THE FINANCIAL SITUATION OF THE UNITED NATIONS

Proposals to address the problems of today and tomorrow

Report of the Secretary-General

I. INTRODUCTION

1. In the first part of this report (A/46/600), circulated on United Nations Day, I provided a broad outline of the financial situation facing the Organization. In summary, the situation has now deteriorated to the point of crisis. At 31 October 1991, unpaid assessed contributions totalled $988.1 million. Member States must take prompt and decisive action to resolve this perennial, indeed, endemic problem. Such action is essential if the United Nations is to fulfil the new and unprecedented responsibilities which the membership has mandated.

2. The nature of the problem is as well-known as its cause. The failure of Member States to pay their assessed contributions, whether for the regular budget or for peace-keeping operations, in full and on time, has kept the United Nations on the brink of insolvency for a number of years. The problem has now intensified, both quantitatively and qualitatively, as the Organization is required to undertake ever-increasing and complex tasks, particularly in the areas of peace-keeping and conflict resolution.

3. At the very time Member States have expanded the range of activities expected of the Organization, the level of outstanding contributions to the regular budget and to peace-keeping operations financed by assessed contributions has continued to increase dramatically. The failure to provide the resources required to meet these expanded responsibilities has created a dangerous situation. Stop-gap measures that had been employed to maintain the Organization's operations are no longer feasible nor sensible. Failure to act, promptly and decisively, could lead to financial disaster.

4. I am convinced that the elements of a viable and durable solution can be found for both the short term and the longer term. I urge the General Assembly at its current session to consider and adopt the set of proposals which are put forward in the present report.

II. SUMMARY OF PROPOSALS

5. My main proposals, which are elaborated in more detail in section IV of this report, may be summarized as follows.

Proposal No. 1: Adopt a set of measures to deal with the cash flow problems caused by the exceptionally high levels of unpaid contributions and inadequate working capital (reserves).

(a) Charge interest on the amounts of assessed contributions that are not paid on time (paras. 22 to 26);

(b) Suspend the Financial Regulations of the United Nations to permit the retention of budgetary surpluses (paras. 27 to 36);

(c) Increase the Working Capital Fund to a level of $250 million as from 1 January 1992 and endorse the principle that the level of the Fund should be approximately 25 per cent of the annual assessment under the regular budget (paras. 37 to 43);

(d) Establish a temporary Peace-keeping Reserve Fund, at a level of $50 million, as from 1 January 1992, to meet initial expenses of peace-keeping operations pending receipt of assessed contributions (paras. 44 to 47);

(e) Authorize the Secretary-General to borrow commercially, should the other sources of cash be inadequate (paras. 48 to 52).

Proposal No. 2: Establish a Humanitarian Revolving Fund, to be used in emergency humanitarian situations, pending receipt of pledged contributions from donor Governments and others; the Fund should be established at a level of $50 million, by a one-time assessment on Member States (paras. 53 to 56).

Proposal No. 3: Establish a United Nations Peace Endowment Fund, with an initial target level of $1 billion. The Fund would be created by a combination of assessed and voluntary contributions, with the latter to be sought from Governments, the private sector as well as individuals. Once the Fund reaches its target level, the proceeds from the investment of its principal would be used to finance the initial costs of authorized peace-keeping operations, other conflict resolution measures and related activities (paras. 57 to 63).

III. THE PRESENT SITUATION

A. Payment of assessed contributions to the regular budget

6. At the end of 1990 unpaid assessed contributions to the regular budget totalled $403 million. On 1 January 1991 additional assessments of $902.7 million became payable. Despite frequent appeals and reminders, as of 30 September 1991, 102 Member States had failed to meet their statutory financial obligations to the Organization. Thus, the pattern of payment of these assessed contributions has continued to deteriorate, and quite significantly, during 1991. The statistics given below demonstrate the point:

Paid in full:	57 States at 30 September 1991
	60 States at 30 September 1990
	64 States at 30 September 1989
Had outstanding assessments	102 States at 30 September 1991
	99 States at 30 September 1990
	95 States at 30 September 1989
Owed more than current year's assessment	61 States at 30 September 1991
	56 States at 30 September 1990
	50 States at 30 September 1989
Made no payment at all	37 States at 30 September 1991
	32 States at 30 September 1990
	37 States at 30 September 1989

Annex I shows, as at 30 September 1991, the Member States in each of these categories.

