THE FINANCIAL SITUATION OF THE UNITED NATIONS

Report of the Secretary-General

I. INTRODUCTION

1. A report and three addenda on the financial situation of the United Nations were submitted to the General Assembly at its forty-sixth session. Document A/46/600, dated 24 October 1991, which outlined the financial situation as at 30 September 1991, noted that persistent shortfalls in the receipt of assessed contributions, to both the regular budget and to peace-keeping operations, had led to the need for internal borrowing, and concluded that this palliative would no longer be feasible once the cash requirements exceeded the funds available in the regular budget and all peace-keeping accounts. Substantial contributions to the regular budget were however received during the last quarter of 1991, and the cash available in the General Fund as at 31 December 1991 amounted to $70 million. A large portion of this, in rounded terms $46 million or 66 per cent, represented the advance payments by four countries of their estimated assessments for 1992.

2. Document A/46/600/Add.1, dated 19 November 1991, subtitled "Proposals to address the problems of today and tomorrow", presented a number of possible measures regrouped under three headings, i.e. measures to address the current situation; establishment of a Humanitarian Revolving Fund; and establishment of a United Nations Peace Endowment Fund. The related report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions was contained in document A/46/765. The General Assembly initiated its deliberations on this subject, both in plenary meetings and in the Fifth Committee. Subsequently, in his report entitled "An agenda for peace" (A/47/277-S/24111), the Secretary-General proposed additional measures to address the financial situation of the Organization. Those proposals were also outlined in the annual report of the Secretary-General on the work of the Organization (A/47/1). 1/

3. Two further addenda to the report on the financial situation of the Organization were prepared by the Secretariat in May and July 1992 (A/46/600/Add.2 of 15 May 1992 and A/46/600/Add.3 of 23 July 1992). Both documents provided information on the current financial situation of the Organization and on projected estimates of receipts and expenditures for the regular budget and for peace-keeping operations. In July, it was anticipated that an overall deficit of some $55 million would occur in November and that without an immediate inflow of cash the Organization would have to cease its operations.

4. The present report to the General Assembly at its forty-seventh session summarizes the current financial situation of the United Nations and indicates prospects for the financing of the Organization's activities until the end of 1992. It also presents, in annex I, the various proposals made by the Secretary-General to address the financial problems of the United Nations. These proposals, contained in document A/46/600/Add.1 and in the report entitled "An agenda for peace", are submitted for consideration by the General Assembly at its forty-seventh session.

II. FINANCING OF THE REGULAR BUDGET

5. After decades of disagreement on the budget of the United Nations and negative votes or abstentions on the part of several major contributors, the proposed programme budget for the biennium 1992-1993 2/ was adopted by the General Assembly by consensus. Such has been the case for all budget decisions since the launching of a new budgetary process through General Assembly resolution 41/213 of 19 December 1986. At the same time, financial regulation 5.4, also adopted by the General Assembly, states that "contributions [to the programme budget] and advances [to the Working Capital Fund] shall be considered as due and payable in full within thirty days of the receipt of the communication of the Secretary-General [informing Member States of their commitments and requesting them to remit their contributions and advances]". Thus, at the beginning of January 1992, Member States were assessed for a total amount of $1,037.4 million and were expected to pay within a month.

6. Nevertheless, by the end of January, only 15 Member States had paid on time and in full their contributions to the regular budget of the United Nations. Three months later, at the end of April, 24 additional Member States had done so, and by the end of September a total of 66 Member States, or slightly more than one third of the total membership, had paid their full assessments for the regular budget of the Organization.

7. The limited compliance with regulation 5.4 is compounded with an absence of reserves. Also, this year, both the major contributor and the Member State with the third largest assessment had yet to pay their assessed contributions by the end of September. The result was that, with monthly disbursements averaging $93 million, the cash available to the Secretary-General to fulfil his obligations under the regular budget was only $71 million at the end of April and $5 million at the end of May. After a respite in June/July due to payments by two major contributors, there was no more cash available in the General Fund of the United Nations in August. At the end of that month, and again in September, it became necessary to borrow from peace-keeping funds to finance the daily functioning of the Organization.

