Assessment of the work of the Security Council during the presidency of South Africa (April 2008)

Introduction

During the South African presidency the Security Council held 23 meetings, including an open debate on peace and security in Africa focusing on the relationship between the United Nations and regional organizations, in particular the African Union, in the maintenance of peace and security, and a debate on small arms. The Council adopted six resolutions and five presidential statements. The Council also held 15 informal consultations.

Africa

Central African Republic, Chad and the subregion

On 9 April, the Council held closed consultations of the whole on the situation in the Central African Republic, Chad and the subregion. The reporting covered major developments since the last report of the Secretary-General on 17 December 2007 and included the deployment of the United Nations Mission in the Central African Republic and Chad (MINURCAT).

The Council was briefed on the assessment of the Mission's deployment, timelines and the challenges before it. Although the conflict which broke out in February 2008 delayed the deployment, the Assistant Secretary-General for Peacekeeping Operations, Edmond Mulet, reported that the deployment had resumed and was continuing. He informed the Council that almost half of the total strength authorized was already deployed. The Council was informed that of $23 million in donor funding needed to support the operations of the Police tchadienne pour la protection humanitaire, only $15,899 million had been contributed to the MINURCAT Trust Fund.

The Council President read out a statement to the press reiterating the Council's concern at the humanitarian situation in eastern Chad and the north-eastern Central African Republic and condemning the continuing activity of rebel armed groups in Chad.

Liberia

On 14 April, the Council was briefed by the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Liberia, Ellen Margrethe Løj, pursuant to resolution 1777 (2007), by which the Council had requested the Secretary-General to report on the progress made on meeting the benchmarks for the drawdown phase and withdrawal plan by 20 March 2008. The Special Representative informed the Council that the drawdown process of the United Nations Mission in Liberia had commenced and was being carried out in a well planned manner so as to minimize threats to the security of the State.

Democratic Republic of the Congo

On 15 April, the Council was briefed by the Special Representative of the Secretary-General, Alan Doss, on the current situation in the Democratic Republic of the Congo pursuant to resolution 1794 (2007).

In his reporting, the Special Representative focused on the activities in the eastern Democratic Republic of the Congo, and informed the Council that the United Nations Organization Mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, in a joint initiative with the armed forces of the Democratic Republic of the Congo, had begun to increase the momentum in relation to the demobilization of the armed groups. He also informed the Council about the establishment of a government programme for the security, pacification, stabilization and reconstruction of North and South Kivu and on the possible early release of funds by the International Monetary Fund after its investigation into the country's budgetary slippages.

Members of the Council expressed their strong concern at the sexual and gender-based violence in the Democratic Republic of the Congo and stressed the need for those responsible to be brought to justice.

Sudan

Africa Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur

On 22 April, the Council was briefed by the African Union/United Nations Special Representative for Darfur, Rodolphe Adada, on the current security, humanitarian and political situation in Darfur.

The Special Representative also read out a statement by the United Nations and African Union Special Envoys, Jan Eliasson and Salim Salim, updating the Council on the political process in Darfur. The Special Envoys informed the Council that they were now focusing on reducing the levels of violence and preparing for the cessation of hostilities, since there were no prospects for comprehensive talks between the parties at this stage.

The Council was also briefed by the Under-Secretary-General for Humanitarian Affairs and Emergency Relief Coordinator, John Holmes, on the humanitarian situation in Darfur. The Under-Secretary-General informed the Council that the situation in Darfur had worsened in the past 12 months despite the efforts of the international community. He said that the number of displaced persons was growing and that hostilities were continuing, including violence against women, together with increasing humanitarian needs and limited access to beneficiaries.

United Nations Mission in the Sudan

On 24 April, the Council was briefed by the Under-Secretary-General for Peacekeeping Operations, Jean-Marie Guéhenno, on the United Nations Mission in the Sudan (UNMIS). The Under-Secretary-General informed the Council that, while neither party wanted a return to war and the parties continued to cooperate on some issues, they had not demonstrated the political will necessary to move forward with the major political elements of the Comprehensive Peace Agreement, such as the Abyei issue and the North-South boundary of 1956.

On 30 April, the Council adopted resolution 1812 (2008), by which it extended the mandate of UNMIS for a year, until 30 April 2009, taking into account the Secretary-General's recommendations as to how UNMIS could best support the parties in moving the peace process forward.

Eritrea/Ethiopia

On 22 April, the Council heard a briefing by the Under-Secretary-General for Peacekeeping Operations on developments regarding the United Nations Mission in Ethiopia and Eritrea (UNMEE). The Under-Secretary-General updated the Council on the relocation of UNMEE and also recalled the main developments since the armed conflict came to an end in 2000. He informed the Council that it would be important to send an unequivocal signal that the parties would be held to their commitments.

On 30 April, the Council adopted a presidential statement (S/PRST/2008/12), in which it stressed that the primary responsibility for achieving a comprehensive and lasting settlement of the border dispute rested with the parties themselves. The Council also stated that it stood ready to assist the parties to overcome the current difficulties and that it would, in consultation with the parties, decide on the terms of a future United Nations engagement and on the future of UNMEE.