7. The percentages of annual regular budget assessed contributions paid as at 30 June and 30 September 1991 are given below, together with the percentages paid as at 30 June, 30 September and 31 December annually since 1984. The table shows that the pattern in 1991 was much worse than that of recent years.

	1984	1985	1986	1987	1988	1989	1990	1991
30 June	42.6	35.5	49.6	52.0	56.5	48.0	47.9	39.7
30 September	47.7	53.6	57.8	56.1	63.3	64.6	64.3	59.5
31 December	81.9	72.1	70.3	63.8	66.0	66.4	65.3	-

8. Annex II to the present report provides detailed information on the status of contributions to the regular budget as at 31 October 1991. As can be seen from that annex, with only two months left in 1991, unpaid contributions to the regular budget totalled $524.6 million, of which $138.4 million was outstanding for 1990 and prior years and $386.2 million relates to 1991. It should be noted that the amount outstanding is the equivalent of more than half of the regular budget assessment for 1991.

B. Payment of assessed contributions to peace-keeping operations

9. My report of 24 October 1991 emphasized that non-payment or delays in payment of assessed contributions for peace-keeping operations have also exacerbated the financial difficulties of the United Nations. The number of peace-keeping operations financed by assessed contributions has grown exponentially in the past four years, and so have the difficulties in obtaining sufficient contributions to keep each operation funded on an adequate and timely basis. This growth in peace-keeping and conflict resolution activities is expected to continue. Consequently, there is an imperative need to find a solution for these financial difficulties.

10. There are currently seven peace-keeping operations financed by assessed contributions: the United Nations Disengagement Observer Force (UNDOF); the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon (UNIFIL); the United Nations Angola Verification Mission (UNAVEM II); the United Nations Observer Group in Central America (ONUCA); the United Nations Iraq-Kuwait Observation Mission (UNIKOM); the United Nations Mission for the Referendum in Western Sahara (MINURSO); and the United Nations Observer Mission in El Salvador (ONUSAL). In addition, there are three recently completed peace-keeping operations for which the accounts are still open and outstanding contributions, amounting to $4.7 million, are still being sought. They are: the United Nations Iran-Iraq Military Observer Group (UNIIMOG); the United Nations Angola Verification Mission (UNAVEM I); and the United Nations Transitional Assistance Group (UNTAG).

11. At 31 October 1991 outstanding contributions to these peace-keeping operations totalled $463.5 million. The relationship of outstanding contributions for the seven current peace-keeping operations to the amounts assessed for each is shown below:

	Cumulative assessments through current mandate	Outstanding contributions as at 31 October 1991	Percentage of contributions unpaid
	(millions of US dollars)
UNDOF	956.8 a/	21.4	2
UNIFIL	1 985.7	287.3	14
UNAVEM	66.8 b/	23.3	35
ONUSA	82.8	8.8	11
UNIKOM	60.3	20.8	34
MINURSO	140.9	88.4	63
ONUSAL	13.2	8.8	67

a/ Includes assessments for the United Nations Emergency Force (UNEF II), 1974 to 1980.

b/ Includes assessments for UNAVEM I, 1989 to 1991.

12. In respect of the peace-keeping operations financed by assessed contributions, it is estimated that as at 31 December 1991 unpaid debts to Member States, which have participated in these peace-keeping operations under agreements with the United Nations that provided for reimbursement for the services rendered, mainly the provision of troops, will amount to some $205 million. Thus, the troop-contributing countries continue to bear the burden of the effect of the shortfall in payments of assessed contributions for peace-keeping operations.

13. I must stress that the description of the financial situation with respect to peace-keeping operations that I have provided in the preceding paragraphs does not include the projected requirements for the United Nations Advance Mission in Cambodia (UNAMIC), estimated at approximately $19 million for the first six months, nor the requirements for the major Cambodian undertaking, as the figures are yet to be worked out.

14. However, I can advise Member States now that as soon as the Security Council approves the report and plan for the United Nations Transitional Authority in Cambodia (UNTAC) in early 1992, an immediate cash advance of $200 million would be necessary to underwrite the large procurement programme that is anticipated. Such an approach would allow for proper forward planning, adequate lead time for deliveries as well as transportation via sea, which would result in considerable economies. Experience has shown that late and uncoordinated procurement can be expensive, both in terms of cost of goods and freight via air.

