Seventy-sixth session

Item 80 of the provisional agenda*

Criminal accountability of United Nations officials and experts on mission

Criminal accountability of United Nations officials and experts on mission

Report of the Secretary-General

Summary

The present report has been prepared pursuant to paragraphs 31 and 32 of General Assembly resolution 75/132. Section II contains a summary of information received from Governments on the extent to which jurisdiction over their nationals while serving as United Nations officials or experts on mission is established under their national laws. Section III provides a summary of the information received from Governments on the handling of credible allegations that reveal that a crime may have been committed by United Nations officials or experts on mission by States against whose nationals such allegations are made, and matters relating thereto. Section IV provides a summary of the information on cooperation among States and with the United Nations in the exchange of information and the facilitation of investigations and prosecutions of such individuals, as well as the protection of victims and witnesses in this process. Section V contains a summary of information on vetting by Member States contributing personnel to the United Nations. Section VI provides a summary of the comments received from Governments on the report of the Group of Legal Experts on ensuring the accountability of United Nations staff and experts on mission with respect to criminal acts committed in peacekeeping operations (A/60/980), including on the question of future action. Sections VII and VIII relate to information on activities within the Secretariat.

* A/76/150.

I. Introduction

1. The present report has been prepared pursuant to General Assembly resolution 75/132, in which the Assembly requested the Secretary-General to report on the implementation of the resolution, in particular with respect to paragraphs 10, 12, 13, 15, 18, 20 and 30 thereof, as well as any practical problems in its implementation, on the basis of information received from Governments and the Secretariat. The present report contains summaries of the information received. The full texts of the information received from Governments will be made available on the website of the Sixth Committee (www.un.org/en/ga/sixth/).

2. Information was received from the following States: Austria, Belgium, Ecuador, El Salvador, Finland, Ghana, Greece, Lithuania, Madagascar, Malta, Netherlands, Norway, Switzerland and United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland.

3. Section II concerns information received relating to the criminal accountability of United Nations officials and experts on mission, pursuant to paragraph 10 of resolution 75/132. Section III concerns information received pursuant to paragraphs 18 to 20 of the resolution, while section IV covers information received under paragraph 12. Section V provides information relating to paragraph 13 of the resolution and section VI relates to information regarding paragraph 15.

4. Sections VII and VIII relate to activities undertaken within the Secretariat in the implementation of paragraphs 6, 13, 14, 18 to 24 and 32 of the resolution.

5. The present report should be read together with previous reports of the Secretary-General under the item on criminal accountability of United Nations officials and experts on mission.¹ As noted in previous reports of the Secretary General, the report, coupled with the work of the Sixth Committee, is but one aspect of the work of the Organization to address issues of accountability within the United Nations. Different reporting mechanisms apply with respect to questions of accountability within the Organization which might bear on questions of criminal accountability of United Nations officials and experts on mission. As noted in previous reports (see, for example, A/75/217), other reports prepared pursuant to other mandates may be relevant to the present item.²

II. Establishment of jurisdiction over crimes of a serious nature

Austria

6. Austria reiterated information previously reported (see A/63/260, A/72/205 and A/74/145).

Ecuador

7. Ecuador reported that, although its national legislation did not contain specific provisions to establish jurisdiction over crimes committed by its nationals while serving as United Nations officials or experts on mission, its Criminal Code established jurisdiction over certain offences committed outside its territory. Pursuant to article 14 (2), the Code applied to offences committed outside Ecuadorian territory in the following cases: (a) when the offence produced effects in Ecuador or in areas subject to its jurisdiction; (b) when the offence was committed abroad, against one or more Ecuadorian persons and had not been tried in the country in which it had been committed; (c) when the offence was committed by public servants while they performed their functions or official duties; (d) when the offence affected legal assets protected by international law, through international instruments ratified by Ecuador, provided that any trial had not been initiated in another jurisdiction; or (e) when the offence constituted a serious violation of human rights, in accordance with the procedural rules established in the Code. Article 400 of the Code established jurisdiction over Ecuadorians or foreigners who committed offences under international law or who violated rights protected under existing international conventions or treaties, provided that they had not been tried in another State.

