion was held moderated by Mr. Carson Wen, Partner, Jones Day and EBAC member with the following panelists:

- Dr. Bindu N. Lohani, Vice-President for Knowledge Management and Sustainable
- Development of Asian Development Bank
- Mr. Asif Ibrahim, Vice Chairman, Newage Group of Industries
- Mr. Suteash Balasubramaniam, Network Representative and Director, Global Compact Network Sri Lanka
- Ms. Cristina Tébar Less, Chief of Responsible Business Conduct Unit, OECD Investment Division

32. The panel discussed the following topics:

- What role does the private sector have in achieving the sustainable development goals?
- What is the role of green businesses and how can this be fostered?
- What are the environmental, social and corporate governance (ESG) risks facing businesses operating in the region and what strategic approaches can be taken to overcome these risks?
- What needs to be done to facilitate the inclusion and development of women and youth in business and entrepreneurship?
- What is the role and potential of business in disaster risk management in Asia-Pacific?

33. The main conclusions, recommendations and outcomes of the panel were as follows:

- More private investment is needed to reduce the sustainable development funding gap of over $2.5 trillion in developing countries.
- Protecting the environment should be the top priority for businesses, not just making profit. This would require changing mindsets towards a more inclusive, environmentally sustainable world.
- Responsible business conduct involves maximizing the positive impacts and minimizing the negative impacts of business on society and the environment. This is necessary to ensure that firms maintain their social license to operate while ensuring the long-term sustainability of their core business.
- The top environmental, social and corporate governance (ESG) risk factors include climate change, access to fresh water resources, food security, soil degradation and energy. All of these problems are being exacerbated by population growth.
- To facilitate inclusion of women in business there should be more flexibility in allowing work from home arrangements. Better childcare should be developed to allow women to retain jobs after childbirth.

G. Plenary session 3: business and investment opportunities in Sri Lanka as a regional hub

34. A panel discussion was held moderated by Ms. Robyn Meredith, Managing Director, ReOrient Group with the following panelists:

- Mr. Kazuhiko Obama, Resident Representative, JETRO Colombo
- Dr. Priyath B Wickrama, Chairman, Sri Lanka Ports Authority
- Mr. Prasanna J. Wickramasuriya, Chairman of Airport and Aviation Services Ltd.

35. The panel discussed the following topics:

- What are the opportunities and challenges for sustainable business and investment in Sri Lanka?
- What are the key strategies for attracting regional and international investment in Sri Lanka?
- How can Sri Lanka serve as a business and logistic link/hub in the subregion?
- How can businesses in Sri Lanka exploit bilateral and regional free trade agreements?

36. The main conclusions, recommendations and outcomes of the panel were as follows:

- Sri Lanka can act as a gateway to India given its relatively better investment environment, the existence of a free trade agreement between India and Sri Lanka allowing easier access to the Indian market and the existence of a highly proficient IT and English language skilled workforce. However, this transshipment model is highly dependent on India's infrastructure remaining weak. Transshipment must lead to value addition for this model to be sustainable.
- Sri Lanka can act as a gateway to the region given its geographic location allowing access to not only India but also Pakistan and Bangladesh to the North; ASEAN, China and Japan to the East; and the Middle East, Africa and Europe to the West. It could serve as a supply base for consumer goods in these new markets and is well poised to become a shipping and logistics base for global businesses.
- Sri Lanka can act as a market for wealthy consumers and tourists. The post-war economic boost has brought a dramatic change in people's lifestyles and increase in the size of the affluent class. High-end consumer goods that were previously only exported are now also sold domestically. The tourism industry is growing rapidly with the government expecting to attract 2.5 million tourists by 2016.
- There also exist several challenges that require attention. The most severe ones identified by business include power costs, payroll costs, local government policy uncertainty and currency fluctuations.
- Concerns were raised that the practice of bribery is impeding foreign business in Sri Lanka. The government representatives explained that measures have been put in place since 2012 to simplify procedures such as introducing a one-stop-service for investors and simplifying the tax code to help alleviate these issues.

