Annex III

Proposed areas of concentration for the discussion panel on the theme “Sea level rise and its impacts”

Information contained in the report of the Secretary-General

1. The General Assembly decided, in resolution 74/19, that, in its deliberations on the report of the Secretary-General on oceans and the law of the sea, the United Nations Open-ended Informal Consultative Process on Oceans and the Law of the Sea would focus its discussions at its twenty-first meeting on the theme “Sea level rise and its impacts”. The Division for Ocean Affairs and the Law of the Sea has made available on its website (www.un.org/depts/los/consultative\_process/consultative\_process.htm) advance and unedited reporting material on oceans and the law of the sea relating to this theme, for consideration by the Assembly at its seventy-fifth session.

Discussion panel segments

2. In considering the possible approaches for structuring the discussion panel segments in relation to the theme, it may be recalled that the General Assembly, in its resolution 54/33, consistent with the framework provided by the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea and chapter 17 of Agenda 21, established the Informal Consultative Process to facilitate its annual review, in an effective and constructive manner, of developments in ocean affairs by considering the report of the Secretary-General on oceans and the law of the sea and by suggesting particular issues to be considered by it, with an emphasis on identifying areas where coordination and cooperation at the intergovernmental and inter-agency levels should be enhanced. Furthermore, the Assembly, in its resolution 74/19, recognized the role of the Informal Consultative Process as a unique forum for comprehensive discussions on issues related to oceans and the law of the sea and that the perspective of the three pillars of sustainable development should be further enhanced in the examination of the selected topics. It also recognized the primary role of the Informal Consultative Process in integrating knowledge, the exchange of opinions among multiple stakeholders and coordination among competent agencies, and enhancing awareness of topics, including emerging issues, while promoting the three pillars of sustainable development.

3. In considering the theme, it is proposed that the respective panel segments concentrate their discussions on the following areas:

(a) Sea level rise: understanding the issue, its impacts and related challenges

4. The discussion panel segment could provide an overview of the issue of sea level rise, its impacts on all States, in particular low-lying coastal States and developing States, including least developed countries and small island developing States, as well as other vulnerable coastal communities and megacities, and the challenges it presents. It could also highlight the current state of knowledge on sea level rise and its impacts, including relevant environmental, social and economic impacts, both observed and projected.

5. Recent reports of the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change and the Regular Process for Global Reporting and Assessment of the State of the Marine Environment, including Socioeconomic Aspects, could be considered. Throughout the panel segment, areas where additional information and capacity are needed could be highlighted.

(b) International cooperation and coordination in addressing the impacts and challenges related to sea level rise

6. The discussion panel segment could focus on current activities and initiatives being undertaken at the global, regional, subregional and national levels to advance the understanding of sea level rise and address its impacts, including those noted above, and profile best practices. Opportunities for enhancing cooperation and coordination at all levels could also be explored, including in particular in the context of ocean-related forums and processes, and other relevant processes. Information related to scientific, technical and technological aspects, as well as capacity-building and other sources of support, would be integrated throughout, with special consideration for the needs of developing States, including small island developing States and least developed countries, as well as other vulnerable communities. Efforts to address sea level rise under the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea, which sets out the legal framework within which all activities in the oceans and seas must be carried out, the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change, the Paris Agreement and other relevant instruments could also be considered. The role of the private sector, as well as of local actors and leaders, could also be integrated into the discussions. The contribution of these discussions to the United Nations Decade of Ocean Science for Sustainable Development could be addressed.
