Letter dated 16 April 2009 from the Permanent Observer of the League of Arab States to the United Nations addressed to the President of the Security Council

I have the honour to forward a letter dated 9 April 2009, addressed to you from Mr. Amre Moussa, Secretary General of the League of Arab States, regarding the outcome of the Arab summit held in Doha, on 29 and 30 March 2009 (see annex).

Please find attached a copy of the resolutions and the Doha Declaration issued by the Council of the League of Arab States at its summit on 30 March 2009.

Pursuant to Article 54 of the Charter of the United Nations, I should be grateful if you would arrange for the present letter and its annex to be circulated as a document of the Security Council.

Annex to the letter dated 16 April 2009 from the Permanent Observer of the League of Arab States to the United Nations addressed to the President of the Security Council

[Original: Arabic]

I have the honour to transmit herewith one hard copy and one electronic copy of document No. Q/21(03/09)18-W(0201), which contains the resolutions adopted and communiqués issued at the twenty-first session of the Council of the League of Arab States at summit level, held in Doha on 30 March 2009.

As you are aware, that document contains a number of important resolutions relating to the position of Arab States and to political developments in the region, in particular concerning the Palestinian question and the Arab-Israeli conflict; developments in the situations in Iraq, Lebanon, Somalia and the Sudan; and the occupation of three Arab islands belonging to the United Arab Emirates. It also contains other resolutions on political, economic and social matters. I should be grateful if you would have the document circulated as a document of the United Nations.

The summit affirmed the unacceptability of the Israeli policy of obstruction and procrastination with respect to peace efforts. It also affirmed the need to set a time frame within which Israel must honour its commitments under the peace process, primarily the immediate cessation of settlement activities in the West Bank and East Jerusalem, and take clear and specific steps towards the implementation of peace process obligations, on the basis of the terms of reference constituted by relevant United Nations resolutions, the principle of land for peace and the Arab Peace Initiative.

The Arab summit also called on the Security Council to shoulder its responsibility and take steps, using the necessary mechanisms, to promote peace efforts in the region, in accordance with the agreed terms of reference, the relevant provisions of international law and previous Security Council resolutions on the issue. The summit further requested the Security Council to provide protection for the Palestinian people and to take all necessary measures to oblige Israel's compliance with the provisions of the Fourth Geneva Convention of 1949 and with the advisory opinion of the International Court of Justice concerning the separation wall and Israeli settlements, to hold Israel legally responsible for the crimes that it committed during its recent onslaught on the Gaza Strip and to prosecute those who committed such crimes.

I should also like to refer to the resolution and the communiqué relating to the decision of the International Criminal Court concerning the President of the Republic of the Sudan, both of which warn of the adverse repercussions of that decision on the efforts to achieve peace, development and unity in the Sudan. The Arab leaders called on the Security Council to assume its responsibility for bringing peace and stability to the Sudan and to support the endeavours of regional and international organizations to achieve a political settlement among the various Sudanese parties involved in the Darfur crisis.

I should like to take this opportunity to assure you of my interest in continuing cooperation between the League of Arab States and the United Nations and of my appreciation for your sincere efforts to achieve international peace and security.

(Signed) Amre Moussa

Doha - State of Qatar

3 Rabi` II A.H. 1430 (30 March A.D. 2009)

We, the leaders of the Arab States,

Aware of the grave repercussions of Arab disputes and their adverse effects on the interests of the Arab nation and issues pertaining to its future,

Proceeding from the call by the Custodian of the Two Holy Mosques, King Abdullah bin Abdul Aziz Al Saud, which launched the process of Arab reconciliation at the Economic, Social and Development Summit in Kuwait, and from the importance of greater efforts to clear the atmosphere and build bridges to overcome differences concerning joint Arab action, in which all Arab States are involved,

Given that our Arab nation looks forward to the Doha summit as a positive turning point for strengthening the progress of reconciliation, affirming Arab solidarity and linking the efforts made in this regard to their desired purpose,

Affirm our resolve and determination to forge ahead with this progress, focusing on the aspirations and hopes of our Arab peoples and on our national interests and to agree on a set of principles and bases for Arab action to strengthen reconciliation and solidarity, as follows:

1. Commitment to the Charter of the League of Arab States, in that the League is the term of reference for joint Arab action and aims to develop that action and implement its mechanisms in all fields;
2. The need to devote earnest and sincere attention to the implementation of our previous undertakings set forth the Document of the Covenant, Accord and Solidarity, adopted at the Tunis summit in May 2004, insofar as it constitutes the fundamental basis for clearing the atmosphere, promoting inter-Arab relations, achieving Arab solidarity and safeguarding supreme national interests;
3. The importance of candid talk, transparency, dialogue and consultation as the method for resolving Arab disputes and the importance of avoiding any fuelling of dissension and use of aggressive, provocative or inflammatory language;
4. Construction of a unified strategic vision for dealing with political, security, economic and other challenges that threaten pan-Arab security;
5. Emphasis on the centrality of the Palestinian question and the establishment of an independent Palestinian State, with Jerusalem as its capital, and the importance of commitment to the agreed Arab strategy for the achievement of just and lasting peace in the Middle East;
6. Implementation of the mechanisms of joint Arab action for the settlement of conflicts, including those stipulated in the Document of the Covenant, Accord and Solidarity, and a request for the Secretary-General to implement these mechanisms in order to achieve the supreme interests of joint Arab action and ensure conflict management with a view to avoiding complications harmful to Arab relations.

4. Arab national security

The Council of the League of Arab States at summit level,

Having studied the memorandum of the Secretariat-General, the report of the Secretary-General on joint Arab action, the recommendation of the Follow-up Committee for the Implementation of Resolutions and Commitments, the proposals and recommendations of the open-ended expert group on challenges to Arab national security at its meeting of 26 and 27 January 2009, Riyadh summit resolution 366 (19th ordinary session, 29 March 2007), Damascus summit resolution 407 (20th ordinary session, 30 March 2008) on Arab national security, and resolutions 6790 (128th ordinary session, 5 September 2007), 6855 (129th ordinary session, 5 March 2008), 6296 (130th ordinary session - 8 September 2008) and 7004 (131st ordinary session, 3 March 2009) of the Council of the League Arab States at ministerial level,

(Summit resolution 453, 21st ordinary session – 30 March 2009)

5. The Palestinian question and developments in the Arab-Israeli conflict

The Arab Peace Initiative

The Council of the League of Arab States at summit level,

Having studied the memorandum of the Secretariat-General, the report of the Secretary-General on joint Arab action and the recommendations of the second ministerial meeting of the Follow-up Committee for the Implementation of Resolutions and Commitments, held in Damascus on 16 March 2009,

Recalling Beirut summit resolution 221 (28 March 2002), which launched the Arab Peace Initiative and which was affirmed by the Riyadh summit (2007) and the Damascus summit (2008),

Mindful of the danger posed by Israel's persistent disregard of Arab and international peace efforts, defiance of resolutions of international legitimacy, rejection of the peace process, adoption of unilateral measures gravely detrimental to the outcome of the final status negotiations and by its attempts to Judaize the city of Jerusalem and change its historic and demographic features, the construction and expansion of settlements, the ongoing construction of the apartheid wall, the imposition of the blockade on the Gaza Strip, the closure of crossing points and denial of the daily needs of towns in the West Bank,