8. The provisions of the Criminal Code on crimes against the efficiency of public administration established offences related to personnel of the Armed Forces or law enforcement agencies performing functions in peace missions, specifically crimes against the institutional assets of the Armed Forces (art. 290), avoidance of responsibilities by members of the Armed Forces (art. 291), overstepping of mandates in the performance of an act of service (art. 293) and abuse of authority (art. 294).

El Salvador

9. El Salvador reiterated information previously reported (see A/65/185, A/67/213, A/69/210, A/74/145 and A/75/217). In addition, it reported that it had taken the legislative measures necessary to ensure the investigation of crimes that might have been committed by its nationals while serving as United Nations officials or experts on mission. In accordance with article 193 (3) and (4) of its Constitution, the Office of the Attorney General of El Salvador was responsible for leading investigations, with the cooperation of the National Civil Police, and for initiating legal proceedings, either of its own motion or at the request of a party. The Office of the Attorney General was part of the Public Prosecution Service and exercised its competence independently from the other organs of the State. The Office was guided by the principle of legality, among others. According to articles 9 and 13 of its Organic Act, the actions of the Office must be fully in accordance with the Constitution, international treaties and other norms that formed part of the legal order of El Salvador. At the administrative level, the Ministry of Defence of El Salvador had the power to conduct investigations and disciplinary proceedings in respect of personnel stationed at missions who might have engaged in conduct considered to be disciplinary misconduct regulated by military laws and regulations.

Ghana

10. Ghana reported that the legal regime that regulated its armed forces made its personnel serving as United Nations officials and experts on mission accountable for crimes committed while performing such duties. The Code of Service Discipline of the Ghana Armed Forces regulated the activities of service personnel operating at home and abroad. The Armed Forces Act and its regulations created service offences, which had the character of criminal offences. Under section 54, paragraph 3 (b), of the Act, service offences included the contravention by any person of any regulations, orders or instructions published for the general information and guidance of the forces to which that person belonged or was attached or seconded. That could include regulations, orders or instructions published for the general information and guidance of United Nations forces. In section 114 of the Act, “service offence” was defined broadly to include violations of any other enactment committed by a person while subject to the Code. An act or omission of a member of the Ghana Armed Forces that was considered an infraction under any United Nations regulation could also be tried under section 78 of the Act. Under section 80 of the Act, a person could be tried under the Code of Service Discipline regardless of whether the alleged offence had been committed in Ghana.

11. Ghana also reported that steps were being taken through a legislation review to create specific service offences for peace support operations, such as sexual exploitation and abuse.

Greece

12. Greece reiterated information previously reported (see A/68/173, A/70/208, A/74/145 and A/75/217).

Lithuania

13. Lithuania reported that, pursuant to article 5 of its Criminal Code, its citizens and other permanent residents of Lithuania could be held liable for crimes committed abroad. Article 8 of the Criminal Code established that a person who had committed abroad the crimes provided for in articles 5 and 6 would be held criminally liable only when the act committed was recognized as a crime and was punishable under the criminal code of the State in which the crime had been committed and the Lithuanian Criminal Code. Where a person who had committed a crime abroad was prosecuted in Lithuania, but a different penalty was provided for the crime in each country, the penalty could not exceed the maximum penalty specified in the laws of the place of commission. Under article 8 (2), a person who had committed a crime provided for in article 5 of the Criminal Code would not be held liable where he or she: (a) had served the sentence imposed by a foreign court; (b) had been released from serving the entire or a part of the sentence imposed by a foreign court; or (c) had been acquitted or released from criminal liability or punishment by a foreign court's judgment or no penalty had been imposed by reason of the statute of limitation or on other legal grounds provided for in that State.

Madagascar

14. Madagascar reiterated information previously reported (see A/75/217) and expressed its desire for the collaboration of the Secretary-General in working towards expediting prosecution procedures and for technical assistance from States and international organizations in drawing up national legislation.

