Summary

At its 2021 regular session, held from 17 to 27 May and on 7 June 2021, the Committee on Non-Governmental Organizations had before it 855 applications for consultative status, including 339 applications deferred from earlier sessions. Of the non-governmental organizations submitting those applications, the Committee recommended 432 for consultative status, deferred 386 for further consideration at its resumed session in 2021 and closed without prejudice consideration of 34 applications of non-governmental organizations that had failed to respond to queries over two consecutive sessions of the Committee. The Committee also had before it five requests for reclassification of consultative status; it recommended granting four of those requests and deferred its consideration of one. The Committee took note of seven requests for a change of name. It also had before it 696 quadrennial reports, of which it took note of 604. The Committee heard 27 representatives of non-governmental organizations.

The present report contains two draft decisions on matters calling for action by the Economic and Social Council.

6. The observer for Armenia, took the floor and noted that the application of the organization, Congrès national des Arméniens occidentaux, which is registered in France, had been deferred by the Committee since 2013, owing to continued questioning and apparent procrastination tactics from a single delegation. He acknowledged the right of every Member State to pose questions to NGOs applying for consultative status with the Economic and Social Council and stated that his delegation attached great importance to open and constructive dialogue with civil society organizations, including in the framework of the sessions of the Committee. He noted that the NGO had engaged in the question-and-answer session with the Committee at its previous session in good faith, with the expectation that the Committee would give due consideration to its application after many years. He added that the NGO had provided exhaustive replies describing in detail its aims, priorities and activities and had submitted written responses to the Committee's questions in August 2019. He asserted that the members of the Committee bore a special responsibility to adhere strongly to the values and principles of the United Nations, especially in their engagement with civil society organizations.

7. The representative of Turkey affirmed its strong support for the involvement and participation of NGOs in the work of the United Nations, as a member of the Committee. She stated that her delegation pursued an impartial and constructive approach in the evaluation of NGO applications for consultative status, on the sole basis of the purpose and principles of the Charter of the United Nations and the elements and requirements of Economic and Social Council resolution 1996/31. She maintained that her delegation's approach was in full accord with the Committee's duty and responsibility to exercise diligence in carrying out its mandate. She further noted that the questions posed and information requested by the Committee and on behalf of the Committee assisted in its evaluation of the applications of the respective organizations. She expressed appreciation for the constructive and continued engagement of the organization with the Committee.

Requests for reclassification

15. At its 7th meeting, on 21 May, the Committee considered two new requests for reclassification of consultative status, as contained in document E/C.2/2021/R.3. It recommended the reclassification of the organization African Network of Young Leaders for Peace and Sustainable Development, from special to general consultative status (see chap. I, draft decision I, subpara. (b)), and the organization International Association of University Professors and Lecturers, from the Roster to general status (see chap. I, draft decision I, subpara. (c)).

Requests for a change of name

16. At its 15th meeting, on 27 May, the Committee considered seven new requests for a change of name by organizations in consultative status, as contained in document E/C.2/2021/CRP.38. It decided to take note of the change of name of all seven organizations (see chap. I, draft decision I, subpara. (d)).

III. Quadrennial reports submitted by non-governmental organizations in consultative status with the Council

A. Quadrennial reports submitted by non-governmental organizations in consultative status with the Council that had been deferred at the 2020 regular session<sup>1</sup>

The Committee did not consider any other items on its agenda at that meeting.

IV. Strengthening of the Non-Governmental Organizations Branch; review of the methods of work of the Committee: implementation of Council resolution 1996/31; and general voluntary trust fund in support of the United Nations Non-Governmental Organizations Informal Regional Network

19. At its 1st meeting, on 17 May, the Committee jointly considered the following agenda items: agenda item 5, Strengthening of the Non-Governmental Organizations Branch; agenda item 6, Review of the methods of work of the Committee: implementation of Council resolution 1996/31, including the process of accreditation of representatives of non-governmental organizations, and Council decision 1995/304; and agenda item 8, General voluntary trust fund in support of the United Nations Non-Governmental Organizations Informal Regional Network, and heard an oral report by the Secretariat.

20. The Director of the Office of Intergovernmental Support and Coordination for Sustainable Development of the Department of Economic and Social Affairs stated that upheavals caused by the crisis related to the coronavirus disease (COVID-19) pandemic had made technology essential to the pursuit of United Nations activities and pointed out that sessions of the intergovernmental bodies of the United Nations had largely been converted into virtual mode or into hybrid mode with virtual participation by all actors. She noted that the digital acceleration led by the Economic and Social Council and its subsidiary bodies had led to greater participation of civil society by allowing them to engage in United Nations debates from all around the world, giving strong impetus to the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, and encouraged the United Nations to take advantage of that momentum. She nevertheless expressed concern that, despite the rapid technological advances, many non-governmental actors still lacked access to secure digital technology. She cautioned that the widening digital divide could marginalize the most vulnerable, whose voices were critical at the United Nations.