8. Anticipated payments in October totalling $250 million, essentially by the major contributor, would enable the Organization to meet its monthly expenditures until the end of November. Current estimates of additional contributions in November and December, totalling $58 million apart from possible advanced contributions towards the 1993 assessments would mean that the Organization would close 1992 with a deficit of $12 million in its regular budget.

9. The usable cash balances in the General Fund at the end of each quarter for the past three years, including a projection as at 31 December 1992, are given below. It should be noted that there has seldom been sufficient cash on hand to meet the following month's regular budget requirements.

10. Such insufficient and precarious financing of the regular budget of the United Nations has been a feature of the life of the Organization during these past few years. The percentages of annual regular budget assessed contributions paid since 1985 as at 30 June, 30 September and 31 December are given below. An improvement in collections in the first six months of 1992 is more than offset by poor collections in the third quarter, resulting in a much worse than average collection pattern as at 30 September. It should also be noted that the percentage of current-year contributions paid at 31 December 1991 represents an all-time low.

31 December	72.1	70.3	63.8	66.0	66.4	65.3	61.0

11. With three months left in 1992, unpaid contributions to the regular budget totalled $826.3 million, of which $357.5 million was outstanding for 1991 and prior years and $468.8 million relates to 1992. The total amount outstanding is the equivalent of 80 per cent of the regular budget assessment for 1992. A year ago at this time, total outstanding contributions represented 75 per cent of the 1991 assessment. The status of contributions to the regular budget as at 30 September 1992 is given in annex II to the present report.

12. More Member States however paid their regular budget dues at this point in 1992 than in 1991 or 1990. The apparent contradiction between this progress and a worsening situation in dollar terms is due to a lack of payment on the part of the third major contributor in 1992. Thus, while more Member States have paid their assessments in full in 1992, the total amount collected through 30 September in respect of the current year's assessment is less than in 1991. A summary of the payment patterns of Member States is given below:

Paid in full:	66 States as at 30 September 1992

III. FINANCING OF PEACE-KEEPING OPERATIONS

13. The growth in United Nations peace-keeping operations has been dramatic in recent years, and in 1992 the Organization has undertaken two very large new operations simultaneously. While delays in the receipt of assessed contributions for peace-keeping operations have exacerbated the financial difficulties of the United Nations, the demands for timely and adequate financing during the critical start-up period are particularly pressing. One of the measures proposed by the Secretary-General addresses this problem.

14. There are currently eight peace-keeping operations financed by assessed contributions: the United Nations Disengagement Observer Force (UNDOF); the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon (UNIFIL); the United Nations Angola Verification Mission (UNAVEM I and II); the United Nations Iraq-Kuwait Observation Mission (UNIKOM); the United Nations Mission for the Referendum in Western Sahara (MINURSO); the United Nations Observer Mission in El Salvador (ONUSAL); the United Nations Transitional Authority in Cambodia (UNTAC); and the United Nations Protection Force (UNPROFOR). In addition, there are three recently completed peace-keeping operations for which the accounts are still open and outstanding contributions are still being sought. They are: the United Nations Iran-Iraq Military Observer Group (UNIIMOG); the United Nations Transitional Assistance Group (UNTAG); and the United Nations Observer Group in Central America (ONUCA). Finally, a new peace-keeping operation, in respect of which assessments have not yet been raised, is under way: the United Nations Operation in Somalia (UNOSOM). Not included in this analysis is the United Nations Peace-keeping Force in Cyprus (UNFICYP), which is financed by voluntary contributions.