Somalia

On 29 April, the Council adopted resolution 1811 (2008), extending the mandate of the Monitoring Group for Somalia for a further six months. The mandate of the Group expired on 29 April 2008, and the Group submitted its final report, though the sanctions Committee, on 24 April 2008 (S/2008/274).

On 30 April, the Council adopted resolution 1813 (2008), by which it extended the mandate of the United Nations Mission for the Referendum in Western Sahara (MINURSO) for 12 months, until 30 April 2009. By that resolution the Council reaffirmed its commitment to assist the parties to achieve a just, lasting and mutually acceptable political solution, which would provide for the self-determination of the people of Western Sahara. The Council called on the parties to continue negotiations, without preconditions and in good faith, under the auspices of the Secretary-General, with a view to achieving that political solution. It also endorsed the Secretary-General's recommendation that realism and a spirit of compromise by the parties were essential to maintain the momentum of the process of negotiations.

Burundi

On 24 April, in private consultations under "Other matters", the Council was briefed by the Under-Secretary-General for Peacekeeping Operations, following the fighting that erupted between Palipehutu-FNL and the government forces on 17 and 18 April 2008.

The Commissioner stated that the Commission could now confirm, on the basis of evidence, that a network of individuals (which he termed a "criminal network") had acted in concert to carry out the assassination of the former Prime Minister of Lebanon, Rafiq Hariri. He further stated that the Commission's priority was now to gather more evidence about the "Hariri network", its scope, the identity of all of its participants and their role in the attacks, and their links with others outside the network. He stressed that the investigation required time and could not be rushed. He noted that the work of the Commission would not be completed by the end of its current mandate, which would expire on 15 June 2008.

Council members convened in private consultations after the briefing to discuss the report.

Resolution 1701 (2006)

On 15 April, the Council adopted a presidential statement (S/PRST/2008/8) regarding resolution 1701 (2006). In its statement, the Council reiterated its commitment to the full implementation of resolution 1701 (2006) and reaffirmed its support for the Secretary-General in this regard. The Council called on all concerned parties, in particular in the region, to intensify their efforts in implementing resolution 1701 (2006), including by fully cooperating with the Secretary-General. The Council once again reiterated its full support for the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon, and called on all parties to abide by their obligations to respect the safety of United Nations personnel. The Council also stressed the importance of, and the need to achieve, a comprehensive, just and lasting peace in the Middle East, based on all of its relevant resolutions, including resolutions 242 (1967) and 338 (1973).

The situation in the Middle East

On 23 April, the Council convened for its monthly meeting on the situation in the Middle East pursuant to resolution 1322 (2000), by which it had invited the Secretary-General to continue to follow the situation in the Middle East and keep the Council informed of developments. Timor-Leste

On 23 April, the Council received a preliminary briefing by the Police Adviser in the Department of Peacekeeping Operations, Andrew Hughes, on the expert mission on policing that visited Timor-Leste. The Police Adviser indicated that there was holistic commitment on the side of the Government of Timor-Leste and commitment to help from bilateral donors. He also indicated that some of his team's findings included a broad improvement in law and order as well as a decrease in criminal acts; serious concern with the country's national army owing to rampant impunity; and the lack of a comprehensive policy on security sector reform within the national army. The speaker noted that the Secretary-General would issue a full report on the major findings and recommendations of the visit (see S/2008/329).

The Americas and Europe

Haiti

On 8 April, the Council was briefed by the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Haiti, Hédi Annabi, on developments in Haiti since August 2007. In his briefing, the Special Representative stated that he was encouraged by “real and significant political, security and institution-building progress”, as well as by “initial signs of improvement” in the socio-economic situation. However, he warned that progress remained “extraordinarily fragile and subject to swift reversal”. This statement proved to be accurate, as the situation, even while he was speaking, deteriorated as a result of riots provoked by food shortages. Some facilities of the United Nations Stabilization Mission in Haiti and Haitian government buildings, including the palace, were targets.

In response, the Council issued a statement to the press highlighting the Council’s concerns over the situation in that country. Owing to the worsening situation, a further press statement was issued on 14 April 2008.

On 23 April, the Council met, at the request of the Permanent Mission of Georgia to the United Nations contained in a letter dated 17 April 2008 (S/2008/257), to address what the Government of Georgia deemed a threat to Georgian territorial integrity and the alleged shooting down of a Georgian unmanned aerial vehicle by a Russian military aircraft. The Minister for Foreign Affairs of Georgia called upon the Security Council to address what his country perceived to be a threat to peace in the region, to prevent the dangerous escalation of tensions and to preserve the territorial integrity of Georgia.

The Council members, although not in consensus on the issue, expressed their concern and stressed the need for all parties to refrain from provocative actions and for a return to genuine dialogue. Council members reiterated that resolution 1808

(2008), having been approved by all members of the Security Council, should be respected. The Council again called for confidence-building measures.