C. Summary

15. As I indicated at the outset, the level of outstanding contributions both for the regular budget and for assessed peace-keeping operations has continued to increase dramatically, as shown in figure 1 below:

16. As I reported to the General Assembly on 24 October, owing to the extraordinarily high level of outstanding contributions, it was necessary throughout all of 1991 to draw upon the reserves of the Organization (see annex III) to meet current operating requirements. By mid-August of this year, these reserves were completely depleted. Consequently, from mid-August until mid-October, I was obliged to borrow from the few peace-keeping operations which had cash in excess of their immediate requirements in order to meet both regular budget obligations and the cash requirements of other new peace-keeping operations.

17. In response to my urgent appeal to the Foreign Ministers of all Member States in mid-September, a number of Governments made payments against their outstanding contributions to the regular budget and to peace-keeping operations. None the less, both the level of outstanding contributions and the number of Member States which still owe substantial amounts to the Organization remain high, thus combining to keep the financial situation extremely precarious. Annex IV provides a listing, in order of magnitude, of the outstanding contributions from Member States, totalling $988.1 million as at 31 October 1991, for both the regular budget and the peace-keeping operations financed by assessed contributions.

18. The payments received to date for the regular budget are only sufficient to meet budget requirements until the end of November. Owing to the level of outstanding contributions for peace-keeping operations, it continues to be necessary to borrow from certain peace-keeping accounts to cover the daily operational requirements for some of the new peace-keeping operations.

19. Figure 2 below shows the cash available at the end of each month in 1990 and 1991. As may be seen, it is projected that there will be no cash available to meet regular budget expenditures in the final weeks of the year. I may therefore be obliged to make an urgent appeal to those Member States that are in a position to do so to make advance payments in December 1991 against their 1992 assessments.

20. My capacity to resort to such ad hoc arrangements and stop-gap measures has been virtually exhausted. It is a source of profound concern to me that the same membership which deems it appropriate to entrust the United Nations Secretariat with unprecedented new responsibilities has not taken the necessary action to ensure, at the same time, that the minimum financial resources required to carry out those responsibilities are provided on a reliable and predictable basis, in accordance with the provisions of the Charter of the United Nations.

21. The proposals set out in detail below are designed to provide financial stability and to build a significantly stronger financial base for the Organization. The combination of measures to be implemented immediately, with those to be implemented over a longer period, should induce Member States to meet their financial obligations in full and on time and, at the same time, should improve the ability of the Organization to respond effectively to new demands which may be placed upon it.

IV. DETAILED PROPOSALS

Proposal No. 1: Measures to address the present situation

(a) Prompt payment of assessments

22. Over the years, innumerable reports of the Secretary-General have stressed the need for Member States to pay their assessed contributions in full and on time. The General Assembly, in successive resolutions for more than 25 years, has reiterated the same point and has recalled that this is a legal obligation of Member States under the Charter of the United Nations. None the less, Member States still fail to honour their obligations in this regard.

23. A number of organizations in the United Nations system have incentive or penalty schemes designed to encourage Member States to pay their contributions on time. The incentive schemes generally involve a distribution of interest income earned to Member States in a manner designed to reward those which have paid their contributions early, while the penalty schemes involve the imposition of interest charges on late payments. The experience to date demonstrates that the organizations which charge interest on late payments have had the greatest success in collecting contributions promptly.

24. In the circumstances, I am convinced that it would be appropriate and financially sound for the United Nations to institute the practice of charging interest, at commercial rates, to those Member States which have not paid their assessed contributions within 60 days after issuance of a letter of assessment. Interest charges would apply to all assessments, whether for the regular budget, the Working Capital Fund or peace-keeping operations; it would also apply to all outstanding contributions, whether for prior or current periods.

25. Interest due would be calculated quarterly and would be set at the average rate actually earned by the United Nations during that quarter on any cash invested. The interest owed by a Member State would be considered an additional assessed contribution subject to the provisions of Article 19 of the Charter. As such, it would be added to the contributions outstanding in the calculation of whether a Member State should lose its right to vote in the General Assembly.

26. The income derived from the application of such interest charges would be added to any bank interest earned, to constitute an additional source of income for the account to which it relates (regular budget or peace-keeping account). As such, it would serve to reduce the net amount required to be assessed on all Member States in subsequent assessment periods.