15. As at 30 September 1992, outstanding contributions to current peace-keeping operations financed by assessment totalled $644 million. A summary of experience in 1992 to date, recorded by individual operation, shows the following:

	Balance due 1 Jan. 1992	Assessment in 1992 Period	Amount	Collected in 1992	Balance due 30 Sept. 1992

UNIFIL	264.1	2/92-7/92	75.8	112.5	227.4
UNAVEM I and II	14.9	1/92-10/92	56.6	47.9	23.6
UNIKOM	9.1	10/91-10/92	60.9	38.0	32.0
MINURSO	55.3	None		34.2	21.1
ONUSAL	6.2	1/92-10/92	36.3	29.3	13.2
UNTAC (inc. UNAMIC)		11/91-10/92	835.1	609.0	226.1
UNPROFOR		1/92-10/92	250.5	186.3	64.2

UNTAG	3.4	None		1.1	2.3
ONUCA	6.7	11/91-4/92	12.1	6.1	12.7
Total	376.9		1 362.5	1 095.4	644.0

16. The foregoing table shows that assessments made for peace-keeping operations during 1992 exceed the amounts assessed under the regular budget. Amounts collected in 1992 to date reflect a slightly higher overall ratio of collections to assessments than is the case with the regular budget. On the other hand, collections have not taken place evenly, with the result that certain operations have been unable to meet their obligations and have had to resort to borrowing from other peace-keeping operations. It should be noted that appropriations and assessments have not been made beyond October 1992 for a number of ongoing peace-keeping operations, including UNTAC and UNPROFOR.

17. In certain peace-keeping operations financed by assessed contributions, it is estimated that as at 31 December 1992 unpaid debts to Member States which have participated in these peace-keeping operations under agreements with the United Nations that provided for reimbursement for the services rendered, mainly for the provision of troops, will amount to some $200 million. Thus, the troop-contributing countries continue to bear the burden of the effect of the shortfall in payment of assessed contributions for peace-keeping operations.

IV. OVERALL FINANCIAL SITUATION

18. The continuing increase in the level of outstanding contributions, both for the regular budget and for assessed peace-keeping operations, is illustrated below.

19. Annex IV to the present report provides a listing of the outstanding contributions from Member States totalling $1,470.4 million as at 30 September 1992, for both the regular budget and peace-keeping operations financed by assessed contributions. Including Sweden and Norway, which appear in annex IV with outstanding contributions to peace-keeping operations of less than $100, eighteen Member States had met all their financial obligations to the United Nations by 30 September 1992.

20. Within current mandates, cash needs for peace-keeping operations in the last three months of the year will amount to about $575 million. The regular budget will need about $325 million. Against this total of $900 million, combined cash on hand at the end of September 1992 that is peace-keeping cash, since there is a shortfall for the regular budget amounts to about $500 million. Accordingly, at least $400 million must be collected between now and the end of the year. Otherwise the regular budget and all of the peace-keeping operations will run out of money simultaneously.

21. While it is clear that an immediate and continuing inflow of cash is needed in order for the Organization to survive, what is less immediately apparent is how the United Nations has managed for so long with unpaid contributions of this magnitude, and what the consequences would be if the outstanding contributions were to be paid in full. Reduced to its simplest language, an organization which cannot collect its debts cannot pay its debts. The United Nations is liable to its Member States, under the Financial Regulations, to repay any balances of appropriations or miscellaneous income remaining at the end of a financial period. By action of the General Assembly, distribution of balances arising in the regular budget, UNIFIL and UNDOF has been suspended on a number of occasions, enabling the United Nations to withhold payment of about $350 million. A further $75 million may become available in residual balances of UNTAG and UNIIMOG (though some of this has been proposed for transfer to a peace-keeping reserve fund). Unpaid amounts due to troop-contributing countries amount to about $200 million, and there are other routine balances due to creditors, in all funds, which are expected to total between $150 million and $200 million by the end of the year. If outstanding assessed contributions were to be paid in full, the Organization could pay all these debts and be left with enough cash to replenish the Working Capital Fund (currently $100 million) and the Special Account (currently $140 million).

22. However, in the absence of collections, the current outlook is bleak. As noted above, the cash position in the General Fund (Regular Budget) is especially critical. Available reserves have again been exhausted, and the Secretary-General has again been required to borrow from peace-keeping funds, notably from UNTAG. In 1991, short-term borrowing was needed for a total of 67 days in the months of July, August, September, October and December, with a maximum at one time of $61 million. In 1992, borrowing began in August, and by 2 October had reached a total of $79 million. UNTAG has advanced this amount to the General Fund from accumulated savings and from amounts being held to reimburse troop contributors for contingent-owned equipment and supplies furnished to the mission. This is clearly unsatisfactory, and has been necessitated by delays in the payment of assessed contributions to the regular budget.