21. She emphasized that the Committee had an important role to play in facilitating civil society participation in the work of the United Nations, including through their expertise in the implementation of development policies, at both local and global levels. She proposed that the Committee consider including a virtual component in its work, to allow for virtual exchanges during the question-and-answer sessions between the Committee and the NGOs, in order to accommodate the participation of organizations that lacked the means to attend its meetings in New York and to promote inclusion and equity in line with Economic and Social Council guidelines.

22. She informed the Committee of progress made by the Department in the development of an enhanced information and communications technology-based tool to replace the electronic platforms used and managed by the Non-Governmental Organizations Branch, in order to improve its support for Member States and NGOs and to process the large number of applications for consultative status received by the Branch. In that regard, she noted that the Branch had received a record number of 883 new applications for the 2021 cycle, representing a fourfold increase over 10 years. She acknowledged the impact of the increase on the Committee's workload and expressed concern regarding the high number of deferred applications, which could impede the Committee's ability to complete the review of its work program. She commended the Committee for extending its regular and resumed sessions to deal with the high workload and extended the Secretariat's support to the Committee in its efforts to examine ways of addressing the growing number of applications for status and quadrennial reports received, in line with General Assembly resolution 72/305.

23. She applauded the Branch for its efficiency in dealing with the increased workload, adding that the number of applications submitted during the session was the highest in the Committee's history. She stressed the need for appropriate administrative and human resources to enable the work of the Branch to continue and appealed to the Committee for its support in that regard. She concluded by reiterating the impact of the Committee's work, which was at the heart of building a more inclusive and networked multilateralism.

V. Consideration of special reports and complaints by Member States

24. At its 1st, 2nd, 8th and 13th meetings, on 17, 21 and 26 May, the Committee considered agenda item 7, Special reports. At the 1st meeting, the representative of Pakistan referred to a letter dated 4 January 2021 from the Permanent Representative of Pakistan to the United Nations addressed to the Chair of the Committee that had been circulated previously to members of the Committee. She commended NGOs for their role in enriching discussions by bringing diverse perspectives and contributing to the activities of the various United Nations organs and subsidiary bodies, in accordance with the principles and purposes laid down in Economic and Social Council resolution 1996/31, and affirmed her delegation's commitment to facilitating the accreditation of credible national and international NGOs and enabling their constructive contributions to the work of the United Nations within the Committee. She expressed regret, however, that some NGOs indulged in politically motivated disinformation campaigns targeting Member States. In that regard, she informed the Committee that the following nine NGOs granted consultative status by the Council had engaged in disinformation campaigns against Pakistan, namely: (a) Canners International Permanent Committee (Roster); (b) Center for Environmental and Management Studies (Roster, 1996); (c) Commission to Study the Organization of Peace (Roster, 1975); (d) Indian Council of Education (special, 1995); (e) International Association for Democracy in Africa (special, 1996); (f) International Institute for Non-Aligned Studies (general, 1998); (g) Pan African Union for Science and Technology (Roster); (h) United Schools International (Roster, 1981); and (i) World Environment and Resources Council (WERC) (Roster, 1979).

25. The representative of Pakistan informed the Committee that credible information gathered through several sources, including official records of the proceedings of the Human Rights Council, online resources and reports by independent institutions and media had corroborated the concerns previously expressed by her delegation to the Secretariat and the Committee with regard to fake and dubious NGOs. She further stated that the NGOs concerned had reportedly violated the provisions of resolution 1996/31 and had overstepped their mandate by using fake addresses and names and fictitious domains, by engaging in identity theft to impersonate United Nations institutions and dormant NGOs and by creating false credentials to gain access to United Nations events so as to carry out subversive activities and propaganda against countries, including Pakistan. She added that the NGOs had created more than 750 fake online media outlets and 550 website domains through a network, in order to amplify their activities and disseminate propaganda and fake news for over 15 years. She noted that the Committee had a responsibility, in accordance with paragraph 55 of resolution 1996/31, to determine the compliance of accredited NGOs with the principles governing consultative status and their contributions to the work of the Economic and Social Council. She requested that the Committee seek relevant information from the NGOs to give them an opportunity to clarify their positions and respond to the allegations and information presented. She informed the Committee that her delegation had requested, through a note verbale dated 10 May 2021, that the Secretariat provide the following information pertaining to the organizations concerned: (a) complete applications for consultative status made by the NGOs; (b) information regarding the programs and activities of those NGOs; (c) annual and other reports of the NGOs, with financial statements and a list of financial resources and contributions, including governmental contributions; (d) a list of the members of the governing bodies of those NGOs and their countries of nationality; (e) a list of authorized representatives of those NGOs who have attended meetings of United Nations organs and its subsidiary bodies in the last 10 years, along with evidence of authorization to represent; (g) the text of the constitution and bylaws of those NGOs; and (g) the quadrennial reports of the NGOs in general and special consultative status. She noted that the Secretariat had provided the quadrennial reports of three organizations and information related to designations, but had indicated that the remaining information was not available in their records.