(b) Retention of budgetary surpluses

27. Financial regulations 4.3, 4.4 and 5.2 provide for the return of any budgetary surplus (unencumbered balance) to Member States after a financial period. When these financial regulations are applied, the United Nations returns to each Member State its share of the balance of the appropriations not required to discharge obligations in respect of goods, supplies and services rendered in the financial period.

28. As one measure to deal with the Organization's financial problems, the General Assembly suspended the provisions of these financial regulations in respect of the surpluses under the regular budget arising at the end of 1972 and at the end of the 1980-1981, 1982-1983, 1984-1985 and 1986-1987 bienniums. ¹/ These regulations were not suspended for the biennium 1988-1989.

29. The suspension of the provisions of these regulations with respect to the regular budget was designed to increase the cash available to the United Nations, by enabling the Organization to retain, temporarily, any budgetary savings that may have been effected. The intended result of this arrangement is only achieved, however, when assessments are paid in full. With outstanding contributions at their current, unprecedented level, the budgetary savings retained are merely theoretical; they are "paper cash".

30. If all assessments were to be paid in full by the end of 1991, $214.8 million would be realized cumulatively as a result of the suspension of the above-mentioned financial regulations. Annex III provides a detailed explanation of the results of the suspension of the provisions of these financial regulations in respect of the regular budget.

31. It should be noted that since these regulations were not suspended in respect of the regular budget for the biennium 1988-1989, an amount of $26.2 million was returned to Member States by offset against their assessments for 1991; a further $10.7 million is due to be returned in 1993. With outstanding contributions at such high levels, such mandatory return of "paper savings", resulting in correspondingly lower assessments, has exacerbated the Organization's cash flow difficulties in 1991.

32. In parallel actions with respect to peace-keeping operations, the General Assembly, concerned that the Secretary-General was facing growing difficulties in meeting the obligations of UNEF/UNDOF and of UNIFIL, decided in 1978 in respect of UNEF/UNDOF 2/ and in 1979 in the case of UNIFIL, 3/ to suspend temporarily the provisions of financial regulations 4.3, 4.4, 5.2(b) and 5.2(d) in connection with the unencumbered balances and/or surpluses in the special accounts of those peace-keeping operations. The General Assembly also decided that these amounts should be entered in a separately-identified account and be held in suspense pending its further decisions. In subsequent years, the General Assembly took similar action, with the result that a total of $135.8 million has been placed in suspense. Of this amount, $60.4 million relates to UNEF/UNDOF and $75.4 million relates to UNIFIL. Details of the results of the actions taken by the General Assembly is shown in annex III.

33. As I have stated on previous occasions, suspension of the provisions of these financial regulations can be regarded as only a temporary palliative for the financial difficulties of the Organization, since the amounts so realized must be returned to Member States at some point, that is, when the financial situation so permits. If assessed contributions had been paid in full, it is unlikely that the General Assembly would have considered it necessary to suspend these financial regulations.

34. In the context of measures which can be taken immediately to address the ongoing financial problems of the Organization, I recommend that the General Assembly decide to continue to suspend the provisions of financial regulations 4.3, 4.4 and 5.2 until such time as the balance of unpaid assessments has been reduced to manageable proportions.

35. I am fully aware that, as indicated in paragraph 29, such credits would not be backed by cash until outstanding contributions are paid in substantial amounts. At the same time, I consider it indefensible that the Organization should be obliged to return cash which it has not received to Member States, especially to those Member States which have assessed contributions outstanding.

36. Should the General Assembly approve this proposal, I recommend that the matter be reconsidered by the General Assembly at its forty-eighth session. To the extent that the financial situation of the Organization had improved by that time, it might be possible to consider the lifting of the suspension of these financial regulations, as well as the disposition of budgetary surpluses.

(c) Increase in the Working Capital Fund

37. The Working Capital Fund was established in 1946 for the purpose of providing sufficient liquidity to enable the Secretary-General to advance from it such sums as might be necessary to finance budgetary appropriations, pending the receipt of contributions. It was also meant to cover commitments which might be duly authorized under the provisions of the resolutions adopted by the General Assembly to meet unforeseen and extraordinary expenses of the Organization. The establishment of the Working Capital Fund was based on a recommendation of the Preparatory Commission of the United Nations, which stated, inter alia, that "a Working Capital Fund should form an essential feature of the permanent financial arrangements of the Organization in order to ensure means for financing various contingencies". 4/

38. From the beginning of the United Nations, the level of the Working Capital Fund, as well as deliberations on whether increases in that level were required, have been based on the size of the Fund as a percentage of authorized appropriations. Thus, when the Working Capital Fund was increased to $100 million in 1982 from its previous level of $40 million, Member States recognized that the level of the Working Capital Fund had declined from 43.1 per cent of the annual budget in 1963 to 6 per cent of the corresponding figure for 1981.

