The participants in the Meeting considered the question of extending the validity of the Treaty of Friendship, Co-operation and Mutual Assistance concluded in Warsaw on 14 May 1955, and signed a Protocol on the extension of the validity of the Treaty for the next 20 years, including a possibility of further extension for another 10 years. They also exchanged views on current problems of European and world politics.

The Meeting emphasized the major importance of the Warsaw Treaty, which for the last 30 years has unfailingly promoted the development and consolidation of all-round co-operation among the States Parties, the safeguarding of their sovereignty, security and inviolability of their frontiers, and the joint elaboration and implementation of the peaceful course of their foreign policies, and which has played an outstanding role in the preservation and consolidation of peace in Europe and throughout the world.

The States represented at the Meeting declared themselves in favour of developing comprehensive, equitable and mutually advantageous international co-operation. They have never been advocates of the division of Europe and the world into opposing military blocs. Now too they are in favour of the simultaneous dissolution of their alliance and the North Atlantic bloc and, as a first step, the dissolution of their respective military organizations.

However, as long as the NATO military bloc remains in existence, and there is still a threat to European and world peace, the socialist States will strengthen their defensive alliance, at the same time stepping up efforts towards disarmament and peace, as well as the elimination of military blocs. Their unanimous decision to extend the validity of the Warsaw Treaty has been dictated by the need to ensure unfailing security for the allied States and their close co-operation in international matters. In view of the severity of the threat of war, the States Parties to the Warsaw Treaty will continue to adopt the necessary measures to maintain their collective defensive capability at an appropriate level. The States Parties to the Warsaw Treaty reaffirm that they do not seek military superiority, but will not allow military superiority over them. They are in favour of ensuring a balance of forces at the lowest possible level.

Meeting on the eve of the fortieth anniversary of the end of the Second World War - the most destructive and bloody war in mankind's history - the participants in the Meeting emphasized the great significance of the victory of the freedom-loving nations over fascism. High was the price of that victory. The Soviet people, who made a decisive contribution to the defeat of fascism, and the peoples of so many other countries lost tens of millions of lives for its attainment. In memory of the fallen, and as a duty to present and future generations, the lessons of the war must not be forgotten.

In the present international situation, it is more than ever necessary to unite the efforts of all peoples and States and all peace-loving forces, irrespective of their political persuasion, to stop the world from sliding towards a nuclear catastrophe.

The Communist and workers' Parties, Parliaments and Governments of the States Parties to the Warsaw Treaty will continue to fight to remove the threat of nuclear war from the world, to halt the arms race, in particular the nuclear arms race, on Earth and prevent such a race in outer space, to proceed to disarmament and to restore the process of détente and co-operation in international relations. To this end, the socialist States represented at the Meeting are ready to expand peaceful dialogue with other States, in a spirit of goodwill and confidence, and to initiate wide-ranging international joint actions in the interest of ensuring universal peace and security.

The Meeting was conducted in an atmosphere of friendship and full mutual understanding; it confirmed the unity of views of its participants on key issues of European and world politics.

It was agreed that a meeting of the Political Consultative Committee of the States Parties to the Warsaw Treaty will be convened, as previously planned, in Sofia in the autumn of this year.