H. Special Sustainable Business Network (SBN) Presentation: launch of sustainable banking and finance handbook for Asia-Pacific

37. Mr. George Yuen, Chair of the SBN Task force on Responsible Banking and Finance and Mr. Raghu Narain of the Task Force, launched the publication of the Task Force on “The 3C’s of Responsible Banking in Asia and the Pacific: Corporate Governance, Corporate Social Responsibility and Corporate Sustainability”. This publication is intended to provide a primer for financial institutions to develop a corporate social responsibility (CSR) agenda. It provides a framework and examples of best practices from around the world. A focus on CSR in terms of people, profit and planet would enable financial institutions to finance innovation, green technologies and other new and innovative SME products.

I. Special SBN presentation: SMEs in the global digital economy

38. Ms. Barbara Meynert, Chair of the SBN Task Force on Digital Economy and Mr. Pedro Eloy of the Task Force demonstrated the beta version of the Myanmar SME Link platform. This business-to-business opportunity platform allows international investors to get more information on SMEs in Myanmar while also allowing SMEs to address their lack of information, capital and connectivity. The website is already in use and is currently incorporating feedback in time for its official launch in March 2015.

J. Plenary session 4: integrating small and medium-sized enterprises in the region’s dynamism

39. A plenary session on Integrating SMEs in the region’s dynamism was moderated by Ms. Robyn Meredith, Managing Director, ReOrient Group with the following speakers:

- Dr. Sailendra Narain, Chair of the MSME Task Force of EBAC
- Mr. Ho Van Tai, Consultant, Vietnam Chamber of Commerce and Industry, Da Nang Branch (VCCI DaNang): Presentation on SMARTEX
- Dr. M.P. Poonia, Director, NITTTR, India: Presentation on SRB Programme- On line Regional Series for Asia and commentators
- Mr. Sunil Wijesinghe, Chairman, National Chamber of Commerce of Sri Lanka and Chairman, NDB Bank
- Capt. Aung Khin Myint, Chairman of Global Multimodal Transport and Services Co. Ltd and Chairman of Myanmar International Freight Forwarders Association

40. The Panel discussed the following topics:

- What are the main difficulties for SMEs’ effective participation in regional and global value chains?
- How can international investors better connect with SMEs?
- What can international investors do to help SMEs be more sustainable?
- How can ICT help SMEs?

41. The main conclusions, recommendations and outcomes of the Panel were as follows:

- The lack of adequate information prevents SMEs from realizing their full business potential. The SMARTEX SME Market Exchange platform addresses this problem by providing market intelligence and allowing companies to showcase their products to international investors and customers.
- The Young Business Leader's Programme, developed jointly by the SBN Task Force on MSME's and the Entrepreneurship Development Institute of India, currently delivers socially responsible business training through courses online.
- Dr. Poonia of the NITTTR and Mr. Michael Greenslade from Pacific Trade and Invest have signed an MoU to deliver the Young Business Leader's Programme to participants in Australia, New Zealand and Fiji in March 2015 with the hope of rolling it out through the Pacific subsequently.
- Lack of competitiveness, low productivity, safety, language and compliance requirements were recognized as some of the main challenges faced by SMEs in joining regional or global value chains.
- While it was recognized that ICT can be hugely beneficial for SMEs there remain additional challenges that must be addressed. The experience of SMEs with the Myanmar SME Link has revealed that the lack of English language skills is an important drawback. Many SMEs, in particular those that are family-owned lack the ability to write proper business profiles and informative company background notes.

K. OECD consultation: improving the investment climate – business views

42. Ms. Cristina Tébar Less, Chief of Responsible Business Conduct Unit, OECD Investment Division and Ms. Tihana Bule, Economist and Policy Analyst, OECD Investment Division introduced the revised OECD Policy Framework for Investment.

43. The main conclusions, recommendations and outcomes of the Consultation were as follows:

- The Policy Framework for Investment has been developed by OECD to assist governments in reforming their investment environment. It assists policymakers on issues such as investment, competition, tax, corporate governance, anti-corruption, infrastructure, public governance and other policy domains. It is currently under review to reflect new global economic fundamentals and to incorporate feedback from the international community.
- Consumers play an important role in ensuring that businesses invest responsibly.
- Social media is a highly effective tool being used to drive change.
- Businesses require the right environment to act sustainably. The key issue is not how profits are spent but how profits are made. A sharper focus on core activities is essential.

L. Interactive debate: partnerships towards a sustainable Asian century

44. Mr. Yasuo Tanabe, Vice President and Executive Officer, Government and External Relations, Hitachi Ltd. delivered a special address on the topic of this session.