Having reviewed the disastrous effects of the brutal Israeli onslaught against the Gaza Strip and its serious adverse repercussions for the security and stability of the entire region,

Affirming that Palestinian national unity is an indispensable condition for the achievement of national aims, for the establishment of a Palestinian State, with Jerusalem as its capital, and for the success of Arab action in this regard, in accordance with the Arab Peace Initiative,

Resolves

1. To affirm adherence to the Arab Peace Initiative as a strategic Arab option for the achievement of a just and comprehensive peace in the region in accordance with the political context, the basis of which is that the Peace Initiative put forward today will not remain on the table for long, that the continued promotion of this Initiative by the Arab side is linked to Israeli acceptance of it, that its implementation is linked to Israeli's fulfilment of its obligations under the fundamental terms of reference for the achievement of a just and comprehensive peace and that this peace is unattainable as long as Israel persists in its intransigence and rejection of the Arab Peace Initiative;

2. To affirm continuation of the task assigned to the Arab Ministerial Committee for the Arab Peace Initiative and to the Secretary-General of conducting a comprehensive evaluation and review of the plan for Arab action in the face of efforts to revive the peace process in the region in the light of regional and international developments and the challenges facing the region, particularly in the wake of the Israeli military incursion into the Gaza Strip.

(Summit resolution 454, 21st ordinary session – 30 March 2009)

On the basis of the firm and principled stand of the Great Socialist People's Libyan Arab Jamahiriya concerning the true requirements for ending the Arab-Israeli conflict, the Great Socialist People's Libyan Arab Jamahiriya affirms its reservation to the Arab Peace Initiative and other terms of reference, which are not conducive to the establishment of a democratic State on all Palestinian soil or to the return of Palestinian refugees.

Developments in the Palestinian question

The Council of the League of Arab States at summit level,

Having studied the memorandum of the Secretariat-General, the report of the Secretary-General on joint Arab action and the recommendations of the second ministerial meeting of the Follow-up Committee for the Implementation of Resolutions and Commitments, held in Damascus on 16 March 2009,

Recalling Arab summit resolutions, in particular those of the Beirut summit (2002), the Sharm el-Sheikh summit (2003), the Tunis summit (2004), the Algiers summit (2005), the Sudan summit (2006), the Riyadh summit (2007) and the Damascus summit (2008),

Referring to resolutions of international legitimacy relating to the question of Palestine and the Arab-Israeli conflict, in particular relevant Security Council resolutions relating to the establishment of an independent Palestinian State, with Jerusalem as its capital, and the process for a lasting and comprehensive peace,

Mindful of the serious repercussions of the Israeli incursion into the Gaza Strip and the danger posed by Israel's persistent disregard of Arab and international peace efforts, defiance of resolutions of international legitimacy and adoption of unilateral measures, such as the Judaization of Jerusalem, the construction and expansion of settlements, the imposition of the blockade, the closure of crossing points and assassinations,

Condemning the continuing escalation of the brutal Israeli aggression against the Palestinian people,

Affirming the importance of Palestinian national unity as the sole means of protecting the Palestinian national project and the importance of respect for Palestinian national legitimacy and the integrity of the Palestinian territories,

Resolves

1. To salute in admiration and esteem the Palestinian people in their heroic resistance in the face of the iniquitous Israeli incursion into the Gaza Strip; support their steadfastness and opposition to this incursion; vehemently condemn the savage Israeli attack on the Gaza Strip, which killed and injured thousands of Palestinians, in particular civilians, including children and women, and devastated the infrastructure and public and private institutions on a massive and comprehensive scale; call for a halt to the Israeli aggression, the establishment of a ceasefire and the lifting of the unjust blockade; hold Israel, the occupying Power, legally and materially responsible for the war crimes that it perpetrated and for its violations of international law and international humanitarian law; and call on the relevant United Nations institutions to investigate the Israeli war crimes committed against the Palestinian people in the Gaza Strip as a result of this brute aggression, prosecute those responsible for such crimes and refer them to international courts;
2. To support efforts by the Secretariat-General to investigate Israeli war crimes committed against the Palestinian people during the Israeli incursion into Gaza and its call for action to take these crimes to the competent international courts;
3. To condemn Israel's continuation of its blockade on the Gaza Strip, which has led to a serious and unprecedented deterioration in the humanitarian situation and living conditions of Palestinian civilians, demand that it dismantle the blockade immediately and open all crossing points, and call on States, Arab and international institutions and civil-society organizations to continue providing support and humanitarian assistance to the Palestinian people;
4. To commend Arab efforts and the endeavours of the Arab Republic of Egypt to establish a ceasefire in the Gaza Strip and reach a truce agreement, welcome the Cairo Declaration for the start of national reconciliation, issued by the meeting of factions in Cairo on 26 February 2009, and call on all Palestinian parties to respond to this Egyptian effort and welcome the outcomes of the international donor conference, held in Sharm el-Sheikh on 2 March 2009, at the invitation of the Arab Republic of Egypt, with the aim of delivering the funding needed for reconstruction of the Gaza Strip;

5. To hold Israel accountable for placing obstacles in the way of efforts to establish a truce and for the ensuing increase in the suffering of the Palestinian people;
6. To express gratitude to the Arab Republic of Egypt and the Governments and peoples of all Arab States for the urgent humanitarian aid provided to the Gaza Strip and their various contributions to the United Nations Works and Relief Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Middle East, the World Food Programme and concerned international institutions;
7. To reaffirm that a just and comprehensive peace is the strategic option, that the peace process is a comprehensive and indivisible process, and that a just and comprehensive peace in the region is attainable only through full Israeli withdrawal from the occupied Palestinian and Arab territories, including the occupied Syrian Arab Golan, to the line of 4 June 1967, and from the territories still occupied in the Lebanese south, and through a just and agreed solution to the Palestinian refugee problem, in accordance with General Assembly resolution 194 of 1948, the rejection of all forms of settlement and the establishment of an independent sovereign State, with East Jerusalem as its capital, in accordance with the Arab Peace Initiative, adopted at the Beirut summit (2002) and reaffirmed at Arab summits, and with resolutions of international legitimacy and their relevant terms of reference;
8. To affirm the Arab character of Jerusalem and reject all illegitimate Israeli measures aimed at the Judaization and annexation of the city and the displacement of its inhabitants, in particular following Israel's most recent decision to demolish 88 homes and drive 1,500 Jerusalemites out of the Bustan area in Salwan as a preliminary to its demolition and the construction of a public park; condemn the confiscation of land and the construction of settlement units in the area surrounding Jerusalem; condemn the excavation work beneath and around al-Aqsa mosque, which is consequently under threat of collapse; call on the relevant international organizations and institutions, in particular the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, to shoulder their responsibilities in preserving holy Islamic and Christian sites; and call on Arab States to take swift action as a matter of necessity to thwart Israeli designs;
9. To affirm that the State of Palestine is a full partner in the peace process and that support for the Palestine Liberation Organization in any future negotiations on final status issues must continue, also affirm that the occupied Gaza Strip and West Bank, including East Jerusalem, are a single geographic unit that is indivisible for the establishment of an independent Palestinian State on all territories occupied since 1967, with East Jerusalem as its capital, and reject all attempts aimed at fragmenting the Palestinian territories, as well as all unilateral measures taken by Israel, first and foremost the settlement practices in the occupied Arab lands and the attempts to Judaize Jerusalem;
10. To respect Palestinian national legitimacy under the leadership of President Mahmoud Abbas, commend his efforts with all Palestinian and Arab parties in the area of national reconciliation and successful dialogue, respect the legitimate institutions of the Palestinian National Authority emanating from the Palestine Liberation Organization, including the elected Palestinian Legislative Council, abide by the unity of the Palestinian decision in order to uphold the gains and rights of the Palestinian people, which are at risk, and affirm that Palestinian national reconciliation constitutes the only genuine guarantee of safeguarding the Palestinian territories;