Malta

15. Malta reported that article 5 of its Criminal Code provided the legal bases for Maltese courts to exercise criminal jurisdiction. It incorporated the personal (nationality) aspect of jurisdiction, which, together with the territorial principle, formed the basis of criminal jurisdiction in Malta. In addition, under article 5 (1) (d), Maltese courts had jurisdiction over any citizen of Malta or permanent resident in Malta who in any place or on board any ship or vessel or on board any aircraft wherever it may be committed an offence against the safety of the Government, disclosed official secrets, committed torture or other inhuman or degrading treatment, forged Government debentures, forged documents or committed bigamy.

16. Under article 5 (1) (g), the nationality of the offender was irrelevant provided that he or she, being in Malta, was a principal or an accomplice in any of the following offences: aggravated illegal arrest, detention or confinement, torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment, rape, abduction, wilful homicide, bodily harm, grievous bodily harm followed by death, threats by means of writings, blackmail and private violence, commercial or industrial fraud, causing an explosion likely to endanger life or property, arson, possession, use of nuclear or radiological material or destruction by the springing of a mine.

17. Article 5 (1) (h) allowed the Maltese authorities to exercise jurisdiction over a person whose extradition had been requested but denied by the minister responsible for justice either because the offender was a Maltese citizen or because of the possibility of the death penalty being imposed. Article 5 (1) (i) conferred jurisdiction over any person who committed an offence that, by express provision of law, constituted an offence even when committed outside Malta.

18. Jurisdiction was also exercised under special legislation, for example, the Dangerous Drugs Ordinance, article 328O of the Criminal Code with respect to the offence of piracy, as well as article 7 (3) of the International Criminal Court Act (chapter 453 of the Laws of Malta), which provided that any citizen of Malta or permanent resident in Malta could be prosecuted for genocide, crimes against humanity or crimes of aggression even if the offence had been committed outside Malta. Article 121C of the Criminal Code also granted jurisdiction to the Maltese criminal courts (over an offence established in the Criminal Code) in relation to unlawful exaction, extortion and bribery (arts. 112 to 141) even if only part of the action giving execution to the offence had taken place in Malta.

Netherlands

19. The Netherlands indicated that the information previously reported (see A/73/129) remained complete.

Norway

20. Norway reiterated information previously reported (see A/72/126, A/74/145 and A/75/217).

Switzerland

21. Switzerland reiterated information previously reported (see A/63/260, A/66/174, A/67/213, A/71/167, A/72/205, A/73/129, A/74/145 and A/75/217).

United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland

22. The United Kingdom reiterated the viewpoints previously expressed (see A/71/167, A/71/167/Corr.1 and A/73/129) and added that the Domestic Abuse Act 2021 extended extraterritorial jurisdiction over United Kingdom nationals and residents in respect of a number of offences, including murder, manslaughter, offences against the person (i.e. various forms of assault), rape and other forms of sexual assault, and also for certain offences of harassment such as stalking and putting a person in fear of violence, as well controlling or coercive behaviour in an intimate or family relationship.

III. Handling of credible allegations that reveal that a crime may have been committed by United Nations officials or experts on mission by States against whose nationals such allegations are made, and matters relating thereto

Belgium

23. Belgium reported that, in 2020, it had been informed by the Secretary-General of an allegation of a serious offence brought against a Belgian national serving as a United Nations official or expert on mission. The information was transmitted directly to the competent judicial authorities. Belgium has informed the Secretary-General of the measures taken in that case and has provided necessary information in response to requests from his Office.

El Salvador

24. El Salvador updated information previously reported (see A/75/217), adding that, according to the records of its General Directorate of the National Civilian Police, proceedings had been initiated in connection with a crime allegedly committed by a national of El Salvador serving as a United Nations official or expert on mission.

Finland

25. Finland reiterated its previous comments (see A/71/167, A/72/205, A/73/129, A/74/145 and A/75/217) and reported that no crimes of a serious nature committed by Finnish nationals while serving as United Nations officials or experts on mission had been brought to the attention of the Finnish authorities. Should such allegations be made, all appropriate measures would be taken to investigate the allegations and prosecute crimes in accordance with Finnish law.

Madagascar

26. Madagascar reported that criminal proceedings for involuntary manslaughter had been initiated against a staff member of the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) in connection with an accident that led to a death.