39. Figure 3 shows the Working Capital Fund as a percentage of budgetary appropriations over the period 1946 to 1991. As may be seen from that graph, for the first 25 years of the Organization's history, the level of the Fund was consistently above 25 per cent of the level of approved expenditures. This position has eroded steadily, so that in 1991 the level of the Fund again stands at 6 per cent of appropriations, or the equivalent of just three weeks of expenditure.

40. Debate on the appropriate level of the Working Capital Fund has also focused on experience related to the receipt of assessed contributions, particularly the discrepancy between the requirement that assessed contributions be paid in full within 30 days and actual experience in collection. In this connection, the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, in its most recent report on this subject (A/46/860), stressed the necessity of a clear understanding and agreement on the reasons for an increase in the Fund. The Advisory Committee cautioned that increases should not be occasioned by, or seen as, a solution to the difficulties of the United Nations.

41. As Secretary-General, I share the view of the Committee that the level of the Working Capital Fund should not be set in relation to any abnormal difficulties that the Organization may be experiencing in the collection of contributions. None the less, it must be pointed out that at the end of January 1991, when assessed contributions for the regular budget were due and payable, only 11 Member States had met their obligations in full. Indeed, as at 31 October 1991, only 64 Member States had paid their regular budget assessments in full. As outlined above, this pattern of payment, or lack of payment, has unfortunately become the norm.

42. Accordingly, I am convinced that an increase in the level of the Working Capital Fund, which I have recommended repeatedly in the last decade, is essential and can no longer be postponed. As presently constituted, the Working Capital Fund is set at less than one month of regular budget requirements; it is even less able to meet the other purposes for which the Fund is intended. I therefore recommend that the level of the Working Capital Fund be raised to $250 million with effect from 1 January 1992. This would place the Fund at approximately 25 per cent of the net annual level of the regular budget, or some three months' requirements.

43. Future adjustments should be made as required to maintain the same relationship between the Working Capital Fund and the regular budget. As was the case in the past when the level of the Working Capital Fund was increased, the additional amount required should be financed by an assessment on all Member States.

(d) Establishment of a Peace-keeping Reserve Fund

44. As outlined in paragraphs 9 to 12 above, non-payment or delays in payment of assessments for peace-keeping operations have exacerbated the financial difficulties of the Organization. With the unprecedented increase in the number of new operations, the receipt of contributions has not kept pace with the cash requirements of each operation. For this reason, I have been obliged to borrow from those few peace-keeping accounts which had cash in excess of their immediate requirements to cover the needs of other peace-keeping operations.

45. In these circumstances, I consider it necessary to propose the establishment of a Peace-keeping Reserve Fund, the purposes of which would parallel, for peace-keeping operations, those of the Working Capital Fund.

Thus, the Peace-keeping Reserve Fund would provide initial financing for peace-keeping operations, pending receipt of assessed contributions. It would also be used, as the Working Capital Fund is used at present, to meet the start-up costs for new peace-keeping operations between the time that the Security Council has approved the launching of a new operation and the General Assembly has approved a budget and appropriations therefor.

46. I recommend that the Peace-keeping Reserve Fund be established, as from 1 January 1992, at a level of $50 million. In my view, this Reserve Fund should be created by the transfer of residual fund balances from UNTAG ($30 million) and UNIMOG ($20 million). In this way, additional assessments on Member States would not be required for this purpose.

47. Once the United Nations Peace Endowment Fund is established and comes into full operation (see paras. 57 to 63 below), the balance of the Peace-keeping Reserve Fund could be transferred to the Peace Endowment Fund.

(e) Authority to borrow commercially

48. As indicated in the first part of this report, the General Assembly, in its resolutions on the Working Capital Fund, has confirmed since 1957 the authority of the Secretary-General to borrow, upon payment of interest, from other available funds in his custody, for purposes which normally relate to the Working Capital Fund.