45. A panel discussion was held moderated by Dr. Watcharas Leelawath, Director of Mekong Institute (MI) consisting of the following panelists:

- Mr. Asanga Abeyagoonasekera, Executive Director and Advisor to Minister of External Affairs Lakshman Kadirgamar Institute for International Relations and Strategic Studies
- Dr. Aditi Halder, Director, Global Reporting Initiative Focal Point India, Global Reporting Initiative (GRI)
- Mr. Sunmyung Hwang, Economic Development Cooperation Fund (EDCF) of Korea, Country Director, Sri Lanka Resident Mission
- Ms. Véronique Salze-Lozac'h, Senior Director, Economic Development and Chief Economist, The Asia Foundation

46. The panel discussed the following topics:

- What kind of partnerships do we want for a sustainable Asian Century?
- What is the role of emerging economies in driving sustainable regional growth?
- How can government and business work together in a better way?
- What opportunities and challenges could arise from the establishment of the Asia Infrastructure Investment Bank (AIIB)?

47. The main conclusions, recommendations and outcomes of the panel were as follows:

- The biggest issues facing countries of the region are weak governance, high corruption, rising inequality and the need for better institutions.
- Measurement is key to driving change. The sustainability reporting framework has been released by GRI as a public good. It is critical to engage with stakeholders, host consultations and discussions even on uncomfortable issues.
- The quality of growth, not just quantity, should be the focus of policy.
- The private sector is required to participate in developing infrastructure as the government alone is often not up to the task. This could take place through public-private-partnerships.
- The concept “partnership” is used often but the exact meaning of it is not always clear as it could mean different things to different people. Public-private partnerships sometimes lack a clear and common understanding of the respective roles of government and private sector in development.
- The AIIB is a welcome addition to development finance, given the need in the region for urgent infrastructure development. It would complement the Asian Development Bank, not replace it.

M. Side event on economic outlook and key policy challenges in emerging Asia

48. A special presentation on the topic of the session was made by Dr. Kensuke Tanaka, Head of Asia Desk, OECD Development Centre. According to Dr. Tanaka medium-term growth prospects look favourable in Emerging Asia, in particular ASEAN, though both external and domestic risks remain. Overall, national development plans in the region identified priorities fairly well, but results in achieving targets are mixed. There was room for further efforts. He also observed that recent public sector reforms in Emerging Asia have been most successful when they are adapted to existing capacities, paced appropriately and have ongoing political support. He also noted that the informal sector poses a barrier to growth that requires comprehensive policy solutions raising the benefits of the formal sector and lowering its costs.

49. A panel discussion on the topic was held moderated by Dr. Masato Abe, Economic Affairs Officer, ESCAP, consisting of the following discussants:

- Dr. Watcharas Leelawath, Director, Mekong Institute
- Prof. Shunli Yao, Associate Professor of Economics and Director, Institute for Applied International Trade
- Dr. Mizanur Rahman, Director of Accounting for Capital Market Development (ACMD), University of Dhaka

50. The main conclusions, recommendations and outcomes of the panel were as follows:

- Dr. Leelawath presented several reasons why Thailand was still stuck in the middle income trap and how the country could get out of it. Shortages in unskilled labour in the manufacturing and construction industries could be addressed through more liberal migration policies. The loss of GSP preferences on graduating to middle income status requires the expansion of free trade agreements. Education campaigns are needed to inform firms of the advantages of existing free trade agreements.
- Professor Yao explained that to rebalance the economy in China, some want slow growth while others are pushing for high growth targets. A slow growth rate could be good for the region as it facilitates the movement of low skilled manufacturing to other countries. India could be a destination for Chinese FDI which could help India integrate deeper into global value chains, promote the growth of labour-intensive manufacturing and reduce poverty.
- Dr. Rahman pointed out that a skills deficit continues to exist in many countries which is not being adequately addressed by governments. As this is largely due to institutional weaknesses it is necessary to identify those weaknesses and how they can be addressed.
- Dr. Abe agreed that there was a need to improve the institutional environment particularly in trade facilitation and FDI promotion. He called for more data to complement the OECD study and hoped it could capture the dynamic economic relationship between China, ASEAN and India.