11. To affirm the illegality of Israeli settlements in the occupied Palestinian territories, which constitute a violation of international law, United Nations resolutions and the Fourth Geneva Convention; also affirm the need for Israel to declare a full and immediate ceasefire, implement relevant international resolutions, in particular Security Council resolutions 465 (1980) and 497 (1981), which stress the illegality of settlement, and dismantle existing settlements under international supervision of all settlement activities aimed at changing the demographic composition and geographic nature of the occupied territories; seek removal of the apartheid wall and an end to all Israeli measures for the Judaization of Jerusalem, as well as an end to the economic and military blockade; hold Israel to account for compensating the Palestinian people for all of the heavy losses incurred as a result of this blockade; and call on it to remove the military roadblocks between West Bank towns and open all crossing points in the Gaza Strip;

12. To prevail upon the international community to exert pressure on Israel to release all Palestinian prisoners and detainees, some 11,000 of whom, including political and legislative leaders, are languishing in the prisons of the occupation, and to call on it not to neglect this issue, in accordance with the rules and laws of international legitimacy, primarily international law, international humanitarian law and the Fourth Geneva Conventions of 1949;

13. To call on the Secretary-General of the United Nations to make timely efforts and take all necessary measures for the urgent and unconditional release of Palestinian women and children imprisoned in Israeli jails and provide international protection for them, in accordance with Security Council resolution 1325, adopted in October 2000, and relevant United Nations resolutions, in particular Commission on the Status of Women resolution 48/3 of March 2004;

14. To call on the Security Council to assume its responsibilities and take action to adopt the steps and mechanisms needed to resolve all aspects of the Arab-Israeli conflict and achieve a just and comprehensive peace in the region on the basis of the two-State solution in accordance with 1967 borders, the relevant provisions of international law and previous Security Council resolutions on this matter;

15. To call on the Security Council to assume its responsibilities towards the Palestinian people by dispatching international observers and international forces to protect the Palestinian people from massacres and ongoing aggression, calling on Israel to desist fully from its constant military attacks and operations and from its violation of the relevant provisions of international law, and compelling Israel (the occupying Power) to comply with the provisions of the Fourth Geneva Convention of 1949 and with the legal opinion issued by the International Criminal Court.

Communiqué on developments in the Arab-Israeli conflict

Doha, 3 Rabi` II A.H. 1430 (30 March A.D. 2009)

The Arab leaders together considered the developments in the Palestinian question and the Arab-Israeli conflict and the outcome of Arab and international efforts to achieve a just and comprehensive peace in the region, in the light of Israel's intransigence, its rejection of the resolutions of international legitimacy for the achievement of peace and the grave repercussions recently experienced in the region as a result of the Israeli aggression against the Gaza Strip.

On the basis of the need for a just and comprehensive solution to the Arab-Israeli conflict in the context of international legitimacy, the leaders affirmed that a just and comprehensive peace in the region was attainable only through an end to the Israeli occupation and the withdrawal from all occupied Palestinian and Arab territories, including the occupied Syrian Arab Golan, to the line of 4 June 1967, as well as from the remaining occupied territories in south Lebanon, and through an agreed and just solution to the Palestinian refugee problem, the rejection of all forms of settlement and the establishment of an independent sovereign Palestinian State, with East Jerusalem as its capital.

The leaders also affirmed the unacceptability of the Israeli obstruction and procrastination, in which successive Israeli Governments have persisted, and similarly affirmed the need to set a specific time frame for Israel's fulfilment of its obligations vis-à-vis the peace process, primarily the immediate cessation of settlement activities and action to take clear and determined steps to carry out the commitments under the peace process based on the terms of reference represented in relevant United Nations resolutions, the principle of land for peace and also the Arab Peace Initiative.

The Arab leaders also affirmed in the strongest terms their condemnation of the continuation and escalating growth of Israeli settlement in the occupied Palestinian territories, as well as their vehement condemnation of the decisions of the Israeli Government to demolish Palestinian homes in East Jerusalem with the aim of altering its geographical and demographic status and its Arab identity, separating it from the remaining occupied territories and imposing new facts on the ground in a bid to outdo the final status negotiations and in clear breach of the resolutions of international legitimacy and the rules of international law. They furthermore welcomed the European Union position in that regard and called on the Security Council and the international community to shoulder their responsibilities and take measures to guarantee the cessation of Israeli settlement operations.

The leaders held Israel legally responsible for the war crimes and crimes against humanity that it perpetrated against the Palestinian people, affirming their determination to prosecute the perpetrators of these crimes and ensure that they do not escape justice.

The leaders rejected Israeli moves aimed at diverting the peace process and its political commitments onto a track confined to an economic and security approach that entrenches the occupation and increases tension and instability in the region.

The Arab leaders considered the continuation of these practices by successive Israeli Governments of varying persuasions as tantamount to a rejection of the peace efforts and the two-State solution adopted by the international community, which undermines Arab and international efforts to achieve peace, security and stability in the region. It also necessarily means that Israel is not regarded as a partner in the peace process and furthermore changes the Arab approach to the achievement of a just and comprehensive settlement of the Arab-Israeli conflict.

The leaders expressed their hope that the new United States Administration would play the role of impartial mediator in the context of a new strategy for the achievement of peace in the region and called on it to adopt a decisive position in countering Israel's continuation of the blockade on Gaza and its illegal practices, in particular the measures to Judaize Jerusalem and expand its settlement activities, its violations of the rights of the Palestinian people and its failure to take any serious action for the achievement of peace. They also expressed their satisfaction with the first positive attitudes expressed by the new United States Administration towards the peace process.

The leaders affirmed the Arab commitment to provision of the necessary financing and support for reconstruction of the Gaza Strip and called on the international community to assume its responsibilities with regard to the deteriorating humanitarian conditions in Gaza, since the reconstruction process cannot withstand obstruction under any Israeli pretext. They also called on Israel to open the crossing points, end the blockade on the Gaza Strip, remove the roadblocks and search points in the West Bank and compel Israel to desist from attacks on the occupied Palestinian territories and from denying their needs.

