1. Nature of the Fund for the Development of the Indigenous Peoples of Latin America and the Caribbean

The Fund for the Development of the Indigenous Peoples of Latin America and the Caribbean is an international organization governed by public law and was created on 24 July 1992 by the Second Ibero-American Conference of Heads of State and Government, held in Madrid. The Fund was established to support the processes of self-development and the promotion of rights for local communities, indigenous peoples and their organizations in Latin America and the Caribbean. The governing organs and functions of the Fund are based on parity relations between the States and indigenous peoples.

The Agreement Establishing the Fund was deposited with the Secretary-General of the United Nations, on 4 August 1993, with registration number 30177.

In 2006, the Heads of State and Government attending the Sixteenth Ibero-American Conference held in Montevideo, decided to commit to consolidation of the Fund as the only international organization specialized in promoting development with identity and focused on the good living (living well) of indigenous peoples and on the recognition of their individual and collective rights.

The Mission of the Fund is to promote good living (living well) as an alternative and dignified life for the peoples, nationalities and indigenous communities of Latin America and the Caribbean, through the full exercise of human and collective rights and with interculturalism as a form of coexistence, which generates equality of opportunities and overcomes all forms of exclusion and domination, developing capacities for technical and political facilitation of the processes of dialogue between States and the leadership of indigenous peoples.

The vision of the Fund is that indigenous peoples are recognized and respected in the full exercise of their rights, cultures and identities and have robust organizations with administrative, technical, economic, political, social and cultural capacities that have been strengthened through their own processes of sustainable development, and that, in intercultural coexistence, they place their identities in the development and the economic and democratic management of the nation States of Latin America.

3. Operating structure

a. Parity structure of the governing bodies

One of the unique characteristics of the Fund is the parity of its governing bodies, which include representatives of indigenous peoples and the Governments of the member States and which have full capacity to make decisions about the future of the institution and its work.

General Meeting

This is the highest governing body, made up of governmental delegates from 22 member States and 18 representatives of indigenous peoples from the member States of Latin America and the Caribbean. The General Meeting is convened every two years to define policies and institutional strategies, and is convened in a special session when necessary.

Board of Directors

This collegiate body is responsible for governing the Fund and is composed of twelve members: six representatives of the indigenous peoples and six government representatives of the member States. The Board of Directors has a Chair and two Vice-Chairs, one of the latter being the representative of an extra-regional State.

Executive Committee

The Executive Committee is composed of the Chair and the two Vice-Chairs of the Board of Directors, which tasks the former with the consideration, approval and monitoring of the institutional operations provided for in the guidelines and plans approved by the General Meeting and the Board of Directors of the Fund.

b. Consultative bodies

The Fund facilitates the functioning and gathers proposals and views that guide the work of subsidiary bodies, called consultative bodies, which manage consultation processes among indigenous peoples, Governments and international cooperation agencies, in order to define policies and coordinate agendas in an autonomous, bilateral or trilateral manner.

c. Technical Secretariat of the Fund for the Development of the Indigenous Peoples of Latin America and the Caribbean

The Technical Secretariat consists of a highly qualified technical team; it constitutes the operational branch which is responsible for the technical and administrative management of the Fund for the Development of the Indigenous Peoples of Latin America and the Caribbean.

The Technical Secretary, who is appointed by the Board of Directors after a competitive and transparent selection process, is responsible for leading and ensuring the correct functioning of this body.

4. Headquarters agreement

In 1993, the headquarters agreement on immunities, exemptions and privileges of the Fund was signed by the then President of the Board of Directors of the Fund and the Minister for Foreign Affairs and Worship of the Plurinational State of Bolivia, and the city of La Paz (Bolivia) was designated as its headquarters.

5. Functions

- Serve as an intercultural and consultation forum for dialogue to support the processes of self-development of indigenous peoples.
- Provide assistance to States for the formulation of public policies that benefit indigenous peoples.
- Manage, channel and administer financial and technical resources for the implementation of priority projects and programmes that contribute to the self-development of indigenous peoples.
- Respect, promote and encourage the full recognition and exercise of the economic, social, cultural, political and environmental rights of indigenous peoples.

6. Spheres of action

The Fund seeks to contribute to the establishment of parity relations between States and indigenous peoples in order to support the exercise of their rights and interculturality.

To this effect, the Fund works in three areas.

- Dialogue and consultation: for the design, adoption and implementation of public policies to uphold the rights of indigenous peoples.
- Economic development with identity: in order to recognize and activate within the economic system the value of the cultural heritage of indigenous peoples.
- Education for equity: to strengthen the capacities of stakeholders to operate and prosper in an intercultural system and strengthen the capacities of indigenous peoples to have an impact and to exercise their rights.

7. Fund for the Development of the Indigenous Peoples of Latin America and the Caribbean: an observer of the Green Climate Fund and the Andean Community

- By Decision B.08/20 of the Accreditation Council of Observer Organizations of the Green Climate Fund, dated 30 August 2017, the Fund for the Development of the Indigenous Peoples of Latin America and the Caribbean was accredited in this capacity.
- The Fund for the Development of the Indigenous Peoples of Latin America and the Caribbean was granted observer status with the Consultative Council of Indigenous Peoples of the Andean Community on 26 September 2007, according to Decision No. 674.

8. Alignment with the United Nations and the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development

The purposes and principles of the Fund are consistent with the Charter of the United Nations, particularly its article 1.2, which refers to developing “relations of friendship among nations based on respect for the principle of equal rights and self-determination of peoples ...”.

The mission and vision of the Fund maintain the holistic approach of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and its 17 Goals.

Since its creation in July 1992, the Fund for the Development of the Indigenous Peoples of Latin America and the Caribbean has supported regional processes of dialogue and consultation that have led to significant progress in a number of areas, including: the recognition, protection and promotion of the rights of indigenous peoples in the member States; training and professional development of indigenous and non-indigenous leaders and authorities; the allocation of pre-investment or leverage resources for indigenous programmes and projects; and the development of appropriate methodologies for the management of development with identity in the region.

The Fund has implemented eight emblematic programmes with significant regional impact in the following areas: consultation processes, indigenous peoples’ rights, intercultural indigenous peoples’ university, development with identity, indigenous women, communication and information, indigenous peoples in voluntary isolation and at risk of extinction, and indigenous youth.

After 25 years, the Fund is carrying out its work in the context of the adoption and full effect of instruments that support the rights of indigenous peoples, such as the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples (2007); the American Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples (2016); the mandates issued by the first World Conference on Indigenous Peoples; the Sustainable Development Goals; and the need to support regional and national processes so that indigenous peoples can fully exercise and enjoy their rights.

In recent years, significant contributions have been made to the work of the Fund by the Permanent Forum on Indigenous Issues, the Expert Mechanism on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples and the Special Rapporteur on the rights of indigenous peoples.

One of the recommendations made in the report on the sixteenth session of the Permanent Forum on Indigenous Issues (see E/2017/43-E/C.19/2017/11) is that “The Permanent Forum notes the work of the Fund for the Development of Indigenous Peoples of Latin America and the Caribbean (FILAC) as a regional mechanism to provide support to indigenous peoples. The Forum encourages Member States to strengthen the institutional framework of FILAC and to create similar bodies in other regions of the world”.

Finally, the adoption 10 years ago of the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples has given the Fund for the Development of the Indigenous Peoples of Latin America and the Caribbean the necessary impetus to implement programmes focused on the rights recognized in the Declaration.