Switzerland

27. Switzerland reiterated the viewpoints previously presented (see A/73/129, A/74/145 and A/75/217) and reported that all the cases that had been brought to its attention because the alleged offences were said to have been committed on its territory had been handled.

IV. Cooperation between States and with the United Nations in the exchange of information and the facilitation of investigations and prosecutions, and protection of victims and witnesses in this process

Austria

28. Austria reiterated the viewpoints previously presented (see A/64/183) and provided updated information (see A/72/205 and A/74/145) regarding the protection of victims and witnesses under section 65 et seq. of the Austrian Code of Criminal Procedure. Austria added that victims of persistent stalking (section 107a of the Criminal Code), persistent harassment involving telecommunication or computer systems (section 107c of the Criminal Code) and hate speech (section 283 of the Criminal Code), as well as of criminal defamation (section 111 of the Criminal Code), accusation of prior offences for which sentences had been served or waived (section 113 of the Criminal Code), insult (section 115 of the Criminal Code) and false accusation (section 297 of the Criminal Code), if it could be assumed on the basis of certain indications that such an act had been committed by means of a telecommunication or computer system were entitled to psychosocial or legal assistance in order to preserve the victim's rights in the criminal proceedings. Minors who had witnessed violence in their social environment (violence in the family or violence against children) were also entitled to such assistance.

Ecuador

29. Ecuador reported that it was a party to numerous multilateral and bilateral extradition and legal assistance agreements. There was also a legal framework for the protection of victims and witnesses. With regard to legal cooperation, Ecuador provided ongoing support to other countries.

El Salvador

30. El Salvador reiterated information previously reported (see A/74/145 and A/75/217) and added that it had legal tools to ensure that the protection of and care for victims included appropriate treatment that took a gender perspective into account.

Ghana

31. Ghana reported that the refusal by complainants to appear as witnesses was a major challenge. Given that most complainants were non-compellable witnesses, their refusal to testify usually stalled any disciplinary accountability process that the Ghana Armed Forces put in place.

Greece

32. Greece reiterated information previously reported (see A/75/217).

Lithuania

33. Lithuania reported that article 13 of the Constitution prohibited the extradition of Lithuanian citizens, unless an international treaty established otherwise. Under article 9 (1) of its Criminal Code, a Lithuanian citizen who had committed a criminal act in Lithuania or in the territory of another State could be extradited to the foreign State or surrendered to the International Criminal Court solely in accordance with a treaty to which Lithuania was party or a resolution of the Security Council.

34. Mutual legal assistance in criminal cases in Lithuania was provided in accordance with the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure and ratified international agreements. In the absence of an international treaty, reciprocity might be applied as a legal ground for mutual legal assistance. In that case, the mutual legal assistance must not violate the Constitution, national legislation and the fundamental principles of criminal procedure.

35. Lithuania stated that it paid special attention to the protection of both victims and witnesses in criminal proceedings. According to the general rule enshrined in the Code of Criminal Procedure, in each case of criminal investigation, the judge, the prosecutor and the pretrial investigation officer must explain the procedural rights of the participants in the proceedings and ensure that they were able to exercise them. All victims had the right to be informed of the state of the criminal proceedings concerning them, to give evidence, to make requests, to make exclusions, to participate in the assessment of their special protection needs, to have access to the case during the pretrial investigation and the trial, to participate in court proceedings and to give a final speech, to appeal against the actions of the pretrial investigation officer, the prosecutor, the pretrial investigation judge and the court, as well as to appeal against the court judgment or ruling. In each case, no later than the first questioning of the victim, the pretrial investigation officer or the prosecutor must carry out an assessment of the victim's special protection needs, such as the need to use the guarantees established by the Code of Criminal Procedure to protect the victim from mental trauma, criminal impact or other negative consequences determined by personal characteristics, the nature of the crime or the circumstances of its commission. Victims, their family members and witnesses might also be subject to the measures of protection as provided by the Law on the Protection of Participants in Criminal Proceedings and Criminal Intelligence, Justice and Law Enforcement Officials.