The leaders called on the Palestinian factions participating in the Palestinian National Dialogue Conference, sponsored by the Arab Republic of Egypt, to expedite Palestinian national reconciliation in order to restore the Palestinian position to unanimity in the interest of the Palestinian cause and the Palestinian people. They further called on the international community and concerned parties to respect matters agreed by the Palestinians and to impose no conditions in that regard.

The leaders charged both the ministerial committee on the Arab Peace Initiative and the Secretary-General with pursuing efforts and contacts with the international parties concerned with the progress of the peace endeavours and to take the necessary action to convene a joint meeting with the Ministerial Council of the European Union and also with the Quartet to explain the Arab position in this regard.

The leaders also decided to charge the Council of the League at the ministerial level to conduct an assessment and review of the plan for Arab action in the face of efforts for the achievement of peace in the region.

The occupied Syrian Arab Golan

The Council of the League of Arab States at summit level,

Having studied the memorandum of the Secretariat-General and the report of the Secretary-General on joint Arab action,

Affirming the resolutions of Arab summit conferences, most recently Damascus summit resolution 412 (20th ordinary session, 30 March 2008),

Resolves

1. To affirm the solid support and backing of the Arab States for Syria's just demand and right to recover the entire occupied Syrian Arab Golan up to the line of 4 June 1967, on the basis of the principles of the peace process and resolutions of international legitimacy, and build on achievements accomplished within the framework of the Madrid peace conference, held in 1991;
2. To reaffirm all of its resolutions, most recently Damascus summit resolution 412 (20th ordinary session, 30 March 2008), which stipulates the rejection of all measures taken by the Israeli occupation authorities aimed at changing the legal, physical and demographic status of the occupied Syrian Arab Golan, and to consider Israeli measures designed to reinforce its control over it as illegal, null and void and a violation of international agreements and of the Charter and resolutions of the United Nations, in particular Security Council resolution 497 (1981) and General Assembly resolution 63/99 of 5 December 2008, which affirms that Israel's decision of 14 December 1981 to annex the occupied Syrian Arab Golan is illegal, null and void, without legal effect and constitutes a grave violation of Security Council resolution 497 (1981);

3. To reaffirm that Israel's continued occupation of the occupied Syrian Arab Golan since 1967 represents an ongoing threat to peace and security in the region and the world;

4. To condemn Israel for its practices in the occupied Syrian Arab Golan in respect of the seizure of land and water resources, the building of a rock-fill dam near the town of Quneitra to steal water and deprive Syrian farmers of the most important source of water for the irrigation of their farms and watering of their livestock, the construction and expansion of settlements and transporting of settlers thereto, the exploitation of natural resources, construction projects, the latest of which was the announcement of a tender for the sale of 10 zones in the occupied Syrian Arab Golan to establish vineyards and wineries, and the imposition of an economic boycott and export ban on the agricultural produce of the Arab population;

5. To affirm the Arab position of full solidarity with Syria and Lebanon, stand with them in confronting the continuing Israeli aggression and threats, considering any aggression against them as aggression against the Arab nation, and condemn the economic sanctions imposed on Syria;

6. To support the steadfastness of the Arab population of the occupied Syrian Arab Golan, standing beside them in their resistance to the Israeli occupation and its repressive practices and their determination to hold on to their land and their Syrian Arab identity; affirm the need to apply the Fourth Geneva Convention of 1949 in respect of the inhabitants of the occupied Syrian Arab Golan; and condemn, pursuant to the principles of international law and rules of international legitimacy, the Israeli occupation authorities for their gross violations of all the rights of the Syrian inhabitants, old and young, living under occupation in the Golan and the ensuing displacement and expulsion of thousands, the pillage of their lands, separation of families and the consequences of this situation on the lives of the children and their education, in addition to numerous other violations of children's rights in contravention of international obligations arising from the international Convention on the Rights of the Child;

7. To call on the United Nations, the Security Council and the Human Rights Council to ensure Israel's respect for the Fourth Geneva Convention and the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, and seek to facilitate visits by the population of the occupied Syrian Arab Golan to their families and relatives in their motherland of Syria, via the Quneitra crossing, under the supervision of the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC);

8. To condemn the practices and provocations of the Israeli occupation forces against the inhabitants of the Syrian village of Ghajar in the occupied Syrian Arab Golan, with the aim of partitioning it, displacing its inhabitants and constructing a separation wall between the inhabitants and their lands and livelihood; consider Israel's forcible transfer of the civilian population to the southern part of the village as a violation of international humanitarian law, especially the Fourth Geneva Convention and, in accordance with article 7 of the Statute of the International Criminal Court, "a crime against humanity"; further consider any partition of the village as undermining Syria's sovereignty over it; call on the international community to assume its responsibilities by exerting pressure on Israel to prevent it from partitioning of the village and put an end to the humanitarian, social and economic suffering of its inhabitants labouring under the occupation; and support Syria in reserving its right to take whatever measures necessary to prevent partition of the village;

9. To call on the Secretariat of the United Nations, the Security Council, the Human Rights Council and civil-society organizations working in the area of human rights and international humanitarian law to put pressure on Israel to release all Syrian prisoners and detainees from the occupied Syrian Arab Golan being held in Israeli jails and also call on international humanitarian organizations to prevail upon Israel to allow ICRC representatives, accompanied by medical specialists, to visit these prisoners and detainees to examine their physical and psychological health, save their lives and relieve the sufferings caused by the repressive Israeli practices and inhuman conditions of detention under which they live inside Israeli prisons, as well as the policy of physical and mental subjugation practised by the Israeli authorities, which deprives them of their most basic human and social rights, causing their health to deteriorate and endangering their lives;

10. To uphold the resolutions of international legitimacy requiring the non-recognition of any situation resulting from Israeli settlement activity in the occupied Arab lands, insofar as it is an illegal activity giving rise to neither right nor obligation and that the construction of settlements and housing of settlers therein represent a serious violation of the Geneva Conventions, a war crime under the First Protocol additional thereto and a violation of the principles of the peace process, which require that all Israeli settlement activities in the occupied Syrian Arab Golan and the occupied Arab lands be terminated;

11. To urge the international community to uphold the resolutions of international legitimacy rejecting Israeli settlement activity in the occupied Syrian Arab Golan by condemning the practices of the Israeli Government, which declared its intention on 31 December 2003 to establish nine new settlements, expand existing ones, double the number of settlers and allocate the appropriations necessary to implement this, contrary to the peaceful Arab and international approaches aimed at achieving a just and comprehensive peace in the region on the basis of the resolutions of international legitimacy and the Arab Peace Initiative adopted by the Beirut Summit in 2002;

12. To condemn the policy of the Israeli Government, which has wrecked the peace process and led to the continued escalation of tension in the region, and call on the international community to prevail upon Israel to apply United Nations resolutions relating to full Israeli withdrawal from the occupied Syrian Arab Golan and all occupied Arab lands to the line of 4 June 1967.

