Seventy-third session

Agenda item 116 (d)

Elections to fill vacancies in subsidiary organs and other elections: election of members of the Human Rights Council

Note verbale dated 1 October 2018 from the Permanent Mission of the Philippines to the United Nations addressed to the President of the General Assembly

The Permanent Mission of the Republic of the Philippines to the United Nations presents its compliments to the Office of the President of the General Assembly and has the honour to recall the decision of the Government of the Republic of the Philippines to present its candidature to the Human Rights Council for the period 2019–2021 for the elections to be held during the seventy-third session of the Assembly.

In accordance with General Assembly resolution 60/251, the Permanent Mission has the honour to present herewith the voluntary pledges and commitments of the Government of the Republic of the Philippines in support of its candidature (see annex). The Permanent Mission would be grateful if you could circulate the present note verbale and its annex as a document of the General Assembly, under agenda item 116 (d).

Annex to the note verbale dated 1 October 2018 from the Permanent Mission of the Philippines to the United Nations addressed to the President of the General Assembly

Candidature of the Philippines to the Human Rights Council, 2019–2021

Voluntary pledges and commitments pursuant to General Assembly resolution 60/251

I. Aide memoire for the candidature of the Republic of the Philippines to the Human Rights Council

1. The Philippines presents its candidature for a fifth term at the Human Rights Council since its establishment in 2006. The decision to seek a new term is based on its faith in fundamental human rights and the country's support for the inclusive work of the Council in the fulfilment of human rights of all peoples.

2. The Philippines reaffirms its belief that, amid the changes and challenges happening around the world, every human being can always find recourse in the constancy of human rights and mankind's unwavering efforts to realize them.

II. Strong tradition in the Philippines of human rights and advocacy of human rights at the regional and global levels

3. The Government of the Philippines attaches the utmost importance to the promotion, protection and fulfilment of human rights. Its strong legal and cultural tradition in upholding human rights is enshrined in the Constitution. Human rights principles have underpinned the development of its laws and policies.

4. Under the Constitution of the Philippines, it is a State policy to value the dignity of every human person and to guarantee the full respect of human rights. The Constitution includes a bill of rights that protects civil and political rights and a standalone article on social justice and human rights that comprises economic, social and cultural rights.

5. The Philippines has an independent Commission on Human Rights, the country's national human rights institution. The country provides a vibrant environment for its citizens to fully enjoy freedom of speech and freedom of the press, and for human rights defenders and civil society to participate meaningfully in nation-building.

6. In the executive branch of the Government, the Presidential Human Rights Committee under the Office of the President coordinates the implementation of international human rights treaty obligations and national policies and programmes on human rights. In Congress, both the Senate and the House of Representatives have active human rights committees, which also act as oversight legislative bodies for the implementation of human rights obligations of the Government of the Philippines.

7. The Philippines is one of the original signatories of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. It made a lasting contribution to the drafting of the Declaration, particularly on articles on the equal dignity and freedom of all human beings and non-discrimination. It will continue to promote and respect the Universal Declaration of Human Rights as the foundation document for human rights.

8. The Philippines is a State party to eight core international human rights conventions and six optional protocols.

9. The Philippines is an original member of the Human Rights Council.<sup>1</sup> It currently serves as one of the Vice Presidents of the Human Rights Council Bureau representing the Asia Pacific group.

10. The Philippines believes that the Human Rights Council should be a partner of States and stakeholders in the promotion and protection of human rights by providing a venue for genuine constructive dialogue. Its strong focus on capacity-building, technical assistance and international cooperation on human rights must be further enhanced.

III. Achievements of the Philippines in the field of human rights

11. The Philippines is recognized globally for its leading position in the Global Gender Gap Index and in the Migration Governance Index.

12. The Government has enacted landmark legislation and programmes to further promote, protect and fulfil human rights and reinforce its domestic legal framework and has supported actively the global agenda on human rights issues, through the items below.

Family, women children and young people

- Implementation of the Sustainable Coral Reef Management Programme (2013–2020) through Department of Environment and Natural Resources Administrative Order 2013-12

Fully functional national human rights institution

- The Commission on Human Rights — an independent national human rights institution provided for by the 1987 Constitution of the Philippines and established on 5 May 1987 by virtue of Executive Order No. 163 — is mandated to conduct investigations on human rights violations against marginalized and vulnerable sectors of the society, involving civil and political rights. The Commission complies fully with the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (the Paris Principles) and upholds six fundamental characteristics: independence, pluralism, a broad mandate, transparency, accessibility and operational efficiency.

IV. Mainstreaming human rights in the national agenda

13. The Philippines is finalizing its new medium-term five-year National Human Rights Plan (2018–2023), which will continue to mainstream human rights in society. The Plan covers the courses of action of the Government of the Philippines in line with its commitments under the Constitution, domestic laws and international human rights treaties to which it is a State party. It was crafted in consultation with various government agencies and other stakeholders under the supervision of the Presidential Human Rights Committee, an inter-agency body chaired by the Office of the President.

