

General Assembly

Distr.: Limited
9 July 2019

Original: English

Human Rights Council

Forty-first session

24 June–12 July 2019

Agenda item 3

Promotion and protection of all human rights, civil, political, economic, social and cultural rights,
including the right to development

Albania,* Argentina, Australia, Austria, Belgium,* Bolivia (Plurinational State of),*
Brazil, Bulgaria, Canada,* Chile, Croatia, Czechia, Denmark, Ecuador,* Eswatini,* Ethiopia,* Finland,* Georgia,* Germany,* Greece,* Hungary, Iceland, Indonesia,* Latvia,* Liechtenstein,* Lithuania,* Luxembourg,* Malta,* Montenegro,* Morocco,*
Netherlands,* Poland,* Portugal,* Republic of Moldova,* Romania,* Slovakia, Slovenia,* Sweden,* Tunisia, Ukraine, United Arab Emirates,* United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland: draft resolution

41/... The negative impact of corruption on the enjoyment of human rights

The Human Rights Council,

Guided by the Charter of the United Nations,

Reaffirming the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the International Covenants on Human Rights and other relevant international human rights instruments,

Recalling all relevant resolutions of the Commission on Human Rights and the Human Rights Council,

Recalling also that the United Nations Convention against Corruption, to which 140 States are signatories and 186 States are parties, has been the most comprehensive and universal instrument on corruption since its entry into force on 14 December 2005, the purposes of which are outlined in its article 1,

Reaffirming that States have the primary responsibility for the promotion and protection of human rights,

Noting with interest the outcomes of the sessions of the Conference of the States Parties to the United Nations Convention against Corruption, and stressing the need for States parties to the Convention to ensure the effective implementation of the decisions and resolutions adopted by the Conference,

Welcoming the upcoming eighth session of the Conference of the States Parties to the United Nations Convention against Corruption, to be held in Abu Dhabi in December 2019,

* State not a member of the Human Rights Council.

Taking note of the conclusions contained in the summary of the expert workshop on good practices of United Nations-system support to States in preventing and fighting against corruption, with a focus on human rights,¹

Acknowledging that the poor, marginalized and vulnerable groups of society are at particular risk of suffering from the adverse impact of corruption on the enjoyment of human rights,

Recognizing that improvements in the promotion and protection of human rights at the domestic level have a central role to play in the prevention of and the fight against corruption at all levels,

Recognizing also that good governance, democracy and the rule of law, and the promotion and protection of human rights and fundamental freedoms, including the right to seek, receive and impart information, the right to take part in the conduct of public affairs and the right to a fair trial before a competent, independent and impartial court, established by law, are essential in domestic efforts to prevent and fight against corruption,

Highlighting the global character of corruption and the consequential need for international cooperation to prevent and suppress corruption and to recover assets of illicit origin derived from acts of corruption,

Recognizing the increasing awareness in the international community of the detrimental impact of widespread corruption on human rights through both the weakening of institutions and the erosion of public trust in government, and through the impairment of the ability of Governments to fulfil all their human rights obligations and to realize, within the maximum available resources, the Sustainable Development Goals,

Recognizing also the importance of creating a safe and enabling environment, in law and in practice, for civil society, whistle-blowers, witnesses, anti-corruption activists, journalists, prosecutors, lawyers and judges, and of protecting these individuals from any threats arising from their activities in preventing and fighting against corruption,

Recognizing further that independent media and a diverse and pluralistic media landscape play an important role in ensuring transparency and scrutiny, which includes reporting on, investigating and exposing corruption and increasing public awareness of the link between corruption and human rights violations,

Underlining the importance of an independent and impartial judiciary, an independent legal profession, an objective and impartial prosecution and the integrity of the judicial system to prevent and fight corruption and to address its negative impact on human rights, in line with the rule of law and the right to a fair trial, to access to justice and to an effective remedy, without discrimination,

Emphasizing that human rights education and awareness-raising campaigns and other measures are important enablers for the prevention of and the fight against corruption,

Acknowledging that the State should protect against any adverse human rights impact arising from acts of corruption involving non-State actors, including the private sector, through effective regulatory and investigative mechanisms, with a view to holding perpetrators to account, recovering assets of illicit origin derived from acts of corruption and providing redress to victims,

Recalling the obligation of States parties to the United Nations Convention against Corruption to implement policies in accordance with article 5 of the Convention, with a view to fighting corruption, and inviting States to address the prevention and effect of corruption in the development of relevant national action plans, including plans on business and human rights,

Highlighting that States shall, in accordance with their respective legal systems, endeavour to establish and promote effective practices aimed at the prevention of corruption and its impact on the enjoyment of human rights, and to periodically evaluate relevant legal instruments and administrative measures with a view to determining their adequacy to prevent and fight corruption, including by ensuring transparency, access to public information, accountability, non-discrimination and meaningful participation in the conduct of public affairs,

¹ A/HRC/41/20.