36. Lithuania was transposing into the national legislation directive 2012/29/EU of the European Parliament and of the Council of 25 October 2012 establishing minimum standards on the rights, support and protection of victims of crime.

Malta

37. Malta reported that extradition was regulated by the Extradition Act (chapter 276 of the Laws of Malta). Certain rules and principles governing extradition, such as the double criminality rule, applicable extradition offences, the political offence exception and the speciality principle, applied also under Maltese law.

Madagascar

38. Madagascar reiterated information previously reported (see A/75/217). It added that, with respect to the right to defence, under article 53 (1) of Act No. 2017-013 amending and supplementing the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure relating to due process, during the preliminary investigation, any person suspected of having committed a misdemeanour or felony had the right to choose a defence lawyer. Article 53*bis* (1) of the Act provided that, at the initial hearing, suspects who had not chosen a defence lawyer during the preliminary investigation must be advised by the investigating judge or the public prosecutor of their right to choose a defence lawyer.

Norway

39. Norway reiterated information previously reported (see A/74/145 and A/75/217).

V. Vetting by Member States contributing personnel to the United Nations

Ecuador

40. Ecuador reported that, under the leadership of Joint Command of the Armed Forces of Ecuador, military and police personnel underwent training at the Ecuador Peace Missions School Unit before their deployment to work in United Nations peace missions. The United Nations office in Ecuador had a civil affairs department in charge of coordination.

El Salvador

41. El Salvador reiterated information previously reported (see A/74/145 and A/75/217), adding that it had made significant efforts to ensure the application of stringent criteria in the selection of the officials and experts that it sent on mission.

Madagascar

42. Madagascar reported that it agreed with the provisions of paragraph 13 of resolution 75/132 and stated that United Nations officials or experts on mission must also be familiar with the customs and local laws of the host country.

VI. Report of the Group of Legal Experts, including on the question of future action

Ecuador

43. Ecuador expressed the view that it was important for States to take note of the call in paragraph 10 of resolution 75/132 to consider establishing jurisdiction over crimes, particularly those of a serious nature, as known in their existing national criminal laws, committed by their nationals while serving as United Nations officials or experts on mission, at least where the conduct as defined in the law of the State establishing jurisdiction also constituted a crime under the laws of the host State. It considered the request contained in paragraph 9 of resolution 75/132 to be of considerable importance.

44. Ecuador also highlighted the need to restore the credibility and reputation of the accused when the allegations were unfounded and to ensure the protection of United Nations officials and experts on mission who report the commission of serious crimes by other United Nations officials and experts on mission from retaliation or intimidation.

El Salvador

45. El Salvador reiterated information previously reported (see A/74/145 and A/75/217).

Finland

46. Finland reiterated (see A/73/129, A/74/145 and A/75/217) that it remained ready to consider a proposal for a comprehensive international legal framework to ensure that the criminal conduct of United Nations officials and experts on mission was addressed.

Switzerland

47. Switzerland reiterated the viewpoints previously presented (see A/71/167, A/72/205, A/73/129, A/74/145 and A/75/217) and stated that there was an urgent need for progress on the issue.

VII. Bringing credible allegations that reveal that a crime may have been committed by United Nations officials or experts on mission to the attention of the States against whose nationals such allegations are made, and matters relating thereto

48. In paragraphs 18 to 24 and 28 to 32 of resolution 75/132, the General Assembly urged Member States to provide information to the Secretary-General, requested the Secretary-General to provide certain information to the Assembly and requested the United Nations to take certain measures concerning the issue of the criminal accountability of officials and experts on mission.

Criminal conduct of personnel deployed on field missions

49. The Secretary-General continues to refer credible allegations of criminal conduct by United Nations officials and experts on mission to the respective States of nationality of those individuals, as mandated in the General Assembly resolution. In addition, and in accordance with guidance issued in 2018, field missions are expected to cooperate with host States in investigations and prosecutions that may be initiated by host States in such instances. For military personnel deployed in United Nations field missions, immune from prosecutions in host States, the Secretariat continues to follow up with troop-contributing countries on accountability measures taken for substantiated allegations of misconduct, including criminal prosecutions, where applicable.