10. Rejection of the unilateral United States sanctions on the Syrian Arab Republic

The Council of the League of Arab States at summit level,

Having studied the memorandum of the Secretariat-General and the report of the Secretary-General on joint Arab action,

Expressing once again surprise and concern at the passing by the United States Congress of the so-called Syria Accountability Act and the executive order signed by the United States President on 11 May 2004 decreeing the unilateral imposition of sanctions outside the framework of international legitimacy,

Having taken cognizance of the statements, declarations and resolutions issued by various international governmental forums and non-governmental organizations expressing the international community's repudiation of any State setting its national legislation above international law with the aim of undermining the sovereignty and interests of other States and peoples,

Noting that the unilateral imposition of arbitrary laws conflicts with the provisions and approach of the World Trade Organization, which prohibit measures designed to obstruct the freedom of international trade and shipping,

Expressing surprise at the passing of this United States law against an Arab country fundamental to the stability and security of the region at a time when the United States is seeking cooperation with the Arab States to combat international terrorism and achieve the reforms necessary to create the broadest possible partnership between both sides,

2. To stand in full solidarity with the Syrian Arab Republic and appreciate its position calling for the primacy of the language of dialogue and diplomacy as a means of understanding between States and the resolution of disputes between them, and to call upon the United States Administration to enter in good faith into constructive dialogue with Syria in order to find the best ways of settling the issues hindering improved relations between the two countries;
3. To call on the United States to reconsider and abolish this Act, which is blatantly biased in favour of Israel, exacerbates the deteriorating situation and squanders the opportunities for the achievement of a just and comprehensive peace in the Middle East, in addition to gravely undermining Arab interests;

12. Solidarity with the Sudan

Rejection of the decision of Pre-Trial Chamber I of the International Criminal Court concerning President Omar Hassan Ahmad al-Bashir of the Republic of the Sudan

The Council of the League of Arab States at summit level,

Having studied the memorandum of the Secretariat-General, the report of the Secretary-General on joint Arab action and the recommendations contained in the report of the Follow-up Committee for the Implementation of Resolutions and Commitments at ministerial level at its second meeting in Damascus, on 16 March 2009, in this regard, which called for the measures taken by the International Criminal Court to be declared invalid,

Having heard the presentation delivered by the head of the delegation of the Republic of the Sudan,

Affirming the resolution of the extraordinary session of Arab Ministers for Foreign Affairs of 4 March 2009 and the resolutions of previous Arab summits on support for peace, development and unity in the Sudan, most recently the resolution of the Damascus summit in March 2008,

Taking note of the communiqués and resolutions issued by various regional and international organizations calling for respect for the sovereignty, territorial integrity and independence of the Sudan and support for the efforts to achieve peace among its people,

Cautioning that the decision of Pre-Trial Chamber I of the International Criminal Court will, under the cloak of international justice, undermine the principle of the sovereignty of States and damage the current peace process in the Sudan, in the Sudan in general and in Darfur in particular, just as it also disregarded Arab-African efforts to resolve the Darfur crisis,

2. To affirm that the referral by the Security Council of the situation in Darfur, which is an internal dispute, to the International Criminal Court, is inconsistent with the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations;
3. To step up visits by Arab leaders and officials to the Sudan as an expression of solidarity;
4. To consider the decision of Pre-Trial Chamber I of the International Criminal Court concerning President Omar Hassan Ahmad al-Bashir as a serious precedent targeted at a State President who continues to perform the functions of his position and as a violation of the Vienna Convention on Diplomatic Relations of 1961 and of the principles of international customary law, and to reject that decision and all effects arising out of it;
5. To call for invalidation of the measures adopted by Pre-Trial Chamber I of the International Criminal Court, particularly since the Sudan is not a member of this Court, and to call on the Security Council to assume its responsibilities in establishing peace and stability in the Sudan;
6. To reject the attempts to politicize the principles of international justice and use them to undermine the sovereignty, unity and independence of States under the cloak of international criminal justice;
7. To call for an evaluation of the Arab position towards the International Criminal Court and request all Arab States to refrain from responding to measures by the International Criminal Court with regard to President Omar Hassan Ahmad al-Bashir of the Republic of the Sudan;
8. To call on the Security Council and international and regional organizations to support the current efforts to establish peace in Darfur, urge the States which are permanent Members of the Security Council to achieve a united stand for the protection of peace and stability in the Sudan, and allow the opportunity for progress along the road to a political settlement of the Darfur crisis;

9. To devote the necessary attention to the achievement of peace between the Sudanese parties concerned with the Darfur crisis; support the timely efforts of the Government of National Unity to achieve a comprehensive peace in Darfur; caution that the decision of the International Criminal Court will have an adverse impact on these efforts and on other peace agreements in particular; express appreciation of the legal, legislative and judicial measures taken by the Sudan to deal with the Darfur crisis; and affirm the need to afford opportunity to the Sudanese judiciary, which is independent and desirous and capable of achieving full justice;
10. To call on the armed movements that have not signed the Abuja Peace Agreement to join the political process, respond to the Arab-African efforts to establish peace and assume their responsibilities in strengthening the opportunities for the achievement of peace and stability in the Sudan;
11. To commend the steadfastness of the Sudanese people and the tenacity of its internal front in opposing the decision of Pre-Trial Chamber I of the International Criminal Court;
12. To commend the ongoing efforts of the Secretary-General and his aides to establish peace in the Sudan, call on him to pursue the coordination of positions with the African Union, the Organization of the Islamic Conference and the Group of Non-Aligned Countries to counter any adverse consequences for the stability of the Sudan, and evaluate the report of the Council at its next session;
13. To keep the Council in permanent session for the purpose of monitoring developments in the situation.

(Summit resolution 465, 21st ordinary session – 30 March 2009)

Communiqué of the Doha summit concerning solidarity with the Republic of the Sudan in rejecting the decision of Pre-Trial Chamber I of the International Criminal Court concerning President Omar Hassan Ahmad al-Bashir of the Republic of the Sudan

Doha, 3 Rabi` I A.H. 1430 (30 March A.D. 2009)

The Arab leaders expressed their support for and full solidarity with the Sudan in rejecting the decision of Pre-Trial Chamber I of the International Criminal Court with regard to President Omar Hassan Ahmad al-Bashir of the Republic of the Sudan, which is aimed at damaging his legitimately elected leadership, and affirmed their categorical rejection of any dealings with this decision, which is liable to have an adverse impact on the unity, security, stability and independence of the Sudan and on the efforts to establish peace, in particular the efforts by the State of Qatar within the framework of the Arab-African Ministerial Committee and in coordination with the Joint United Nations-African Union Chief Mediator to promote the peace process in Darfur with a view to the establishment of a lasting and comprehensive peace.

The Arab leaders considered the decision of Pre-Trial Chamber I of the International Criminal Court with regard to President Omar Hassan Ahmad al-Bashir of the Republic of the Sudan to be a dangerous precedent targeted at a head of State who continues to perform the functions of his position and a violation of the Vienna Convention on Diplomatic Relations of 1961 and of international customary law.

The Arab leaders called on the Security Council to assume its responsibilities concerning the establishment of peace in Sudan and support the efforts for progress towards a political settlement of the Darfur crisis.

The leaders affirmed full support for the achievement of peace between the Sudanese parties concerned with the Darfur crisis, as well as support for the efforts of the Sudanese Government of National Unity in that regard. They cautioned that the decision of the International Criminal Court would have a negative impact on those efforts and appealed to the armed movements not having signed the Abuja Agreement to join the political process and shoulder their responsibilities to strengthen the opportunities for the achievement of security and stability. The leaders also affirmed the importance of ongoing cooperation and coordination between the League of Arab States and the African Union for the establishment of peace in Darfur.