Observing that corruption frequently results in discriminatory access to public services and goods, and renders those in vulnerable situations more prone to adversely suffering from the negative social and environmental impact of economic activities,

Highlighting that national human rights institutions could play an important role in raising awareness and promoting educational and training activities regarding the impact of corruption on human rights, through their complaint procedures, investigations and analysis,

Recognizing the opportunities provided by open data and digital technologies to strengthen transparency and accountability and to prevent, detect and investigate corruption,

Stressing the importance of indicators, as appropriate, for measuring the negative impact of corruption on the enjoyment of human rights and on the realization of the Sustainable Development Goals,

Underlining the importance of the Human Rights Council mechanisms, such as the universal periodic review, and the treaty bodies in raising awareness and strengthening the commitment to tackle the negative impact of corruption,

Underlining also the importance of mainstreaming anti-corruption efforts into national development strategies and processes in order to address corruption and to achieve the Sustainable Development Goals,

Welcoming the engagement of States parties to the United Nations Convention against Corruption through appropriate measures, such as the development of national plans of action to strengthen implementation of the Convention at the domestic level and participation in the Mechanism for the Review of Implementation of the United Nations Convention against Corruption, aimed at identifying gaps and assisting States parties in meeting the objectives of the Convention,

1. Urges States that have not yet done so to consider ratifying or acceding to the United Nations Convention against Corruption, and calls upon States parties to the Convention to effectively implement it;

2. Recognizes the negative impact of widespread corruption on the enjoyment of human rights, including by reducing the resources available for all sectors thereby hampering the realization of all human rights;

3. Welcomes the commitments made by all States in Sustainable Development Goal 16 and its target 16.5 to substantially reduce corruption and bribery in all their forms;

4. Looks forward to the contribution expected from the upcoming meeting of the high-level political forum on sustainable development, which has as its theme “Empowering people and ensuring inclusiveness and equality”, to be held from 9 to 18 July 2019, in New York, at which the forum will discuss, among other things, Sustainable Development Goal 16, a very important goal in the efforts to combat corruption;

5. Underlines the necessity to step up cooperation and coordination among different stakeholders, including the private sector and civil society, at the national, regional and international levels to fight corruption in all its forms as a means of contributing positively to the promotion and protection of human rights;

6. Stresses that preventive measures are one of the most effective means of countering corruption and of avoiding its negative impact on the enjoyment of human rights, calls for the strengthening of prevention measures at all levels, and underlines that one key aspect of preventive measures is to address the needs of those in vulnerable situations who may be the first victims of corruption;

7. Urges States to create and maintain, in law and in practice, while addressing the negative impact of corruption on the enjoyment of human rights, a safe and enabling environment in which civil society can operate free from hindrance and insecurity;

8. Recognizes that the negative impact of corruption on human rights and sustainable development can be prevented and addressed through anti-corruption education, and notes with appreciation the capacity-building activities and specialized curricula developed by relevant institutions, such as the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime and the International Anti-Corruption Academy;

9. Encourages national anti-corruption authorities and national human rights institutions, where they exist, to cooperate through the exchange of information, where appropriate, and the development of joint strategies and plans of action to fight corruption and its negative impact on the enjoyment of human rights;

10. Invites the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights and the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime, as the secretariat of the Conference of the States Parties to the United Nations Convention against Corruption, to exchange views and to keep each other abreast of ongoing activities to deepen the understanding of the nexus between corruption and human rights, as appropriate and within their respective mandates, under the aegis of the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime;

11. Encourages the mechanisms of the Human Rights Council to consider, within their existing mandates, the issue of the negative impact of corruption on the enjoyment of human rights, and encourages treaty bodies to take into account the impact of corruption on human rights in their activities and recommendations;

12. Stresses the importance of policy coherence among the intergovernmental processes in Geneva, Vienna and New York on the issue of corruption and its impact on human rights;

13. Requests the Office of the High Commissioner to prepare a report on the challenges faced and best practices applied by States in integrating human rights into their national strategies and policies to fight against corruption, including those addressing non-State actors, such as the private sector, and to submit the report to the Human Rights Council at its forty-fourth session;

14. Decides to remain seized of this issue.
