Permanent Forum on Indigenous Issues

Sixth session

New York, 14-25 May 2007

Item 4 of the provisional agenda*

Implementation of recommendations on the six mandated areas of the Forum and on the Millennium Development Goals

Information received from the United Nations system and other inter-governmental organizations

International Fund for Agricultural Development

Summary

Acknowledging the importance of indigenous peoples development and the centrality of the mandate of the International Fund for Agricultural Development (IFAD), in compliance with the recommendations of the Permanent Forum at its fifth session, the Fund reports that in 2006 it has approved a number of projects that specifically targeted indigenous peoples and ethnic minorities for a total amount of $93.6 million in loans and $1.64 million in grants.

In response to the recommendation of the Permanent Forum, made at its sixth session, in 2007 IFAD will develop its principles of engagement with indigenous peoples. In addition, in 2006, IFAD responded to the Permanent Forum recommendations as specified below:

- Financed two “Learning route” training programmes focused on indigenous tourism activities, through the Regional Programme in Support of Indigenous Peoples in the Amazon Basin
- Sponsored, in cooperation with other institutional partners, the fourth Anaconda Film Festival in Latin America
- Funded two studies in India, one on data disaggregation and human development index and one on traditional and local governance

* E/C.19/2007/1.

- Held a policy forum at its headquarters on indigenous issues
- Invited the Chair of the Permanent Forum to address its Executive Board
- Hosted the annual meeting of the Inter-Agency Support Group on Indigenous Issues
- Organized an exhibition on the arts and traditions of tribal peoples of India

I. Response of the International Fund for Agricultural Development to the specific recommendations of the Forum

A. Response to recommendation 16¹

Establish an institutional partnership with indigenous peoples so that they can fully participate in IFAD projects and programmes that are relevant to indigenous peoples.

1. The International Fund for Agricultural Development (IFAD) has from its early years been involved in the development of indigenous peoples thanks to its targeted and participatory approach to rural development. The Fund has so far provided approximately $1.18 million in loans and $15.65 million in grants in support of indigenous peoples. Starting in 2002, in preparation for the World Summit on Sustainable Development in Johannesburg, South Africa, IFAD worked proactively on advocacy with indigenous peoples beyond the confines of its projects. Since then, the Fund has established a close partnership with the Forum and the Inter-Agency Support Group on Indigenous Issues, and has provided funds to the Forum's secretariat to consult with indigenous peoples and communities on the impact of selected IFAD projects and whether the projects were in line with the Forum's principles, concepts and practices of development. In September 2006, the Chair of the Forum was invited to deliver a speech to the Fund Executive Board on "Enhancing the partnership of the United Nations Permanent Forum on Indigenous Issues with IFAD". In an effort to further enhance and institutionalize its dialogue with indigenous peoples, in 2007 IFAD will develop its corporate principles of engagement with indigenous peoples.

B. Response to recommendation 164²

Contribute to fellowship programme established within the secretariat of the Permanent Forum.

2. On the basis of proposals received by the Permanent Forum for supporting the indigenous fellowship programme, IFAD is considering extending grant financing to the secretariat of the Permanent Forum. However, in order to be considered, proposals must meet the Fund's grant policy criteria, and their approval is subject to technical evaluation and revision. In addition, grant financing can only be extended to organizations after the successful completion of previous grants (ongoing grant No. 810 to the Permanent Forum secretariat).

C. Response to recommendations 165, 166 and 168³

165. Undertake work in data disaggregation in collaboration with the World Bank and the Inter-American Bank, following the IFAD work undertaken in India in disaggregating of the human development index.

166. Enhance the Indigenous Peoples Assistance Facility transferred by the World Bank through grant funding mechanism and contributions of other international financial institutions and bilateral and multilateral donors.

168. Lead a process aimed at generating a global report on the status of indigenous peoples as a complement to the indigenous peoples' world status report.

3. In 2007, in addition to its operational and advocacy work, the Fund will concentrate its efforts on developing the IFAD principles of engagement with indigenous peoples and to operate and mobilize resources for the newly established Indigenous Peoples Assistance Facility, which was successfully transferred by the World Bank in September 2006. However, possibilities of replicating, along with partners, the work undertaken in India on data disaggregation will be explored. At this stage, IFAD cannot make a commitment with regard to recommendation 168.

D. Response to recommendation 167

Ensure continuity and future sustainability of indigenous peoples initiatives within the organization.