The leaders rejected attempts to undermine the sovereignty, unity, security and stability of States and the symbols of their national sovereignty, and to politicize the principles of international justice. They called for cessation of the measures taken by Pre-Trial Chamber I of the International Criminal Court, in that the Sudan is not a member of the Court and decided to assess the Arab position towards the Court and that Arab States would not respond to the measures by the Court with regard to President Omar Hassan Ahmad al-Bashir of the Republic of the Sudan, and further decided to reject the decision and all effects arising out of it. They affirmed the need to allow the independent and qualified Sudanese judiciary the opportunity to fulfil its wish of achieving full justice in Darfur and commended the steps taken by the Sudanese Government concerning the measures to be implemented with regard to the package agreed in July 2008 between the League of Arab States and the Republic of the Sudan by way of a solution.

The leaders praised the steadfastness of the Sudanese people and the tenacity of its internal front in opposing the decision of the International Criminal Court.

The leaders confirmed their appreciation of the Arab and foreign States that had joined in providing humanitarian assistance for the victims in Darfur and urged Arab relief and civil-society organizations to increase their presence in Darfur and boost their humanitarian aid contributions. They pledged immediate assistance in the sum of US$ 8 million monthly for a period of one year as a contribution to easing the burdens of victims in Darfur and dealing with the results of the cessation of humanitarian aid activities in the Sudan by some international organizations.

They requested the Secretariat-General to convene a meeting of the Arab Red Crescent Societies and Arab humanitarian relief organizations, in consultation with the Sudanese Government and the United Nations, and to take urgent action to meet humanitarian needs in Darfur and ensure that the villages are re-equipped with the vital requisites in order to facilitate the voluntary return of displaced persons to their homes. The leaders decided that the Council would remain in permanent session in order to follow developments in the situation.

Project for the promotion of the Arabic language towards the knowledge society

Damascus, 19 to 21 August 2008

On the basis of the Riyadh Declaration issued by the Arab summit held on 28 and 29 March 2007, which called for diligent action to “protect the Arab identity, bolster its foundations and secure allegiance to it in the hearts and minds of children, teenagers and young men and women, given that Arabism is not a racial or ethnic concept but rather a common cultural identity, with the Arabic language as its means of expression and of preserving its heritage, and a shared civilizational framework based upon spiritual, ethical and human values, enriched by diversity, plurality, openness to other human cultures and keeping pace with rapid scientific and technical developments, without dissolution, fragmentation or loss of distinctiveness....”,

Conscious of the impact of linguistic weakness on economic, social and cultural development,

Proceeding from our pan-Arab responsibility to promote broader horizons in Arab relations and work to strengthen ties in order to achieve the supreme interests and aspirations of the nation, preserve its pan-Arab security and safeguard its dignity and pride,

Declare as follows:

We are committed to Arab solidarity, adhere to noble Arab values and traditions and emphasize the need to preserve the integrity of all Arab States, respect their sovereignty and their legitimate right to defend their national independence and their resources and capacities, have due regard for their political systems in accordance with their constitutions and laws, and ensure non-interference in their domestic affairs.

We emphasize the need to resolve Arab disputes through purposeful and constructive dialogue and the need for efforts to strengthen Arab relations, consolidate Arab ties and connections and safeguard the supreme interests of the Arab nation.

We call for the continuation of efforts aimed at developing and advancing the system of joint Arab action, implementing its mechanisms and furthering its performance, thus enabling us to create effective policies for the reconstruction of an integrated Arab society with the resources and capacities to match the new challenges of the forthcoming stage and keep pace with any regional and international developments that may occur.

We salute in admiration and esteem the Palestinian people in their heroic resistance in the face of the iniquitous Israeli incursion into the Gaza Strip; affirm support their steadfastness and opposition to this incursion; vehemently condemn the savage Israeli incursion into the Gaza Strip; call for a halt to the Israeli aggression, the establishment of a ceasefire, the lifting of the unjust blockade on the Gaza Strip and the opening of all crossings; affirm that Israel, the occupying Power, is held legally and materially responsible for the war crimes that it perpetrated and for its violations of international law and international humanitarian law; and call on the international community to prosecute those responsible for such crimes and refer them to international courts.

We affirm our full support for the Arab efforts to end the division in the Palestinian national ranks and to strengthen national unity; call on all Palestinian factions to respond to these efforts in order to ensure achievement of the desired national reconciliation and secure the geographical and political unity of the Palestinian territories; and renew our support for the Palestinian National Authority and respect for the legitimate institutions of the Palestinian National Authority emanating from the Palestine Liberation Organization, including the elected Palestinian Legislative Council.

We call for a halt to unilateral Israeli policies and measures designed to impose a status quo, including the immediate cessation of all settlement activities and removal of the apartheid wall, for steps to ensure that the status of East Jerusalem remains intact and for preservation of the Islamic and Christian sites that it houses.

We affirm the unacceptability of the Israeli obstruction and procrastination in which successive Israeli Governments have persisted and similarly affirm the need to set a time frame for Israel's fulfilment of its obligations vis-à-vis the peace process and to take clear and determined steps to carry out the commitments under the peace process on the basis of the terms of reference represented in relevant United Nations resolutions, the principle of land for peace and also the Arab Peace Initiative.

We affirm the need for a just solution to the Arab-Israeli conflict in the context of international legitimacy and also affirm that a just and comprehensive peace in the region is attainable only through an end to the Israeli occupation and withdrawal from all occupied Palestinian and Arab territories, including the occupied Syrian Arab Golan, to the line of 4 June 1967, as well as from the remaining occupied territories in south Lebanon, the Shab`a farmlands, the Kafr Shuba hills and the northern part of the village of Ghajar. We further affirm the need for an agreed and just solution to the Palestinian refugee problem, the rejection of all forms of settlement and the establishment of an independent sovereign Palestinian State, with East Jerusalem as its capital.

We affirm our solidarity with the Sudan, our rejection of the decision of Pre-Trial Chamber I of the International Criminal Court concerning President Omar Hassan Ahmad al-Bashir, our support for our sister the Sudan in countering all efforts to undermine its sovereignty, security, independence and territorial integrity, and our rejection of all measures that threaten the peace efforts made by the State of Qatar in the context of the Arab-African Ministerial Committee and in coordination with the Joint African Union-United Nations Chief Mediator for Darfur, efforts for which we affirm our support with a view to the establishment of peace in Darfur.

We commend the Arab summit conference for the steps taken in Iraq to achieve security, stability and national unity, reject sectarianism and stabilize the political process, with the participation of all components of Iraqi society.

We welcome the agreement concluded between our brothers in Somalia, the election of Sheikh Sharif Sheikh Ahmed as President of the Republic of Somalia and the formation of a Somali Transitional Government and a Somali transitional parliament, and affirm the doubling of Arab efforts to provide all forms of support to the Republic of Somalia.