14. The Philippines has mainstreamed human rights in the development of policies, plans and programmes through its national medium-term development plans, the Philippine Development Plans and its long-term development plan, AmBisyon Natin 2040 (“Our Vision 2040”), which is the blueprint of the Government’s economic and social growth agenda that is fully aligned with Agenda 2030 Sustainable Development Goals. The blueprint aims to transform the Philippines as an upper-middle income country and improve the lives and welfare of Filipinos. The Plans incorporate human rights as a cross-cutting agenda and the human rights-based approach to development remains as one of their main guiding principles.

15. The Philippines has continued to prioritize the promotion of economic, social and cultural rights through its continued efforts to eradicate extreme poverty and the strengthening of good governance, with the focused implementation of anti-corruption measures.

16. Based on a development policy framework focused on improving transparency and accountability in governance, improving access to quality social services, enhancing peace and security for development and ensuring ecological integrity, the Government of the Philippines is investing its resources in its people, aiming to improve their quality of life, empower the poor and marginalized and enhance social cohesion as a nation.

17. The Philippines welcomes consultations with civil society at both the national and international levels on human rights issues, especially in the formulation of relevant legislation, policies and programmes, and engages civil society partners in regional and international forums.

V. Contributions to international initiatives on the promotion and protection of human rights and support to the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR)

18. As the main sponsor of General Assembly and Human Rights Council resolutions on combating trafficking in persons, especially women and children, the Philippines is engaged actively in pushing for stronger normative frameworks and better international collaboration to fight the scourge of trafficking in persons.

19. The Philippines also continues to work with partner countries to ensure that the issue of the adverse impact of climate change on the realization of human rights remains at the forefront of discussions at the Human Rights Council. The Philippines continues to be the lead core sponsor of the annual resolution of the Council on human rights and climate change.

20. The Philippines is also a member of the Platform on Human Rights Education and Training that co-sponsors the Human Rights Council resolutions on the implementation of the World Programme for Human Rights Education.

21. The Philippines is likewise a member of the core sponsors of the resolutions of the Human Rights Council on young people, extreme poverty and the role of parliamentarians in the universal periodic review.

22. Consistent with its belief that the protection of the human rights of the most vulnerable should remain the priority of the Human Rights Council, the Philippines consistently co-sponsors initiatives on issues involving the promotion and protection of the human rights of migrants, children, women, indigenous peoples, persons with disabilities and older persons.

23. Cognizant of its role in the international community and the protection of human rights of the most vulnerable, the Philippines takes pride in its efforts in implementing the Convention on the Status of Refugees and the Protocol relating to the Status of Refugees, and its history of opening its doors to refugees and asylum seekers. The Philippines has an established system for refugee and stateless status determination, provides travel documents to recognized persons of concern and offers an emergency transit mechanism in cooperation with the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees.

24. The Philippines also supports the initiatives of OHCHR related to the protection of the human rights of migrants at international borders in its principles and guidelines on human rights for migrants in vulnerable situations.

VI. Pledges and commitments

25. If re-elected to the Human Rights Council, the Philippines reiterates its commitment:

(a) To work with all States and stakeholders in a constructive manner and foster dialogue and cooperation to make the Human Rights Council more efficient and effective as the primary body of the United Nations mandated to strengthen the promotion and protection of human rights, and to address human rights violations;

(b) To continue to focus on bridging national, regional and international human rights goals, standards and strategies;

(c) To continue to enhance domestic implementation of all human rights treaty obligations and programmes, especially with regard to the eradication of extreme poverty, respect for the rule of law and fulfilment of internationally agreed development goals;

(d) To continue to be a voice for vulnerable groups, including migrants, women and children, indigenous peoples, persons with disabilities and older persons, and support human rights-based approaches that address their concerns in a comprehensive, positive and practical way;

(e) To continue to be sensitive to current and emerging challenges that impact on human rights, such as climate change, human trafficking, terrorism and human mobility;

(f) To continue to engage actively with the human rights treaty bodies, special procedures and other mechanisms of the Human Rights Council;

(g) To continue to uphold the universality of the universal periodic review, recognizing its potential to effect real changes on the ground through constructive dialogue and international cooperation;

(h) To continue efforts to promote the efficiency of the Human Rights Council, wherein it currently has a leadership role as one of the Vice Presidents of the Human Rights Council Bureau, and the Permanent Representative of the Philippines to the United Nations in Geneva serves as one of the co-facilitators. The contributions of the Philippines in this regard will hopefully result in a more streamlined and responsive Council able to fully serve its constituents and achieve the noble goal of promoting human rights for all;

(i) To continue to support the important work of national human rights institutions;

(j) To continue to engage in and promote meaningful interaction and cooperation with civil society organizations and other stakeholders on human rights issues, both at the national and international levels;

(k) To continue to promote international initiatives on human rights, such as those on climate change, migration, combating trafficking in persons, human rights education and training, protection of the rights of the child in migration, refugee and other contexts of vulnerability and the realization of the right to development, and to work closely with and support the OHCHR in this regard;

(l) To remain actively engaged in regional human rights mechanisms and support efforts to enhance the promotion and protection of human rights in the ASEAN region.