23. Intrinsically unacceptable, as stemming from the neglect by a number of Member States of their legal obligations towards the Organization, the persistent financial difficulties of the United Nations are becoming politically incongruous and increasingly damaging to the implementation of mandated programmes. These difficulties are politically incongruous in that Member States adopt both regular and peace-keeping budgets by consensus, and have an unprecedented and broad agreement on the principles that sustain the Organization and on its role in addressing world problems. And they are increasingly damaging to the functioning of the United Nations and its capacity to implement its mandates because financial considerations play an inordinately important role in the choice of activities and priorities, and financial problems absorb an amount of time and energy that would be better used to address the intellectual and ethical issues that confront the Organization. Budgetary rigour, financial control and efficiency in the use of resources would be greatly facilitated by a predictable and healthy financial base. The Secretary-General has repeatedly stressed that the only solution to the financial crisis is full and timely payment by all Member States of their assessed contributions. Should the General Assembly, sovereign in these matters, decide to review and revise the basic principles and regulations derived from the relevant Articles of the Charter, the Secretariat would assist Member States to the best of its ability. Until then, there is no choice but the strict implementation of the existing agreements sanctioned by General Assembly resolutions. The measures proposed by the Secretary-General to address the financial problems of the Organization must be seen in this context.

Annex I

PROPOSALS MADE BY THE SECRETARY-GENERAL TO ADDRESS THE FINANCIAL SITUATION OF THE ORGANIZATION

A. Proposals made in the report of the Secretary-General on the financial situation of the United Nations
(A/46/600/Add.1)

Proposal one

(a) Charging interest on the amounts of assessed contributions that are not paid on time;

(b) Suspending certain financial regulations of the United Nations to permit the retention of budgetary surpluses;

(c) Increasing the Working Capital Fund to a level of $250 million and endorsing the principle that the level of the Fund should be approximately 25 per cent of the annual assessment under the regular budget;

(d) Establishment of a temporary Peace-keeping Reserve Fund, at a level of $50 million, to meet initial expenses of peace-keeping operations pending receipt of assessed contributions;

(e) Authorization to the Secretary-General to borrow commercially, should other sources of cash be inadequate.

Proposal two

Creation of a Humanitarian Revolving Fund in the order of $50 million, to be used in emergency humanitarian situations. The proposal has since been implemented.

Proposal three

Establishment of a United Nations Peace Endowment Fund, with an initial target of $1 billion.

B. Additional proposals made in the report of the Secretary-General on preventive diplomacy, peacemaking and peace-keeping, "An agenda for peace" (A/47/277-S/24111)

(a) Immediate establishment of a revolving peace-keeping reserve fund of $50 million;

(b) Agreement that one third of the estimated cost of each new peace-keeping operation would be appropriated by the General Assembly as soon as the Security Council decided to establish the operation; this would give the Secretary-General the necessary commitment authority and assure an adequate cash flow; the balance of the costs would be appropriated after the General Assembly approved the operation's budget;

(c) Acknowledgement by Member States that, under exceptional circumstances, political and operational considerations may make it necessary for the Secretary-General to employ his authority to place contracts without competitive bidding.

C. Other ideas added in recent months in the course of public discussion and mentioned in the report of the Secretary-General on preventive diplomacy, peacemaking and peace-keeping, "An agenda for peace" (A/47/277-S/24111)

(a) A levy on arms sales that could be related to maintaining an Arms Register by the United Nations;

(b) A levy on international air travel, which is dependent on the maintenance of peace;

(c) Authorization for the United Nations to borrow from the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund for peace and development are interdependent;

(d) General tax exemption for contributions made to the United Nations by foundations, businesses and individuals;

(e) Changes in the formula for calculating the scale of assessments for peace-keeping operations.