We affirm our non-recognition of the results of the referendum held in France on 29 March 2009 on incorporating the Comoros island of Mayotte and turning it into a French overseas territory and consider the measures taken by France pursuant to the results of this referendum to be unlawful and invalid, giving rise to no rights and establishing no obligations.

We express hope that the Islamic Republic of Iran will respond to the initiative of the United Arab Emirates and to Arab efforts to find a solution to the question of the islands of Greater Tunb, Lesser Tunb and Abu Musa through serious and direct negotiations or through recourse to the International Court of Justice.

We reaffirm our condemnation of terrorism in all of its forms and manifestations, whatever its course, motives and justifications, and the need to address its root causes and eliminate the factors that feed it.

We call on the international community to empty the Middle East region of all weapons of mass destruction, in particular nuclear weapons; take steps to establish a nuclear-weapons-free zone in the Middle East so as to promote international peace and security; compel Israel to sign the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons; and subject all of Israel's nuclear facilities and activities to the safeguards of the International Atomic Energy Agency.

We affirm the legitimate right of Arab States to acquire nuclear technology for peaceful uses in all areas that serve its development programmes, support its economies and diversify their sources of energy.

We commend the ongoing efforts of the Arab States to expand the practices of rational management and apply the principles of transparency, responsibility, accountability and popular participation, and we affirm our determination to pursue political and social reforms in Arab societies in order to achieve social integration, national harmony and civil peace.

We call for the intensification of dialogue among cultures and peoples, for the establishment of a culture of openness and acceptance of others, and for support for the principles of fraternity, tolerance and respect for human values that emphasize human rights, promote human dignity and safeguard freedom.

We welcome the outcomes and resolutions of the Arab Economic, Development and Social Summit held in Kuwait on 19 and 20 January 2009 and affirm our resolve to follow up and implement its outcomes in the interests of joint Arab economic action and the development of Arab societies.

We affirm our continuing endeavour to establish a customs union in order to pave the way for an Arab common market, ensure shared Arab economic interests and safeguard the Arab gains made at the social and economic levels so as to strengthen Arab economies, help in alleviating the adverse affects of the global economic crisis, develop partnership, increase mutual investment and establish joint productive projects.

We call on the international community to work at doubling efforts and strengthening close cooperation among its States, to participate actively in the global efforts aimed at implementation of the Millennium Development Goals and the eradication of hunger and poverty, and to increase financial support for the least developed countries in order to narrow the gap in the social and economic development levels of rich and poor countries.

We affirm the importance of a strong social upbringing for Arab children and the need to bring out their Arab identity through the development of a value system in which the Arab child is raised to be aware of his identity, instilling him with pride in his nationality, his Arabness, his Arab heritage and its splendours and contribution to the development of human society.

We call for the provision of opportunities for young people to participate effectively the life of society and engage in employment, and for fostering of the national sentiment in them and for strengthening of their belonging to Arab civilization and of their Arab identity.

We emphasize the need to devote particular attention to the Arabic language as a fount of knowledge and Arab culture, which encompasses heritage, culture and identity, and to cementing it and developing the curricula for teaching it in line with the rapid global developments in science and knowledge.

We extend sincere gratitude and tremendous appreciation to His Highness Shaikh Hamad bin Khalifa Al Thani, Amir of the State of Qatar, for his judicious management of work of the summit and for his direction of its deliberations, and express our full confidence that his leadership will boost the success and development of joint Arab action and firmly establish Arab solidarity so as to benefit the Arab nation and its reform, given the wisdom, expertise and devotion to Arab solidarity for which he is known.

We also express our deep appreciation to the State of Qatar and its welcoming people for the warmth of their reception and their generous hospitality, as well as for the flawless organization of the meetings of the 21st ordinary session of the Council of the League of Arab States at summit level. We also greatly appreciate the intensive consultations conducted with Arab States to ensure the success of the summit and its convening in the best and smoothest of circumstances.

We express our sincere gratitude for the continuous efforts of Mr. Amre Moussa, Secretary-General of the League of Arab States, to promote joint Arab action.

Q/21(03/09)/17 - Kh(0200)

Address by His Highness Hamad bin Khalifa Al Thani, Amir of the State of Qatar, at the opening session

In the name of God the Merciful, the Compassionate

Your Majesties, Excellencies and Highnesses,

I welcome you to the 21st ordinary session of the Council of the League of Arab States at summit level and declare the meeting open.

I welcome you to an Arab homeland that is making every effort to be an open forum for free, unconditional and unrestricted dialogue, which may be right or wrong but which is the responsibility of participants, that being a characteristic of freedom.

Brothers, Your Majesties, Excellencies and Highnesses,

Secretary-General of the United Nations,

Secretary-General of the League of Arab States,

Honourable audience,

I welcome you to this country, which receives you with cordiality, appreciation and respect.

I welcome you to this country that receives you with an open heart and mind, offering you its sincerest wishes for success and God's blessings.

I welcome you to a country that aspires to perform a useful role in Arab public action, cooperating in good faith and with good intentions with its brothers and appreciating the merit and status of each of them.

I welcome you at a time that requires your opinion and your decision, at a time when the nation awaits the prudence of your reason and wisdom and hopes for reassurance to restore some hope in circumstances that are fraught with turmoil and anxiety.

Dear brothers,

Allow me at the outset to extend my deep thanks and appreciation to my brother, President Bashar al-Asad of the Syrian Arab Republic, for his sincere efforts during his presidency of the past summit, which contributed to the advancement of joint Arab action.

Dear brothers,

This meeting has an agenda prepared by the Ministers for Foreign Affairs, in cooperation with the Secretariat-General of the League of Arab States, and each one of us has something to say concerning the items on this full agenda. With your permission, however, in addition to the agenda prepared for this regular meeting, I should today like to refer to a subject that I regard as vitally important.

I wish to say that, had this meeting not been due to take place by virtue of the annual round of Arab summits, it would have taken place on account of the emergencies that have taken not only our countries but the world by surprise. We are all witnessing their results and feeling their impact through the fluctuations, problems and crises occurring in every aspect and at all levels. What makes them graver still is that they came to burden us all at once, their manifestations overlapping and interacting, their effects accumulating and growing so complex that they seemed greater than the capacity of those whose job it is to tackle them. We say this with a strong belief and firm conviction that all of these fluctuations, problems and crises can ultimately be beaten through the international resolve to overcome a storm with humanitarian and financial costs that no one party alone can shoulder.

Our Arab world was among the regions of the world most vulnerable to the storm. The financial and economical crisis to which the world was and still remains exposed is the attention-grabbing spectacle, yet this storm affected not only the resources and reserves of the Arab world but also revealed the severe frailty of the systems on which the world was reliant in controlling its affairs and maintaining its balance. This is a strategic development with far-reaching consequences.

The international financial system has been struck, the international economic system has been struck and the international legal system has also been struck.

The overall result was to shake the foundation on which systems in every field are based, namely confidence. The blow to this foundation is in fact the first thing that threatens us, in that public and mutual confidence is in itself the most important basis of the international legitimacy that reassures everyone of the soundness of measures and transactions and allows expectations to form on all political, economic, social and intellectual levels. The experiences of humanity since the dawn of history teach us that no policy can be conceived, established and achieve success without the element of self-confidence, confidence in others and confidence in regulations and laws so that humankind knows what can be expected in order to calculate its moves.