26. She recalled that the provisions of paragraphs 37 (f) and 38 (b) of resolution 1996/31 stipulated that NGOs in consultative status by virtue of being on the Roster could only make statements upon the recommendation or invitation of the Secretary-General, in consultation with the chairperson of the commission or subsidiary body or organ concerned, and sought clarification from the Secretariat regarding the participation of six of the nine NGOs currently on the Roster in the sessions of the Human Rights Council. She requested that the secretariat of the Committee transmit the request for relevant information contained in the note verbale dated 10 May 2021 to the NGOs concerned and seek their responses in writing.

27. The representative of India stated that the Committee should conduct its work in an objective, consistent and impartial manner and cautioned against the politicization of its work. He contended that the source of the allegations made against the concerned organizations was not credible and that it lacked in details and in the level of transparency and accountability required by the Committee. He cautioned that the Committee's reliance on a report made by a non-credible and unaccredited organization against accredited organizations would open a "Pandora's box" for politically motivated action against NGOs in the future. He urged the Committee to disregard the report made by a non-credible and unaccredited organization presented by the representative of Pakistan.

28. The representative of Pakistan stated that her delegation's request for information was based on credible sources, including the proceedings of the Human Rights Council, and argued that, under the provisions of paragraph 55 of resolution 1996/31, the Committee and its members had a right to seek information from NGOs applying for status, as well as those in consultative status, regardless of the basis of the information relied upon. In that regard, she referred to paragraphs 11, 13, 44, 48 and 61 (c) of the resolution, by which the Committee was allowed to seek information on details of authorized representatives, the financial and funding resources of organizations, additional information, quadrennial reports and additional reports in exceptional circumstances. She maintained that her delegation's request for relevant information was important for the objective and transparent working of the Committee and urged that the questions be transmitted to the NGOs concerned with a request for written responses in a timely manner.

29. The Chair of the Committee affirmed the right of any member of the Committee to ask for clarification from any NGOs with consultative status or applying for consultative status on behalf of the Committee and solicited the Committee's views on the request to transmit the questions to the NGOs in question.

30. The representative of the United States of America stressed the importance of ensuring that the Committee's actions were transparent and in line with resolution 1996/31, considering the precedent that would be established. She sought clarification from the Chair and the Secretariat regarding the circumstances that would warrant the request for additional information from the organizations concerned regarding their activities outside of the normal quadrennial review reporting framework. She also enquired about the benchmarks and criteria that would be used by the Committee in requesting additional information and whether the Committee had made similar requests for additional information from NGOs in the past. She expressed concern that the request made by the delegation of Pakistan would create an undue burden for NGOs by requiring them to respond formally to unsubstantiated allegations against them and reasoned that the normal reporting period established under the quadrennial review process would be the appropriate channel for organizations to provide updates about their activities. The representative of Greece agreed with the view expressed by the United States and sought clarification regarding the procedures related to the consideration of special reports by the Committee.

31. The Acting Chief of the Non-Governmental Organizations Branch indicated that, in accordance with the established practice of the Committee, only matters pertaining to complaints against organizations by Member States had previously been considered under item 7 of the agenda. He stated that, upon receipt of a complaint against an NGO made by a Member State, and on the basis of evidence, the practice of the Committee was to inform the organization concerned and to give the organization an opportunity to respond to the allegations, in accordance with paragraph 56 of resolution 1996/31.

32. The representative of Greece enquired as to whether there had been any Committee precedent regarding a report by a non-accredited NGO against an accredited NGO. He also sought clarification regarding the procedures to be followed concerning special reports, including what the Committee considered a “special report”, as a basis for its actions. He reiterated his delegation’s support for the position expressed by the representative of the United States, namely, that the review of quadrennial reports provided a safe framework for the examinations and evaluation of the activities of NGOs.

33. The Acting Chief of the Branch indicated that the established practice in the Committee for dealing with special reports was based on complaints made by Member States, in which clear elements of the allegations against the organizations in question were outlined. He stated that there was no precedent, to his knowledge, in which a complaint was based purely on a report by an external organization. He noted, however, that any request sent to the organizations should be based on the questions that the Committee would agree to transmit.

34. The representative of China affirmed his delegation’s support for the role of civil society in United Nations meetings. He noted, however, that while most NGOs had adhered to the relevant United Nations rules and regulations, including resolution 1996/31, some NGOs had abused their status by undertaking activities that were contrary to the Charter. Recalling that the Committee had discussed similar issues in the past, he reaffirmed the right of Member States to request information from NGOs and expressed support for the request made by the representative of Pakistan.

35. The representative of Turkey also expressed support for the request made by the representative of Pakistan, as a matter of principle and procedure, and stated that the Committee had a responsibility to review the activities of NGOs in consultative status, not only on the basis of reports but also of other relevant information, as indicated in resolution 1996/31. Emphasizing that the Committee should objectively review all information that might be of relevance, she expressed her delegation’s hope that a consensus decision could be reached in line with the request concerned.

