Reaffirming the overarching goal of the Vienna Programme of Action of addressing the special development needs and challenges of landlocked developing countries arising from their landlockedness, remoteness and geographical constraints in a more coherent manner and thus contributing to an enhanced rate of sustainable and inclusive growth, which can contribute to the eradication of poverty in all its forms and dimensions, including extreme poverty,

Recalling its resolutions 71/239 of 21 December 2016, 72/232 of 20 December 2017, 73/243 of 20 December 2018, 74/233 of 19 December 2019, 75/228 of 21 December 2020 and 76/217 of 17 December 2021, poverty in all its forms and dimensions, including extreme poverty, is the greatest global challenge and an indispensable requirement for sustainable development, its commitment to achieving sustainable development in its three dimensions – economic, social and environmental – in a balanced and integrated manner, and to building upon the achievements of the Millennium Development Goals and seeking to address their unfinished business,

Reaffirming also its resolution 69/313 of 27 July 2015 on the Addis Ababa Action Agenda of the Third International Conference on Financing for Development, which is an integral part of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, supports and complements it, helps to contextualize its means of implementation targets with concrete policies and actions, and reaffirms the strong political commitment to address the challenge of financing and creating an enabling environment at all levels for sustainable development in the spirit of global partnership and solidarity,

Reaffirming further the Paris Agreement⁴ and its early entry into force, encouraging all its parties to fully implement the Agreement, and parties to the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change⁵ that have not yet done so to deposit their instruments of ratification, acceptance, approval or accession, where appropriate, as soon as possible,

Recalling the Sendai Declaration and the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015–2030,⁶ while recognizing that landlocked developing countries face some specific disaster risk challenges, and reiterating the commitment to addressing disaster risk reduction and building resilience to disasters within the context of sustainable development and poverty eradication,

Recognizing that the lack of territorial access to the sea, aggravated by remoteness from world markets and high transit costs and risks, continues to pose serious constraints on the overall growth and socioeconomic development of landlocked developing countries,

Acknowledging the importance of promoting collaboration between landlocked developing countries and transit countries on the basis of common interest, and noting that collaboration efforts need to be supported by an enabling international economic environment, taking into account different national realities, capacities and levels of development and respecting national priorities, while remaining consistent with international rules and commitments,

Recognizing the transport infrastructure gap in landlocked developing countries and the need to bring the level of transport infrastructure up to global standards and, in this regard, the crucial importance of strong national and international partnerships to bridging the gap and enhancing existing transport infrastructure facilities,

Acknowledging the need to promote meaningful regional integration to encompass cooperation among countries for the implementation of the Vienna Programme of Action,

Recognizing that it is important for all countries, including landlocked developing countries, to commit to a world in which all women and girls enjoy full gender equality with men and boys and all legal, social and economic barriers to their empowerment and equality have been removed,

Taking note of the declaration of the annual Ministerial Meeting of Landlocked Developing Countries, which was held at United Nations Headquarters on 22 September 2022 on the theme “Accelerating implementation of the Vienna Programme of Action in the aftermath of the COVID-19 pandemic and building momentum towards the Third United Nations Conference on Landlocked Developing Countries”,

Noting with great concern that the number of deaths due to the coronavirus disease (COVID-19) in landlocked developing countries more than tripled between April 2021 and April 2022, to 157,000, and only 26 per cent of the population was fully vaccinated at the end of April 2022, compared with 59 per cent worldwide, the severe negative impact on human health, safety and well-being caused by the COVID-19 pandemic, as well as the severe disruption to societies and economies and the devastating impact on lives and livelihoods, and that the poorest and most vulnerable are the hardest hit by the pandemic,

Concerned by the ongoing disruption in trade logistics that continues to hamper global value chains and by the high cost of global supply chains, recognizing that landlocked developing countries are highly dependent on transit countries to access international markets, are particularly vulnerable to cross-border restrictions in combating the spread of COVID-19 and the social and economic impacts of lockdown measures related to it, the health effects of the pandemic, commodity price shocks and a global recession, recognizing also that the COVID-19 pandemic abruptly halted progress in almost all priority areas of the Vienna Programme of Action and increased the challenge of achieving the Sustainable Development Goals by 2030 as mobility restrictions amplified existing geographical and structural vulnerabilities and that, for landlocked developing countries, the fiscal implications of the pandemic have led to an increased risk of debt distress, with approximately 34.3 per cent of landlocked developing countries now assessed to be at high risk of or already in debt distress, limiting the fiscal and policy space for critical investments in a sustainable and inclusive recovery, and recalling the road map for the accelerated implementation of the Vienna Programme of Action in the remaining five years adopted by the Group of Landlocked Developing Countries on 23 September 2020,

Recognizing that the Vienna Programme of Action, which is integral to the 2030 Agenda, is based on renewed and strengthened partnerships for supporting landlocked developing countries in harnessing benefits from international trade, structurally transforming their economies and achieving more inclusive and sustainable growth,

Taking note of the outcome document of the fifteenth session of the United Nations Conference on Trade And Development, held in Barbados from 3 to 7 October 2022, the Bridgetown Covenant,⁹ the outcome document of the twelfth Ministerial Conference of the World Trade Organization, held in Geneva from 12 to 17 June 2022, the “Bali agenda for resilience” adopted during the seventh session of the Global Platform for Disaster Risk Reduction, held in Bali, Indonesia, from 23 to 28 May 2022, and the “Beijing statement” of the second United Nations Global Sustainable Transport Conference, held in Beijing from 14 to 16 October 2021,

Taking note also of the Joint Inspection Unit review¹⁰ of United Nations system support for landlocked developing countries to implement the Vienna Programme of Action, in which concern was expressed about the vast gaps between the expectations from the work of the Office of the High Representative for the Least Developed Countries, Landlocked Developing Countries and Small Island Developing States to deliver and the existing resources of the subprogramme on landlocked developing countries,

Reaffirming the recognition of the special needs and challenges of landlocked developing countries in the 2030 Agenda and in the Addis Ababa Action Agenda of the Third International Conference on Financing for Development, and affirming further that their effective implementation, together with the implementation of the six priority areas of the Vienna Programme of Action, which builds upon the Almaty Programme of Action: Addressing the Special Needs of Landlocked Developing Countries within a New Global Framework for Transit Transport Cooperation for Landlocked and Transit Developing Countries,¹¹ can drive the social and economic progress of landlocked developing countries and assist in their transformation from landlocked to land-linked countries,

3. Underlines the need to give particular attention to the concerns and specific challenges of landlocked developing countries in all relevant major United Nations conferences and processes;

4. Recognizes that the adverse global economic conditions, including stalled growth, surging inflation, the energy crisis, high sovereign debt levels, volatile commodity prices, rising food prices and dysfunctions in global food security, skyrocketing shipping costs, supply chain and production disruptions, and elevated shipping and trade costs, are constraining landlocked developing countries from recovering from the socioeconomic impacts of the COVID-19 pandemic;

5. Calls upon States to ensure the normal functioning of open markets, global supply chain connectivity and cross-border travel for essential purposes, and to

8. Encourages the landlocked developing countries, transit countries and development partners to actively engage in the dedicated session on transit issues that will be held annually until the next review of the Trade Facilitation Agreement is completed, pursuant to the decision taken at the twelfth Ministerial Conference of the World Trade Organization, held in Geneva from 12 to 17 June 2022, which will contribute to enhancing reforms aimed at facilitating transit for landlocked developing countries;

13. Recognizes that investing in the maintenance and development of hard and soft infrastructure can boost pandemic recovery efforts, stresses that the magnitude of the resources required to invest in infrastructure development and maintenance remains a major challenge and requires the forging of international, regional, subregional and bilateral cooperation on infrastructure projects, the allocation of more resources from national budgets, the effective deployment of international development assistance and multilateral financing in the development and maintenance of infrastructure and the strengthening of the role of the private sector, and recognizes that both public and private investment have key roles to play in infrastructure financing, including through development banks, development finance institutions and tools and mechanisms such as public-private partnerships, blended finance, which combines concessional public finance, non-concessional private finance and expertise from the public and private sector, special purpose vehicles, non-recourse project financing, risk mitigation instruments and pooled funding structures;
