Germany has the following national legislation in force, requiring an export authorization for the sale, supply, transfer or export of arms and related materiel² to third countries and an authorization for the provision of brokering services and other services related to military activities which, together with Council Decision 2016/849/CFSP, provide the basis for enforcement of the arms embargo against the Democratic People's Republic of Korea and the ban on related brokering services: the Federal Foreign Trade and Payments Ordinance prohibits the sale, export and transit of arms and related materiel (specifically section 74, paragraph (1), No. 5). Section 75, paragraph (1), No. 5, thereof prohibits trafficking and brokering transactions relating to arms and related materiel, which are directly or indirectly destined for persons, organizations or institutions in the Democratic People's Republic of Korea. Additionally, Germany has prohibited the import of banned goods from the Democratic People's Republic of Korea into Germany, as well as the transport of banned goods aboard a ship or aircraft entitled to fly the German flag (section 77, paragraph (1), No. 1, and paragraph (2), of the Federal Foreign Trade and Payments Ordinance). Further, section 78 of that Ordinance requires the issuance of a licence for the export and transit to the Democratic People's Republic of Korea of equipment for the manufacture of banknotes or stamps or of special papers necessary for such manufacture.

The above-mentioned Council Regulations are binding in their entirety and directly applicable in all States members of the European Union.³ Regulation (EC) No. 329/2007 requires Member States to determine the penalties applicable to infringements of their provisions. The penalties determined by Germany for any infringement of the sectorial trade embargo and the arms embargo against the Democratic People's Republic of Korea as well as the ban on related brokering services are set out in the following legislation: the Federal Foreign Trade and Payments Ordinance, especially section 80, in conjunction with section 17 of the Federal Foreign Trade and Payments Act. Penalties for the infringement of licence requirements for the export and transit of equipment to the Democratic People's Republic of Korea for the manufacture of banknotes or stamps or of special types of paper necessary for such manufacture are set out in section 18, paragraph (2), No. 1, of the Federal Foreign Trade and Payments Act.

As regards restrictions on admission (visa ban), Germany has the following national legislation which, together with Council Decision CFSP 2016/849 and Regulation (EC) No. 539/2001,³ provide the basis for refusal of admission and denial of requests for a visa: Germany's general aliens legislation, together with Council Decision 2013/183/CFSP and Regulations (EC) No. 539/2001 and (EC) No. 810/2009, which provide the basis for refusal of admission and denial of requests for a visa. The Regulation requires nationals of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea to be in possession of a visa when entering the European Union. The travel restrictions are implemented through the visa application process.

² This legislation should apply to all goods included in the Common Military List of the European Union, Official Journal of the European Union, C 129, 21.4.2015, p. 1.