4. Based on the gains made so far under the leadership of the Assistant President on Special Assignment for Indigenous and Tribal Issues, the Fund has made the necessary arrangements to maintain its high profile and commitment to indigenous issues. The work related to indigenous peoples is being mainstreamed in a functional unit incorporated in the Policy Division. A Coordinator for Indigenous and Tribal Issues has been recruited to support day-to-day activities and the newly established Indigenous Peoples Assistance Facility. In addition, an interdepartmental Policy Reference Group on Indigenous Issues has been set up under the leadership of the two Assistant Presidents of the External Affairs and the Programme Management Departments.

II. Response of the International Fund for Agricultural Development to the recommendations of the Forum to the United Nations system

Special theme: the Millennium Development Goals and indigenous peoples: redefining the Goals

A. Response to recommendation 27⁴

The United Nations system is encouraged to support the full and effective participation of indigenous peoples in efforts to achieve the Millennium Development Goals at the national and local levels.

5. Extreme poverty remains a reality for over a billion people in the world. IFAD believes that poverty reduction needs to be tackled in the rural areas by focusing on agriculture, the basis of the economic livelihoods of most poor rural peoples. IFAD activities contribute to a number of Millennium Development Goals, most specifically Goal 1. To the extent that the Fund's agenda is rural poverty reduction, indigenous peoples are among the major target groups of IFAD, as they are often among the poorest and most marginalized people the Fund encounters in its areas of intervention, particularly in Asia and Latin America.

B. Response to recommendation 40⁵

Considering the commitment made by the World Bank to further explore inter-agency mechanisms to support the inclusion of indigenous peoples in national policies reduction strategies in a limited number of pilot countries, the Permanent Forum recommends that United Nations organizations fully contribute to that initiative and report back to the Permanent Forum on the progress made and the opportunities and limitations encountered, with a view to replicating the initiatives in other countries.

6. In the formulation of poverty reduction strategy papers, rural development has so far received little attention. IFAD has been concentrating its efforts on introducing the rural dimension in poverty reduction strategies and in building the capacity of the rural poor, including, organizations of indigenous peoples, to participate in the poverty reduction strategy paper processes.

Data collection and disaggregation

C. Response to the global efforts towards the identification of indicators and data collections relevant to indigenous peoples

7. In addition to grant resources provided to the secretariat of the Permanent Forum in 2005 and in order to define specific indicators of poverty and well-being among indigenous peoples, in 2006, IFAD funded a study on human development and deprivation among the Scheduled Tribes in India, carried out by the Indian Institute for Human Development. The purpose of the study was to calculate the human development, poverty and gender indices for a specific socio-economic group, the Scheduled Tribes, to compare them in terms of the indices in India as a whole, and to place them in a global context of development and deprivation. The study also focused on trends in poverty reduction among the Scheduled Tribes and on key poverty and deprivation factors. The main conclusion of the study was that the human development index for various tribal belts in India is as low as that of some of the poorest countries in sub-Saharan Africa. The results of the study were presented at a workshop in New Delhi, held in April 2006, and at the World Bank Conference on Poverty Reduction and Indigenous Peoples, held in New York in May 2006.

⁴ Ibid., para. 27.

⁵ Ibid., para. 40.

Second International Decade of the World's Indigenous People

D. Response to recommendation 128⁶

The Permanent Forum requests the Coordinator of the Second International Decade of the World's Indigenous Peoples to submit a report at its annual session regarding progress on the implementation of the Programme of Action of the Second Decade and invites States, the United Nations system and other intergovernmental organizations to provide information to the Coordinator.

8. In the process of developing its principles of engagement with indigenous peoples, IFAD will address the five objectives of the Programme of Action for the Second Decade of the World's Indigenous People and submit to the coordinator of the Second Decade a plan of action that will emerge from consultations within the organization and with indigenous peoples' representatives. More specifically, in those areas directly related to the IFAD mandate, such as economic and social development, the Fund will address issues related to (a) free, prior and informed consent; (b) policies that recognize environmentally sustainable pastoralism, hunting, gathering and shifting cultivation as legitimate activities; and (c) gender perspectives.

9. Within the context of development with identity, indigenous institutions and governance structures, IFAD, funded a study in 2005 that is being carried out by the United Nations Research Institute for Social Development, on "Identity, power and rights: the State, international institutions and indigenous people", the goal of which is to ensure that indigenous visions of development and rights are recognized, respected and taken into consideration in national and international development programmes. Furthermore, in 2006, the Fund undertook a study on local governance, development and the identity of indigenous peoples, which documented traditional and local governance in five states in India.

E. Response to recommendations 136 and 137⁷

136. The Permanent Forum recommends that States, United Nations organizations and indigenous peoples' organizations elaborate and develop strategies and action plans for communication, education and public awareness on indigenous issues during the Second Decade, addressing different audiences. Toolkits should also be developed for use in the implementation of such plans.