36. The representative of Pakistan reiterated that her delegation’s request for information was based on information gathered from various sources and pointed out that the precedents of the Committee’s practice and paragraphs 11, 13, 44, 48, 55 and 61 (c) of resolution 1996/31 allowed the Committee to request information from accredited NGOs. She noted that six of the nine organizations concerned were on the Roster and were not required to submit quadrennial reports. She informed the Committee that the Secretariat had provided a partial response to her delegation’s request for information, in a note verbale dated 10 May 2021, and stated that her delegation was seeking information on five elements on which information had not been provided, namely: (a) the complete applications of the nine organizations; (b) information regarding the programs and activities of those NGOs since acquiring consultative status with the Economic and Social Council; (c) annual or other reports of the NGOs, with financial statements and a list of financial resources and contributions, including governmental contributions; (d) a list of the members of the governing bodies of the NGOs and their countries of nationality; and (e) the texts of the constitution and bylaws of the organizations.

37. The representative of India sought clarification from the Chair regarding the basis for seeking information from the nine NGOs, adding that, under the established practice of the Committee, as clarified by the Secretariat, the procedure for seeking information from an NGO pursuant to a special report was to be based on a complaint and evidence provided by Member States.

38. The representative of Pakistan stressed that the request for information was based on paragraphs 11, 13, 55, 61 (c) of resolution 1996/31, by which, she contended, a Member State was allowed, regardless of the basis for its information, to seek “relevant information” from NGOs. She reiterated that her delegation’s complaint was based on a number of resources and credible information and noted that, under the established practice of the Committee, such communications had, in the past, been transmitted to concerned NGOs, in accordance with paragraph 56 of the resolution. She restated her delegation's request for the NGOs to respond to the questions raised and to clarify their position.

39. The representative of the United States sought further clarification on paragraphs 11, 13, 44, 48, 55 and 61 (c) of resolution 1996/31, cited as the basis for transmitting the questions to the nine NGOs. She noted that, of the provisions cited, paragraphs 11 and 13 were relevant to the initial review of applications for consultative status, paragraph 55 to quadrennial reports and paragraph 56 to cases where there was a motion or a request to suspend or withdraw consultative status, which had not been done in the present case. She enquired if the matter before the Committee warranted consideration under paragraph 61 (c) which was applicable under "exceptional circumstances".

40. Upon a request for clarification by the Chair, the representative of Pakistan stated that her delegation had requested the Secretariat to provide specific information on the nine NGOs, which should have been accessible to all members of the Committee, but that the Secretariat had indicated that the information was not available. She also informed the Committee that the information required from those organizations in support of their applications for consultative status, as referenced in paragraphs 11 and 13 of resolution 1996/31, was not available from the Secretariat. With regard to paragraphs 55 and 56, she recalled that her delegation had made a complaint about the nine NGOs in a letter dated 4 January 2021 and stressed that her delegation was seeking information so as to ensure transparency, impartiality and constructive engagement with the NGOs concerned. She requested that the Committee transmit her delegation's request for information to the NGOs concerned and to seek timely responses.

41. The representative of Cuba affirmed the right of Member States under resolution 1996/31 to ask follow-up questions under the appropriate Committee agenda item. He noted that the representative of Pakistan had requested that the Committee transmit a request for information on the basis of concerns raised by her delegation regarding the nine NGOs and that the Committee had not been requested to take any action against those NGOs. He stated that it was appropriate for the NGOs to be given the opportunity to respond to the concerns and questions raised by the Committee.

42. The representative of India sought further clarification regarding the report cited in support of the request for information by the representative of Pakistan and enquired if there was a similar precedent in the work of the Committee. He further enquired if the letter presented by the representative of Pakistan constituted a requisite criterion to be considered a complaint and sought clarification on the procedure followed by the Committee in previous cases.

43. The Chair noted the clarification provided by the representative of Pakistan in reiterating a complaint against the nine organizations concerned under paragraphs 55 and 56 of resolution 1996/31 and in presenting the questions to be transmitted to the organizations for the purpose of obtaining additional information.

44. The representative of the United States noted there had not been an established precedent in the Committee for requesting additional information under the exceptional circumstances clause of paragraph 61 (c). She reiterated the need for the Committee to establish a clear benchmark if it decided to request that the NGOs concerned present additional information outside of the quadrennial report review process or under "exceptional circumstances" as envisaged in paragraph 61 (c) of resolution 1996/31.

45. The Chair recalled that the practice of the Committee was to evaluate the complaints of the members of the Committee under item 7, Special reports, of the Committee agenda. The Acting Chief of the Branch confirmed that the request was being considered under agenda item 7 in the framework of paragraphs 55 and 56 of resolution 1996/31 and indicated that the questions formulated by the Committee would be presented in the context of those paragraphs. He stated that there was no precedent in the established practice of the Committee for requesting information under paragraph 61 (c) and that, in the absence of such precedent, the Committee would need to make a decision on any action taken on that basis.