49. The General Assembly has repeatedly declined, however, to approve my request, and that of my predecessors, that the Secretary-General be authorized to borrow commercially. In this connection, I should like to reiterate that several of the specialized agencies of the United Nations, in particular the International Labour Organisation (ILO), the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations (FAO) and the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) have such authority and have utilized it on a number of occasions, especially in recent years.

50. The objections that have been raised to this method of short-term financing include the possibility that it would result in an additional burden on all Member States, the question of availability of loan sources and security requirements as well as the level of interest rates. At present, interest rates have dropped significantly from previous levels and there is no lack of lending institutions willing to extend their facilities to international organizations. The experience of the specialized agencies mentioned above has confirmed that neither of these issues has posed particular difficulties.

51. If my proposal to charge interest on unpaid assessments is approved (see paras. 22 to 26), I believe that any interest which the United Nations would need to pay on such commercial loans could be matched by the interest charged to those Member States which, by their failure to pay their assessed contributions in full and on time, made such commercial loans necessary. In any event, as proposed, resort to such loans would only be sought when all other forms of internal borrowing had been exhausted.

52. In the circumstances, I reiterate the request which I have made over the past few years that the General Assembly authorize the Secretary-General to borrow commercially for purposes which normally relate to the Working Capital Fund when all other sources of internal borrowing have been exhausted.

Proposal No. 2: Establishment of a Humanitarian Revolving Fund

53. Experience in respect of humanitarian operations conducted by the United Nations, especially in the past few years, has shown the vital importance of the immediate availability of funds to launch such operations. There is no doubt that the ability of the United Nations to respond quickly to emergency situations has been severely hampered by the need to await voluntary contributions from Member States in response to my appeals in such situations.

54. For this reason, as I have indicated in a separate report to the General Assembly at its current session (A/46/568), I believe that it is both necessary and appropriate for the General Assembly to approve the establishment of a Humanitarian Revolving Fund, to be used pending receipt of pledged contributions in emergency, humanitarian and disaster relief situations. The Fund would be replenished as funds are collected in response to appeals.

55. Given the fact that such situations often arise simultaneously in several parts of the world, I consider that an appropriate level for such a fund would be $50 million. The Fund should be financed by a one-time assessment on Member States, on the basis of the scale of assessments used for the regular budget, in recognition of both the collective responsibility of the world community to assist in such situations, as well as the fact that emergencies and disasters do not respect national boundaries or fiscal cycles.

56. I recommend that the Humanitarian Revolving Fund be established as from 1 January 1992.

Proposal No. 3: Establishment of a United Nations Peace
Endowment Fund

57. As indicated at the outset of this document, it is essential that Member States take decisive action not only to address the immediate financial problems facing the Organization, but also to create a sound and stable basis for the future. I recognize that in a fast-changing world, with new challenges confronting the international community almost daily, it is essential to find a financial mechanism that can enable the United Nations to accommodate unanticipated requirements, particularly for the maintenance of peace and security, without at the same time placing extensive and unexpected demands upon the treasuries of Member States.

58. As is well known, the need for peace-keeping operations and similar activities related to peace and security often cannot be foreseen far in advance. Frequently, such activities must be launched at times which fall outside normal budgetary and financial cycles. Meeting the related financial obligations at short notice has tended to create difficulties for all Member States, whatever their stage of economic development.

59. It is in this context that I propose the creation of a United Nations Peace Endowment Fund, with a target level of $1 billion. Once the Endowment Fund has reached that target level, it is envisaged that the income from investments of the Fund could be used to cover the entire costs of smaller peace-keeping operations as well as the first few months of larger ones, depending upon the anticipated requirements. This would address the legitimate desire of Member States for an arrangement to provide predictability in meeting the financial requirements for peace-keeping and related activities.

60. I recommend to Member States that, in order to launch the Peace Endowment Fund, to demonstrate its commitment to the principle of collective responsibility and to encourage outside donors, the General Assembly agree to make available 30 per cent of the target level of the Fund, i.e., $300 million, in 1992, the contributions to be apportioned in accordance with the special scale of assessment applied to peace-keeping operations.

61. The quest for peace is universal; the absence of peace impacts upon Member States and individuals alike. It is therefore logical that Governments, organizations in the public and private sectors as well as individuals, all of whom have a stake in the success of the United Nations in the maintenance of peace and security, be given an opportunity to contribute material support in this regard. It is in this context that voluntary contributions to the Peace Endowment Fund would also be sought from Governments, interested organizations in the public and private sectors as well as individuals all over the world, to enable the target level of $1 billion to be reached at an early date.