50. During the reporting period, the Office of Legal Affairs referred 45 cases of credible allegations of criminal conduct involving field personnel,³ including 1 case of sexual exploitation and abuse, to the States of nationality of the individuals concerned (see annex I to the present report).

Referrals in relation to officials or experts on mission during the period from 1 July 2020 to 30 June 2021

51. The request in paragraph 18 of resolution 75/132 is similar to that made by the General Assembly in paragraph 18 of resolutions 74/181 (see A/75/217 covering the 2019/20 period), 73/196 (see A/74/145 covering the 2018/19 period) and 72/112 (see A/73/129 covering the 2017/18 period), paragraph 17 of resolution 71/134 (see A/72/205 covering the 2016/17 period), paragraph 15 of resolution 70/114 (see A/71/167, covering the 2015/16 period), and paragraph 9 of resolutions 69/114 (see A/70/208, covering the 2014/15 period), 68/105 (see A/69/210, covering the 2013/14 period), 67/88 (see A/68/173, covering the 2012/13 period), 66/93 (see A/67/213, covering the 2011/12 period), 65/20 (see A/66/174, covering the 2010/11 period), 64/110 (see A/65/185, covering the 2009/10 period), 63/119 (see A/64/183, covering the 2008/09 period) and 62/63 (see A/63/260, covering the 2007/08 period).

52. During the period from 1 July 2020 to 30 June 2021, the Office of Legal Affairs referred to States of nationality, through the permanent missions concerned, 67 cases involving 67 United Nations officials and experts on mission for investigation and possible prosecution. Of those cases, 6 concerned allegations of corruption and fraud, of which 1 also involved allegations of sexual exploitation and abuse, while 2 also involved allegations of theft; 16 concerned allegations of fraud; 39 concerned allegations of entitlement fraud; 5 concerned allegations of sexual exploitation and/or abuse, of which, as indicated above, 1 also involved allegations of corruption and fraud; 1 concerned allegations of physical assault; and 1 concerned allegations of abuse and vandalism. Additional details regarding those cases, as requested in paragraph 32 of resolution 75/132, are contained in annex I to the present report.

Updates from States on the status of their efforts to investigate and, as appropriate, prosecute cases, as well as assistance requested from the Secretariat

53. In accordance with paragraph 20 of resolution 75/132, the Secretariat requested the States to which cases were referred to keep the United Nations informed of any action taken by national authorities in relation to such cases, and followed up on cases for which it did not receive a response from the Member State concerned. As at the date of preparation of the present report, the Secretariat has been informed in 10 cases of action taken in relation to referrals made during the reporting period. Annex I also reflects the responses received from States during the reporting period in relation to referrals made in previous reporting periods.

Information on the nature of the allegations and information received from States on all referrals since 1 July 2007

54. Annex I to the present report contains information on referrals of credible allegations to States of nationality pursuant to resolution 62/63 and subsequent resolutions on the criminal accountability of United Nations officials and experts on mission. It also contains information and updates received from States in response to such referrals since 1 July 2007, and specific categories of information relating to the credible allegations referred. In addition, annex I contains the dates of follow-up requests sent by the Secretariat to such States, as requested by the General Assembly in paragraph 32 of resolution 75/132.

Notifications received from States with respect to investigations or prosecutions of crimes allegedly committed by United Nations officials or experts on mission

55. In paragraph 19 of resolution 75/132, the General Assembly requested the Secretary-General to seek, from all States that had notified the United Nations with respect to investigations or prosecutions of crimes allegedly committed by United Nations officials or experts on mission, updates on the status of their investigations or prosecutions, provided that such updates would not prejudice national investigations or national proceedings. In accordance with paragraphs 19 and 32 of resolution 75/132, annex II to the present report provides information on 22 investigations or prosecutions concerning United Nations officials or experts on mission of which the Organization was notified during the reporting period, and as to which the State concerned did not object to their inclusion in the present report. Annex II also includes information on three cases from the previous reporting period that were not included in the previous report (A/75/217), because the information on those cases was not yet available during the preparation of that report.