137. The Permanent Forum recommends that States, United Nations organizations and indigenous peoples' strengthen the necessary communications, education and information infrastructure and support networks of educators on indigenous issues. Information and communications technology (ICT) for indigenous peoples must be supported in order to close the technological and information gap.

10. In October 2006, in cooperation with the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations (FAO), the Confederación de Pueblos Indígenas de Bolivia and several indigenous peoples' organizations, IFAD co-sponsored a special session on indigenous peoples and communication for development at the World Congress on Communication for Development held in Rome. It also supported the participation in the congress of indigenous peoples' representatives from different regions. The special session produced specific recommendations to the World Congress on mainstreaming communication for development policies, programmes and services to foster the sustainable development of indigenous peoples' communities (see details on grants activities below).

11. During the course of 2006, IFAD also initiated programmes to raise the awareness of journalists in Latin America and South Africa about and to advocate indigenous peoples' issues (see details on grants activities below).

12. Furthermore, in 2006, as part of the development of the Rural Poverty Portal powered by IFAD, the Fund expanded its web page on indigenous peoples to incorporate its experiences and general issues related to indigenous peoples. The page can be accessed through the Rural Poverty Portal (<http://www.ruralpovertyportal.org>), and through the IFAD web page (www.ifad.org).

III. Other significant information regarding recent policies, programmes, budgetary allocations or activities regarding indigenous issues within the International Fund for Agricultural Development

13. During 2006, through its loan facility, the IFAD Executive Board approved seven projects supporting indigenous peoples, ethnic minorities and pastoralists. The approved projects covered two countries in Asia (China and Viet Nam), three in Latin America (Argentina, Bolivia and Colombia) and two in Africa (Mali and the Sudan). The total cost of projects benefiting indigenous peoples amounted to $93.6 million, of which the IFAD contribution amounted to $49.23 million. They expect to benefit approximately 151,075 indigenous households (for further details on the approved projects, see the annex to the present report).

⁷ Ibid., paras. 136 and 137.

14. Six institutional grants were also approved in favour of organizations supporting indigenous peoples for a total amount of $2.409 million, of which the IFAD contribution amounted to $1.64 million (for details, see the annex to the present report).

15. A grant of $900,000 was approved by the Fund to support the Regional Programme for Rural Development Training in implementing a three-year “Learning route” training programme⁸ in Latin America. The programme will focus on different thematic areas, including the management of indigenous ecotourism.

16. A contribution of $50,000 was extended to FAO in preparation of a special session during the World Congress on Communication for Development to enable indigenous groups and communities to be able to better communicate their principle, concepts and practice of development. The objectives of this grant are as follows:

- Promote the mainstreaming of communication for development policies, programmes and services to foster the sustainable development of indigenous peoples’ communities through the first World Congress on Communication for Development
- Enhance the capacity of indigenous peoples to appropriate communication for development
- Identify key communication for development methods, tools, strategies and projects to support indigenous peoples’ livelihoods.

17. A grant in the amount of $145,000 was approved by the Fund to support the PANOS Institute in enhancing awareness of indigenous peoples’ knowledge and experiences in rural areas of Madagascar and build their capacity to make their development needs known to policymakers and others in positions of influence.

18. In the framework of the Second Decade of the World’s Indigenous Peoples, a grant contribution of $145,000 was extended to the InterPress Service news agency to raise awareness about poor rural communities of indigenous peoples in Latin America and to build the capacity of local journalists in Latin America and Southern Africa to advocate with and for indigenous peoples and provide them with the necessary tools.

19. In 2006, the Regional Programme in Support of Indigenous People in the Amazon Basin (PRAIA) focused two “Learning route” training programmes on indigenous tourism activities. “Indigenous tourism enterprises: management experiences” promoted exposure visits of indigenous peoples from different Latin American countries to successful ecotourism initiatives in the Bolivian Amazon. The scope of the “Learning route” programmes was to build the capacity of indigenous representatives undertaking indigenous ecotourism initiatives through learning by seeing and sharing experiences. “Following the Incas’ tracks” brought together indigenous representatives from all over Latin America to visit successful living tourism experiences in the highlands of Peru.

⁸ In recent years, IFAD has been promoting more effective and faster learning methods based on a constantly evolving methodology called “Learning route”, which consists of study tours realized in different Latin American countries, involving visitors (most of whom are indigenous) from different countries and organizations. The study tours are based on a replicated “see and learn” methodology.

