With regard to the arms embargo, Croatia seeks to prevent any transfer to or from the Democratic People's Republic of Korea by nationals of that country of technical training, advice, services or assistance relating to the provision, manufacture, maintenance or use of nuclear-related, ballistic missile-related or other weapons of mass destruction-related items, materials, equipment, goods and technology.

Croatia does not have any form of technical cooperation with the Democratic People's Republic of Korea on launches using ballistic missile technology, including in connection with satellite launches or space launch vehicles. The same is true with respect to all arms and related materiel, including small arms and light weapons and their related materiel, as well as to financial transactions, technical training, advice, services or assistance relating to the provision, manufacture, maintenance or use of such arms and related materiel.

The Croatian National Bank monitors the implementation of the aforementioned legislation by financial institutions and, to date, it has not recorded any irregularities in relation to Croatian financial institutions with regard to enforcement of the restrictive measures legislation.

The Anti-Money Laundering Office is a national centre for collecting and analysing anti-money-laundering data and disseminating such data to the competent authorities. The Office informs all banks and other financial institutions in the Republic of Croatia on a regular basis about the publications of the Financial Action Task Force, including, for example the recommendations of the Task Force of 24 June 2016 regarding the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, in which, inter alia, it stated that it is necessary to apply all the targeted financial sanctions pursuant to the applicable Security Council resolutions concerning the Democratic People's Republic of Korea. During its supervisory activities, the Office did not find any violations of the provisions of resolution 2270 \(2016\).