46. The representative of Turkey recalled that the Committee had conveyed questions on previous occasions to NGOs in consultative status. She expressed her delegation's view that the letter by Pakistan, which included a mention of the possibility of, without requesting, the withdrawal of consultative status of the NGOs concerned, constituted a complaint that should be reviewed by the Committee under paragraphs 55 and 56. She noted that the resolution did not limit the information that could be taken into consideration by the Committee or the sources of the information that could be used for the Committee's action and underscored that the Committee would continue its review upon receiving responses from the relevant organizations.

47. The representative of India maintained that there was a lack of clarity regarding the Committee's request. He acknowledged the right of Member States to seek information but stressed that there was a need to ensure due process. He cautioned that the Committee should consider the validity of the report used as the basis of the complaint against the NGOs and the precedent that would be created by its possible action.

48. The representative of the United States reiterated her delegation's position that there was a lack of clarity on the context in which the information was being requested from the NGOs concerned. She stated that the request for information from the NGOs should be done in accordance with resolution 1996/31 and contended that paragraphs 55 and 56, as cited, were not relevant to the request under consideration by the Committee. She further reiterated her delegation's view that the exceptional circumstances required to warrant the request for additional information outside of the established quadrennial report review process, as envisaged under paragraph 61 (c), had not been established. She stressed there was no precedent for the Committee's action and that the request for information was not in line with the Committee's existing practice. She reiterated her delegation's concern that such requests for information could create an undue burden for NGOs being asked to respond formally to unsubstantiated allegations against them and maintained that the reporting period established under the quadrennial review process would be the appropriate channel for organizations to provide updates about their activities.

49. Responding to concerns raised by some delegations, the representative of Pakistan highlighted that precedent was only required when there was no clear provision or rule. She emphasized her delegation's views that resolution 1996/31 allowed members of the Committee to seek information from the NGOs under various provisions, including paragraph 61 (c).

50. The representative of China recalled the provisions of paragraph 15 of resolution 1996/31 and expressed his delegation's support for the right of Member States to raise concerns and seek information from the NGOs in consultative status, adding that the NGOs concerned had the right to respond to the questions raised by the Committee.

51. The Committee decided to request that the Secretariat transmit the questions as formulated by the delegation of Pakistan to the nine NGOs concerned for their response.

52. At the 2nd meeting, on 17 May, the representative of the Sudan made reference to a note verbale dated 6 May 2021 that had been circulated previously to members of the Committee containing a request for the withdrawal of status of the following nine organizations in consultative status with the Council: (a) Al-Birr & Al-Tawasul (special 2014); (b) Al Zubair Charity Foundation (special 2008); (c) Global Health Foundation (special 2016); (d) International Peace and Development Organization (special 2009); (e) Ma'arij Foundation for Peace and Development (special 2010); (f) Sanad Charity Foundation (special 2016); (g) Society Studies Centre (special 2008); (h) Sudanese Women General Union (special 2007); and (i) Women Research Center (special 2013).

53. He expressed his delegation's commitment to working with civil society organizations and stressed their important role in the implementation of charitable and development projects. He informed the Committee that investigations conducted by the Sudan into the work of those nine organizations had established that they had violated national laws related to the conduct of humanitarian work by violating registration and administrative regulations and receiving exceptional privileges from political entities to further political objectives. He further stated that the organizations had been deregistered as part of national efforts to combat corruption. He outlined the specific violations committed by the organizations and requested that the Committee withdraw the consultative status of the organizations in accordance with paragraph 57 of resolution 1996/31, as they no longer had the legal capacity to work in the Sudan. He requested that the organizations be informed of the complaint against them.

54. The representative of the United States sought clarification on whether the NGOs would be given an opportunity to respond to the allegations made against them. She further enquired about the formal registration requirements regarding the eligibility of NGOs, in particular whether NGOs are required to maintain registration in the country in which they are headquartered in order to maintain their United Nations accreditation and whether NGOs can relocate their headquarters in response to the suspension of their registration and continue their work elsewhere. She requested that additional information regarding the organizations concerned, which had not been included in the note verbale, be provided to the Committee. The representative of Greece also sought clarification regarding the procedure for handling complaints made by Member States against an organization.

55. The Acting Chief of the Branch recalled the provisions of paragraph 56 of resolution 1996/31, which contained the stipulation that NGOs against whom complaints were made should be given the opportunity to present their views to the Committee before any action was taken against them. He indicated that the Secretariat would convey the specific allegations to the organizations and seek their responses. In that regard, he requested that the Committee provide a specific formulation of the specific allegations to be transmitted to the NGOs and request their responses for the Committee's consideration at its 8th meeting, on 21 May.

56. The representative of Turkey pointed out that the Committee had addressed the issue of registration at its 2017 regular session, with regard to organizations that had been deregistered and that had lost their legal personality, and that it had indeed decided, at that time, that questions did not have to be conveyed to the organizations concerned because they had lost their legal personality in the country in which they had been established at the time of their applications. She noted that the decision by the Committee to convey the questions and complaint to the NGOs concerned in the present case would not prejudice the decision that was made in the past or set a precedent in that regard.