Possible use by States exercising jurisdiction of information from United Nations investigations

56. In paragraph 22 of resolution 75/132, the General Assembly requested the United Nations, when its investigations into allegations suggested that crimes of a serious nature may have been committed by United Nations officials or experts on mission, to consider any appropriate measures that may facilitate the possible use of information and material for purposes of criminal proceedings initiated by States, bearing in mind due process considerations. In the same vein, in paragraph 24 of resolution 75/132, the Assembly urged the United Nations to continue to cooperate with States exercising jurisdiction in order to provide them, within the framework of the relevant rules of international law and agreements governing activities of the United Nations, with information and material for purposes of criminal proceedings initiated by States.

57. In that regard, it is important to recall that the legal framework within which the referrals are made by the United Nations and the role of the Secretary-General have been outlined in a previous report of the Secretary-General on criminal accountability of United Nations officials and experts on mission (see A/63/260, sect. IV).

58. The United Nations cooperates with law enforcement and judicial authorities of relevant Member States in accordance with its rights and obligations under the Charter of the United Nations and the Convention on the Privileges and Immunities of the United Nations, adopted by the General Assembly on 13 February 1946, as well as other relevant international agreements and applicable legal principles. Accordingly, the Organization will disclose documents and/or information and waive immunity on a case-by-case basis where, in the opinion of the Secretary-General, immunity would impede the course of justice and can be waived without prejudice to the interests of the United Nations. Consequently, information obtained by the United Nations may be provided to the relevant authorities and documents may be shared, subject to considerations of confidentiality and privileges and immunities. Documents may be redacted where necessary. It should be noted that, since the United Nations does not have any criminal investigative or prosecutorial jurisdiction, the use of any documents of information provided by the United Nations, including their admissibility in any legal proceedings, is a matter for determination by the relevant judicial authorities to whom such documents or information have been provided.

Protection of United Nations officials and experts on mission from retaliation

59. For information responding to paragraphs 23 and 25 of resolution 75/132, the situation remains the same as reported in previous reports of the Secretary-General (see, for example, A/70/208, paras. 34–35). In addition, a revised Secretary-General’s bulletin on protection against retaliation for reporting misconduct and for cooperating with duly authorized audits or investigations (ST/SGB/2017/2/Rev.1) was issued on 28 November 2017.

VIII. Practical measures to strengthen existing predeployment training and vetting measures

60. The Secretary-General continues to expect that United Nations personnel selected by the Organization have and maintain the highest standards of integrity. To that effect, external applicants for staff positions are required to report any criminal record that they may have, while current staff members must also report to the Organization when convicted of a criminal offence. Similarly, the Secretariat continues to request that Member States providing personnel for United Nations field missions certify that those personnel have no criminal records or records of past misconduct. For its part, the Organization will verify its own records for instances of misconduct during prior assignments with the United Nations. For field missions, this practice has been gradually put in place since 2007 and all personnel, whether civilian, military or police, are subject to this vetting. Technical enhancements are being completed to expand the capability to similarly conduct this vetting on prior misconduct for personnel across the Secretariat. Information available to the Secretariat is also entered in the ClearCheck database put in place to record substantiated allegations of sexual exploitation and abuse, as well as sexual harassment. Information from the database is shared with other participating United Nations entities.

61. The Organization continues to ensure that staff members joining the United Nations and police and military personnel being deployed in field missions are made fully aware of the Organization’s expectations that they will abide by the United Nations standards of conduct, including the obligation to respect host countries’ laws. To that effect, staff members must complete a series of mandatory training courses related to the United Nations standards of conduct, and the Secretariat continues to make available to Member States training materials for predeployment training of police and military personnel, which include specific information on the need to comply with national laws and possible consequences for failure to do so. These materials are available in different formats, including a mandatory e-learning course on sexual exploitation and abuse with different delivery options for use in national training programmes. The Secretariat has engaged and continues to engage with colleagues working in national and international peacekeeping training institutions, civil society and government institutions that contribute to preparing civilian, military and police personnel for service in United Nations field missions. Finally, field missions continue to deliver induction training on arrival to civilian, police and military personnel, as well as refresher training, and to otherwise raise the awareness of personnel on the United Nations standards of conduct, through various communication methods.