20. In 2006, PRAIA launched the fourth Anaconda Film Festival. The festival, organized by PRAIA in cooperation with several partner institutions every two years, has the objective of promoting audiovisual products realized by or focusing on indigenous peoples from the Amazon Basin and the Chaco region. The Anaconda Film Festival selects and publicizes the best indigenous films and awards them four different prizes. The films are selected by an international jury and awarded by several indigenous communities through itinerant exhibitions in different parts of Latin America. In 2006, 37 films were proposed, 12 were selected and the best four were awarded prizes:

- The film “Cachivera de los jaguares”, by Brazilian director Vincent Carelli received first prize
- “Sipakapa no se vende”, by Álvaro Revenga of Guatemala, received the prize for the best documentary
- The Bolivian Miguel Angel Yalauma received the prize for the best docu-fiction “Renacer: historia de un movima”
- The best fiction prize was awarded to the Bolivian Maria Morales for the experimental video “Venciendo el miedo”.

21. The awards ceremony, Anaconda 2006, will be held in Quito on 8 March 2007 (for further details see www.praia-amazonia.org).

22. During 2006, PRAIA also supported the publication of the book “Viaje al centro de un sueño: Chalalan — una experiencia exitosa de ecoturismo comunitario en la Amazonia”. The book is about the successful ecotourism experience of the Tacana community of San José de Uchupiamonas, in the Bolivian Amazon region. PRAIA ended as an IFAD-funded programme in 2006 and its successor, the PRAIA Foundation, was created as a result of the success of the programme. The newly established Foundation, during the course of the year, supported the publication of two books concerning indigenous peoples: “Medicina tradicional de las comunidades indígenas del Rio Quiquibey”; and “Qalauta, guía turística de trekking, escalada y boulder”.

Other activities

23. As a follow-up to the Permanent Forum/IFAD brainstorming workshop on indigenous peoples’ perspectives on IFAD-funded projects, held in Rome in November 2005, a policy forum was organized at IFAD headquarters in May 2006 on the theme “IFAD and indigenous peoples”. The forum provided an opportunity for IFAD staff to reflect on and react to the recommendations of the workshop and, in so doing, determine how IFAD could increase both its operational and policy engagement capacities to specifically address the issues faced by indigenous peoples. The chair of the Permanent Forum and a member of the African Commission on Human and Peoples’ Rights working group on indigenous populations and communities were invited as resource persons. The policy forum encouraged IFAD to develop specific principles of engagement to guide its work with indigenous peoples and to stress inclusiveness, specificity, flexibility and a demand-driven approach.

24. In June 2006, the Fund sponsored an indigenous expert to participate in the regional training for professional staff on indigenous and tribal peoples in Asia, organized by the Asia Indigenous Peoples Pact Foundation, the International Labour Organization (ILO) and the International Work Group for Indigenous Affairs.

25. As Chair of the Inter-Agency Support Group on Indigenous Issues, IFAD hosted the Group's annual meeting in September 2006. The focal points on indigenous issues of 15 United Nations agencies, multilateral organizations and international financial institutions attended the meeting and shared their experiences in the three following areas:

- Indigenous land, territories and resources
- Indigenous peoples' knowledge and technologies
- Indigenous culture and development.

26. The report of the meeting was submitted to the sixth session of the Forum (E/C.19/2007/2).

27. An exhibition entitled "An unknown India — arts and living tradition" was organized by IFAD in connection with the meeting, displaying art and handicrafts of the tribal peoples of India, or Adivasi.

28. Also, in support of the adoption of the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples by the General Assembly, IFAD lobbied with the Italian members of Parliament who, on 12 December 2006, unanimously approved a motion in support of the Declaration.

IV. List of conferences and other meetings on indigenous issues to be hosted by the International Fund for Agricultural Development in 2007-2008

29. IFAD will be hosting the 2007 Multilateral Financial Institutions Environment Group meeting, which will take place in May 2007. The Group has been given the responsibility by the Heads of multilateral development agencies to promote greater cooperation between the various institutions for development effectiveness. The participants are primarily heads of environmental units/divisions in both multilateral and bilateral institutions. During the meeting, a brief session will be dedicated to discussing issues related to indigenous peoples. The proposed session would serve as a critical forum for IFAD to: (a) seek further inputs/views on the draft revised IFAD environmental assessment procedures; and (b) share the considerable experience and knowledge that it has developed through its engagement with indigenous groups.

30. In the process of developing the IFAD principles of engagement with indigenous peoples, the Fund will hold several consultations within IFAD and with indigenous peoples' representatives during the course of 2007.

31. Towards the end of 2007, IFAD expects to hold a workshop in India to document best practices and lessons learned from IFAD-funded projects in tribal areas. The workshop will also be an occasion to share experiences on the implementation of policies affecting tribal peoples in India, including the newly approved Scheduled Tribes (Recognition of Forest Rights) Bill.