57. The Acting Chief of the Branch stated that the question regarding the registration of an NGO at the national level was distinct from the system of consultative status with the Economic and Social Council. He pointed out that resolution 1996/31 did not require that an organization be registered with national authorities and that registration requirements varied from country to country, adding that, in some contexts, such registration was undertaken by commercial entities. He further stated that, in the review of requests for consultative status, NGOs were only required to provide evidence of registration for the sole purpose of establishing proof of their existence for at least two years prior to their application, as stipulated in the resolution. He noted that NGOs were mobile in nature and might establish themselves in different countries at once and added that the Secretariat did not monitor their geographical movements. He further stated that the cessation of registration with national authorities did not, by itself, warrant the suspension or withdrawal of their consultative status with the Council.

58. The representative of Pakistan supported the position expressed by the representative of Turkey that organizations that lost their legal personhood in their country of origin lacked locus standi and would not be eligible, on the basis of the Committee's practice, to provide a response. She noted that the request made by the representative of the Sudan to transmit the complaints to the organizations concerned should not be considered as a precedent.

59. The representative of the Sudan underscored that the organizations in question had been investigated at the national level and been found to be lacking transparency and in violation of the principles of resolution 1996/31. He undertook to provide additional elements of the complaints to the Committee. The Committee decided to seek information from the organizations mentioned in the note verbale dated 6 May 2021 and request their views.

60. At its 8th meeting, on 21 May, the Committee resumed its consideration of agenda item 7. The representative of the Sudan referred to her delegation's intervention of 17 May and requested that the Committee postpone its consideration of that request to the resumed session. The representative of Pakistan requested more time to review the responses provided by the organizations referred to in the letter dated 4 January 2021, adding that the responses had been transmitted to the members of the Committee shortly before its consideration of agenda item 7.

61. At its 13th meeting, on 26 May, the Committee resumed its consideration of agenda item 7. The representative of Pakistan informed the Committee that, upon reviewing the information contained in the responses provided by the nine NGOs concerned, only two, the Indian Council of Education (special, 1995) and the Institute of Non-Aligned Studies (general, 1998), had provided the information requested by the Committee. She added that one organization, the International Association for Democracy in Africa (special, 1996), had provided partial information and the other six organizations had failed to provide the basic information requested by the Committee. She informed the Committee that her delegation was reviewing the information that had been received and reiterated the request for information from the remaining organizations and the information that remained outstanding from one organization.

62. The Committee decided to request that the following organizations provide the information requested: (a) Canners International Permanent Committee (Roster); (b) Center for Environmental and Management Studies (Roster, 1996); (c) Commission to Study the Organization of Peace (Roster, 1975); (d) International Association for Democracy in Africa (special, 1996); (e) Pan African Union for Science and Technology (Roster); (f) United Schools International (Roster, 1981); and (g) World Environment and Resources Council (WERC) (Roster, 1979).

VI. Organization of the session

A. Opening and duration of the session

63. The Committee on Non-Governmental Organizations held its 2021 regular session from 17 to 27 May and on 7 June. The Committee held 16 meetings.

64. The session was opened by the Chair of the 2021 session of the Committee, who noted that the Committee had an unprecedented number of applications and quadrennial reports before it, owing to the disruption of the 2020 resumed session, which had been reduced to a single meeting because of the COVID-19 pandemic. He stated that the Committee had taken exceptional measures, including rescheduling and extending both of its 2021 regular and resumed sessions and convening on the United Nations floating holiday of the Day of Vesak, to give it adequate time to deal with the accumulated workload. He thanked the members of the Committee for their flexibility and cooperation in addressing the serious constraints and challenges to the Committee's work.

65. The representative of Mexico underscored the importance of civil society participation in the work of the Economic and Social Council, its subsidiary bodies and other United Nations intergovernmental forums, adding that they provided information, analyses and diverse views that contributed to Member States' deliberations and efforts in finding innovative solutions to complex problems in many areas of the work of the United Nations. She expressed concern about the adverse impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on the work of the Committee and the activities of civil society organizations at United Nations Headquarters at a time when their ideas and proposals were most critical. She urged the Committee to explore options for creating an open and inclusive space for interaction with NGOs by taking advantage of available digital tools and technologies, including virtual platforms, to ensure greater and better interaction between the Committee and NGOs in the question-and-answer segments of future Committee sessions.