62. The Peace Endowment Fund would be invested for growth and yield, and in time, the principal of the Fund should generate sufficient income to cover a substantial portion of the financial requirements for peace-keeping operations and other activities related to peace and security as authorized by the competent authorities. Before the target level has been achieved, all proceeds of the investments in the Endowment Fund would be reinvested. Once the target level is reached and provision made for protection of its capital value, annual proceeds from the Fund in support of peace-keeping operations should lie in the range of $50 million to $60 million at current levels. As the size of the Fund grows, its yield should grow correspondingly, thereby increasing the ability of the Fund to contribute to the financing of United Nations activities.

63. As indicated in paragraph 47, once the Peace Endowment Fund is fully operational, the balance in the Peace-keeping Reserve Fund could be transferred to the Peace Endowment Fund.

V. CONCLUSION

64. In this time of crisis, I trust that Member States will conclude that the proposals which I am making in this report are sound and worthy of support. I recognize that a viable and durable solution to the endemic financial difficulties that have plagued the United Nations will entail additional costs in the short term, especially for those Member States which have not fulfilled their financial obligations to the Organization. At the same time, I am convinced that the comprehensive set of proposals put forward in this report, if accepted, will lead to a significantly stronger Organization, financially well-equipped to meet the challenges which have been and will be placed before it.

65. As we reposition the United Nations for the 1990s and head into the twenty-first century, it is our duty to provide it with the means to meet its ever-expanding responsibilities and a sound financial basis to permit the Organization to fulfil completely the promise and the vision of its Charter.

66. I urge Member States to provide the Organization with the support it requires by adopting the set of proposals put forward in this report.

Notes

ANNEX III

Note on the financial reserves of the United Nations

1. The financial reserves of the United Nations consist of the Working Capital Fund, the Special Account and the amounts realized by the suspension of particular financial regulations which have enabled the Organization to retain budgetary surpluses in certain accounts.

The Working Capital Fund

2. The establishment and purposes of the Working Capital Fund are described in paragraph 33. The level of the Fund has been set at $100 million for the year 1991. During the current year, advances have been authorized to meet unforeseen and extraordinary and other expenses, as provided for in General Assembly resolution 44/204 of 21 December 1989. These advances totalled $9.8 million at 31 October 1991, leaving a balance of $90.2 million in the Fund to finance budgetary appropriations, pending receipt of assessed contributions.

Special Account

3. The United Nations Special Account was established pursuant to General Assembly resolution 2053 A (XX) of 15 December 1965 to record the results of the Secretary-General's appeal to the Governments of "all Member States to make voluntary contributions so that the financial difficulties of the Organization may be solved and the future may be faced with renewed hope and confidence". By General Assembly resolution 3049 A (XXVII) of 19 December 1972, the Secretary-General was requested to establish a special account into which "voluntary contributions may be paid and used for the purpose of clearing up the past financial difficulties of the United Nations and especially for resolving the short-term deficit of the Organization".

4. Twenty-nine Member States a/ responded to this and subsequent appeals with contributions in a total amount of $48.7 million. With interest and other income accumulated over the years, the level of the Special Account stands at $132.9 million at 31 October 1991.

Suspension of financial regulations

5. As a further step in response to the financial difficulties of the Organization, the General Assembly has decided on several occasions to suspend financial regulations 4.3, 4.4, and 5.2(d) in respect of the regular budget. This was done for 1972, and for the bienniums 1980-1981, 1982-1983, 1984-1985 and 1986-1987. The Assembly has also suspended the same regulations, as well as regulation 5.2(b) in respect of UNEF/UNDOF (since 1978) and UNIFIL (since 1979).

6. These regulations provide for budgetary surpluses to be returned to Member States. When the application of these provisions are suspended, balances remaining at the end of the financial periods are retained by the Organization on a temporary basis.

7. [These measures were particularly important in respect of the regular budget in the biennium 1986-1987, when it became necessary to introduce austerity measures to make savings in the budget approved by the General Assembly.] Total amounts that have been retained to date through these suspensions are $214.8 million in the regular budget, $60.4 million for UNEF/UNDOF and $75.4 million for UNIFIL. Details of these amounts, in millions of dollars, are as follows:
