Introduction

This assessment of the work of the Security Council for the month of January 2008 has been prepared under the supervision and responsibility of its President during that month, Giadallah Azouz Ettalhi, Permanent Representative of the Libyan Arab Jamahiriya to the United Nations. Libya carried out its responsibilities as Council President with a renewed commitment to the essential work of the United Nations and the principles of the Charter.

On 3 January, the President briefed the press on the provisional programme of work of the month as agreed upon in the first consultations of the whole held by the Council and the programme was updated daily on the presidency website. The President gave regular informal briefings to non-members of the Council and met representatives of the broader membership of the United Nations.

The first month of the year was an active month, and the Security Council was heavily engaged in a number of sensitive issues in Africa, Asia, the Middle East and Europe. It considered the situations in the Central African Republic, Chad, Côte d'Ivoire, the Sudan, the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Ethiopia and Eritrea, Kenya, Myanmar, Nepal, Iraq, the Middle East, Kosovo and Abkhazia, Georgia. The Council was also engaged in other matters relating to the Council's subsidiary bodies.

The Council held 13 meetings and met in consultations of the whole on 13 occasions. It unanimously adopted three resolutions, issued three communiqués and two presidential statements, and agreed on 10 statements delivered by the President to the press.

Central African Republic, Chad and the subregion

On 7 January, in consultations of the whole, the Secretariat introduced the latest report of the Secretary-General (S/2007/739), and briefed Council members on the United Nations Mission in the Central African Republic and Chad (MINURCAT) and the European Union force there (EUFOR).

Following the consultations, a statement to the press was delivered by the President, in which the Council members welcomed the progress made in the deployment of MINURCAT and encouraged contributors to make available to MINURCAT and EUFOR the personnel and resources required for the implementation of their mandates. They expressed their serious concern at the recent upsurge of activities of the illegal armed groups in western Darfur and in eastern Chad, and at the resulting tension between the Sudan and Chad. The Council members called on the two countries to exercise restraint, and called on all parties in the said countries to respect their commitments, in particular in the Tripoli Agreement of 3 February 2006, the Riyadh Agreement of 3 May 2007 and the Sirte Agreement of 25 October 2007.