66. The representative of the United States reaffirmed her delegation's support for civil society participation, as part of its broader commitment to democracy, human rights and equality. She stated that the record number of applications for consultative status before the Committee was a testament to the significance of consultative status for NGOs and urged the Committee to work efficiently to overcome the challenges it faced in convening its meetings as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic and to prevent further backlogs. She stressed the need for the Committee's work to be open, transparent and accessible to civil society and welcomed the webcasting of the Committee's public sessions as an important step in that regard. She encouraged the Committee to explore additional measures, including virtual platforms and digital tools, to ensure greater access by civil society organizations to the work of the United Nations. She expressed concern regarding the deferral of the consideration of quadrennial reports of NGOs working on human rights and humanitarian issues and cautioned that the practice risked politicizing the Committee's work. She stressed that the Committee had an obligation to uphold for everyone, including members of NGOs, the rights to freedom of expression and freedom of association enshrined in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, adding that doing so would foster the open exchange of ideas, which is essential to innovation and creative solutions in multilateral bodies. She further reiterated the vital importance of civil society participation to the work of the United Nations and urged the Committee to ensure that NGOs had a voice at the United Nations.

67. The representative of Turkey stressed the importance of active participation of NGOs in the work of the Economic and Social Council, its subsidiary bodies and

United Nations international conferences to ensure the international community's success in achieving the goals it has set for itself. She stated that the vulnerabilities exposed by the COVID-19 pandemic had demonstrated the necessity of establishing diverse, multi-layered, multi-dimensional and effective partnerships, cooperation and coordination at all levels and among all actors and stressed that the Committee had an important role to play in that regard. Noting the important contributions made by NGOs to the work of the United Nations, she welcomed the increase in the number of applications for consultative status by NGOs despite the challenges posed by the COVID-19 pandemic and expressed hope that the extended sessions of 2021 will enable the Committee to compensate for the disruptions caused in 2020 by the pandemic and the cyberattack against the online platforms. She noted, however, that the growing number of applications affected the Committee's ability to implement its mandate in a timely, proper and diligent manner and proposed that the Committee explore ways of rationalizing its working methods to accommodate its workload. She commended the Committee for the steps it had taken towards enhancing the transparency and efficiency of its work and accelerating its review of applications and looked forward to exploring additional practical steps in that regard.

68. The representative of Brazil reaffirmed the importance of civil society participation to the work of the United Nations. He stressed the important role of the Committee in ensuring the meaningful participation of NGOs in the United Nations system by considering applications for consultative status by NGOs in accordance with resolution 1996/31. In that regard, he stressed that transparent and objective criteria should guide the Committee's work to strengthen and expand the participation of civil society in United Nations processes. Noting the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on the work of the Committee, he welcomed the resumption of the Committee's sessions as an opportunity to reduce the backlog of applications created by the pandemic.

69. The representative of Estonia expressed his delegation's strong support for the participation of civil society organizations in the work of the United Nations and for giving them a voice in the United Nations system. He stated that his delegation shared the view of many States and NGOs that the Committee's accreditation process lacked transparency, objectivity and efficiency. He expressed concern regarding the repetitive questioning and unjustified delays with regard to applications, which disproportionately affected NGOs working on specific issues, including human rights. He noted that there were attempts to conduct the work of the Committee outside of the framework of resolution 1996/31 and called upon all members of the Committee to reaffirm their commitment to upholding its principles. He underlined the importance of direct interactions with NGOs to the Committee's work, adding that the opportunity should be extended equally to organizations from around the world. In that regard, he supported the proposal by Mexico that the Committee explore options to facilitate the participation of NGOs at its sessions, including via digital tools, and appealed to States Members of the United Nations to guarantee an enabling environment for NGOs at the national level.

70. The representative of Greece reaffirmed his delegation's commitment to advancing the participation of civil society in the work of the United Nations, which exemplified the affirmation for the active involvement of the peoples of the United Nations envisaged in the Charter. He highlighted the important contributions made by civil society to the work of the United Nations, adding that their expertise and experience made the United Nations better informed, more inclusive and more responsive to the concerns of various stakeholders. Noting the disruption to the Committee's work caused by the COVID-19 pandemic, he stated that the Committee had an opportunity to reflect on enhancing transparency in its work including the effective participation of civil society and its interaction with NGOs. He commended the Committee for the progress made in that regard and expressed his delegation's readiness to help the Committee in exploring proposals towards that end.

71. The observer for the European Union made a statement, also on behalf of Albania, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Georgia, Liechtenstein, Monaco, Montenegro, North Macedonia and Ukraine. He welcomed the webcasting of the Committee's session, adding that most NGOs were unable to attend the session in-person. Noting the long-lasting, devastating effects of the COVID-19 pandemic on economies and societies all over the world, he stressed that it was crucial for the United Nations to listen to the voices of citizens, as expressed through the work of civil society organizations. He highlighted the important role of the Committee in that regard, adding that its recommendations influenced the participation of NGOs in the United Nations system and shaped relations between the United Nations and civil society. He recalled that, in his 2020 call to action for human rights, the Secretary-General had underlined the importance of civil society engagement in the work of the United Nations and announced the "ramping up" of efforts to enhance the systematic inclusion of civil society voices in United Nations bodies and agencies. He asserted that it was time for the United Nations to systematically address threats made and reprisals taken against human rights defenders and victims of human rights violations and abuses who engaged with the system, adding that 709 cases of such threats and reprisals had been documented between 2010 and 2020. He called for the establishment of a mechanism to ensure the protection and safety of such individuals, in line with the mandate on reprisals entrusted by the Secretary-General to the Assistant Secretary-General for Human Rights. He further stated that the review of applications should be guided by general interest and urged the Committee to refrain from using resolution 1996/31 for national or politicized objectives. In that regard, he expressed concern about repetitive questioning and unjustified delays with regard to applications, which disproportionately affected NGOs working on human rights issues and, in some cases, amounted to de facto rejections. He further stated that all allegations made against NGOs in the Committee should be supported by evidence and shared with the organizations concerned in sufficient time to give them a reasonable opportunity to respond. Noting the record number of 340 deferred applications pending before the Committee, he stated that there was no justification to further delay applications that had been pending for a very long time. He cited as examples the applications of the organization, International Dalit Solidarity Network, deferred for more than 14 years, and the NGOs, Non C'è Pace Senza Giustizia/No Peace without Justice, the Dr. Denis Mukwege Foundation, Trócaire and Inimõiguste Instituut. He noted with regret that many NGOs would be unable to participate in the question-and-answer sessions with the Committee owing to challenges faced in ensuring their presence in New York and stressed the importance of addressing impediments to the Committee's dialogue with the NGOs using all available tools. He further underlined the importance of the webcasting and detailed coverage of the Committee's sessions in ensuring access to NGOs that lacked the resources to attend the Committee's meetings.

72. He expressed his delegation's support for the call made by NGOs on 30 March 2020 for the Committee to be committed to fulfilling its mandate in a fair, transparent, non-discriminatory, expeditious and apolitical manner and urged Economic and Social Council members to introduce term limits for membership on the Committee on NGOs, as part of the reforms aimed at promoting openness and accountability. He concurred that term limits would allow for greater diversity in the Committee's membership and encouraged Council members to vote for candidates with positive track records regarding civil society access and participation at the United Nations for the 2023–2026 term. He recalled the letter from the Chair of the Coordination Committee of Special Procedures addressed to the Committee in June 2019, outlining valuable recommendations for both the Council and the Committee noting that if implemented, they would allow for a more inclusive, effective, fair and transparent functioning of the Committee, including by limiting deferrals and instituting a process to review arbitrary or erroneous deferral or denial decisions. He called upon the Committee to organize a new round of consultations with NGOs, following the first-ever consultations held in June 2018.

73. The observer for the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland noted that civil society made the United Nations effective by pursuing the implementation of United Nations policies on the ground and using their unique grassroots experience to inform United Nations decisions. He reaffirmed his delegation's commitment to championing civil society globally, including securing their unimpeded access to the work of the United Nations. He highlighted the increase in reprisals against civil society, including for their engagement with the United Nations, and informed the Committee that his delegation had spearheaded a cross-regional joint statement to the Third Committee condemning reprisals against civil society and had promoted the participation of civil society during its presidency of the Security Council. Noting the challenges faced by NGOs, including restrictions to and blockages of their work, he underscored that the Committee should facilitate their work, and not impede it through bureaucracy. He announced his delegation's candidacy for membership in the NGO Committee for the 2023–2026 term and affirmed that, if elected, it would work to improve the working methods of the Committee so as to make it more transparent and less susceptible to arbitrary deferrals. He urged the Committee to resolve the backlog of deferred applications fairly and transparently, in order to fulfil and further the United Nations commitment to inclusive multilateralism. He reiterated the statement made by the European Union that further delays of deferred applications were unjustified and called upon the Committee to expedite its work and promote a safe and welcoming space for civil society to voice their views. He concurred with the Director of the Office of Intergovernmental Support and Coordination for Sustainable Development on the importance of networked and more inclusive multilateralism and stressed the need for the United Nations to listen to and engage NGOs in its work.

74. At its 15th meeting, on 27 May, the Chair commended the Committee for the progress made in overcoming the serious challenges to its work as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic and in effectively addressing the high number of applications for consultative status that had accumulated, which was the highest on the Committee's record. He thanked the Committee members and the Secretariat for their hard work, which had led to a positive outcome, adding that an unprecedented 430 organizations had been recommended for consultative status. He applauded the efforts made by the Secretariat in organizing the daily question-and-answer sessions with NGO representatives, despite the health-related restrictions imposed at the premises of United Nations Headquarters, adding that the number of organizations having participated in the 2021 regular session had exceeded the average number of participants in prior sessions of the Committee, whether regular or resumed.

75. The representative of the United States commended the Chair for his leadership in the face of unprecedented challenges to the Committee's work and for enabling the Committee to address its record-high workload. She expressed her appreciation to the Secretariat staff for the efficient support provided to the Committee for its session.

76. The representative of the Russian Federation noted that the Committee had undertaken an enormous volume of work and completed the most important tasks and thanked the Chair for his leadership and the Secretariat for the support provided to the Committee for its session.

77. The representative of Pakistan also thanked the Chair for successfully steering the Committee's session and expressed appreciation for the Secretariat's support and assistance in providing information and clarifications throughout the session.