Certainly, we can see that the impact of this crisis of confidence has affected the Arab world more than elsewhere; given its location, its resources, its issues and its problems, as well as its circumstances both previous and subsequent, the Arab world is exposed to the wind and is at the centre of the storm.

The most serious aspect of this crisis of confidence is that it creates climates in which it is difficult to ascertain the positions of power, the intentions of policies, the soundness of evaluations and the calculation of possibilities. What is clear is that matters we have long taken for granted need to be reviewed. Policies that we have adopted and sought need to be reviewed and our customary approaches and methods also need to be reviewed.

In full responsibility, we say that we need to review and not to retreat, because what happened makes it incumbent on us to think, to examine things closely and to use our judgement. This we must do with strong nerves, enlightened thought and trust in God Almighty.

Dear brothers,

The global environmental system has been affected before and experts knew the causes, but decision-makers have thus far been incapable of taking the measures needed to avert threats to the future of humankind, the reason the perception by some that the threats to the environment are in abeyance. This perception is inaccurate and now, with the global financial system in disarray, we find ourselves facing an acute dilemma that is felt in every country and by every individual. Nevertheless, we have seen with our own eyes that the world's top expert stood nonplussed and powerless before the financial and economic crisis, for they neither expected it nor knew its causes, and failed to make an accurate diagnosis for treatment. This means that the changes in ideas, science and technologies that took place still need further study, more precise identification of the reasons and a wide-ranging and comprehensive review, in which Arabs should take part with the rest of the world and not stand by as onlookers.

In fact, there are reasons that call for greater understanding on the part of the Arab world. First, there are the repercussions of the crisis itself. Secondly, the crisis has seized the attention of the world and diverted it away from our issues, especially given the political variables directly affecting us, including a United States presidency that is not only new but also different and has brought new blood capable of renewal to United States decision-making, elections in Israel that we must monitor in terms of their direction and impact on the security situation in the region, and developments in neighbouring areas that we must deal with fittingly in order not to increase tension in the region and thereby heighten the disquiet and unrest. Thirdly, changes in the positions of power and centres of influence are visible worldwide. Fourthly, national projects, nation states and country clusters are being established around us, leading our citizens to ask where the Arab project is. Fifthly, even our own internal disputes urge that we at least produce a mechanism to manage our differences so that they do not damage cordiality.

For all of those reasons, we will be directly and indirectly faced with political and social repercussions that require preparedness and alertness, for history teaches us that storms pass, but that their aftermath lingers long.

The least we can expect is that this crisis will leave behind consequences and difficulties for our region that we must be ready to control and manage if we are unable to find solutions to them. They will leave behind them economic, social and political problems; there are possibilities of a slow-down in growth, possibilities of a recession and possibilities of unemployment. Given the partial erosion of our reserves as a result of the plummeting global markets, coupled with our diminishing resources as a result of falling oil prices, economic and social security in our countries is a requirement that carries with it enormous responsibilities and tasks.

Dear brothers,

Before I conclude my address, I must reiterate that I welcome, endorse and commend the gracious and wise initiative launched by my brother the Custodian of the Two Holy Mosques, King Abdullah bin Abdul Aziz Al Saud, at the Kuwait summit, in which he called for Arab reconciliation. The initiative indeed expressed his eagerness to bring Arabs together, achieve Arab solidarity and overcome any differences in opinion among our countries, differences that are still ultimately about the means and not the end, for we all have one end in mind, namely the interest of our peoples and nation and the raising of its status.

I should also like to take this opportunity to express the pride that I and all of us feel in the fact that my brother, the Custodian of the Two Holy Mosques, is to participate as representative of the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia in the G-20 economic summit in London. I do not exaggerate when I say we feel that he represents all of us in this task, in which we wish him success. We are confident that he will represent the interests of our nation and our Arab world and even those of the developing countries, which are hard done by, and their aspirations for a more balanced relationship with the advanced industrial countries.

Dear brothers,

The nation looks to you and the community of States looks forward to your contribution. The importance of the ongoing reconciliation processes and the need to re-establish cordial relations demand that we agree and cooperate on ideas, goals and means between ourselves and between us and the whole world.

May peace and God's mercy and blessing be upon you.

Q/21(03/09)/15-Kh(0198)

Address by Mr. Amre Moussa, Secretary-General of the League of Arab States, at the opening session

Your Highness Shaikh Hamad bin Khalifa Al Thani

Amir of the State of Qatar

I am pleased to convey sincere congratulations to you on the convening of the Arab summit under your auspices and your presidency. It is my hope that this summit will be a prelude to reconciliation and harmony and a point of departure for solidarity, mutual understanding and peace, and that an Arab consensus on addressing international developments, which are well known for their susceptibilities, pitfalls and risks, will take root within its framework.

I also express appreciation to President Bashar al-Asad for a presidency that achieved its task. During that presidency, the process of Arab and Palestinian reconciliation was launched and a budding consensus and calm with regard to Arab relations emerged. In that regard, I should like to salute the initiative of the Custodian of the Two Holy Mosques, King Abdul Aziz bin Abdul Aziz Al Saud, for restoring the Arab house to order, the efforts of President Hosni Mubarak to restore the Palestinian house to order and the valuable endeavours of the Amir of Kuwait, Shaikh Sabah al-Ahmad al-Jabir al-Sabah, President of the Social and Economic Development Summit, for bringing the two together and achieving unanimity.

I should like to take this opportunity to welcome President Sheikh Sharif Sheikh Ahmed of the Republic of Somalia to his first Arab summit and to wish him and his country every success in rebuilding the State.

Your Majesties, Excellences and Highnesses,

We are gathered here today on the shores of the Arabian Gulf at a delicate juncture for the Arab world and the region at large, in that the challenges are no longer confined solely to political or security problems but now also encompass financial and economic problems. The impact of the global financial and economic crisis is firmly knocking on everyone's door, but more important and critical is the challenge inflicted by global policies that were extremely conservative and acutely problematic and arrogant, as well as ambiguous in terms of their political theory and ideological base, a challenge that brought an unprecedented crisis in relations between the West, Islam and Arabism. The time has truly come for us to pause or for foreign meddling in Arab affairs and disregard of legitimate Arab interests to stop.

Mr. President,

Yes, there are valid reasons for us to caution against foreign interventionist policies from which we have suffered greatly, but we must also be wary of reasons stemming from our own societies and from some of our own policies and practices, which are also reasons for the decline in our contribution to the course of today's world.

Herein lies the challenge, which demands that we rise to its level and moreover rise above it by establishing our positive presence and developing our contributions to regional and international life, that we accept the challenge of to be or not to be and that we achieve progress and advancement in the interest of becoming not only part of the age but also one of its pioneers.

Yes, Arab mechanisms have moved towards modernization and reform, and the documents of the Tunis summit in 2004 demonstrate an increasing Arab awareness that we have much to do and that the road ahead is long. To recognize inadequacy and inaction is one thing, however. To steel ourselves is another.

Concerning what we have done as evidence of awakening, I would not say that it is a major awakening, but rather an important step, and I would like to enumerate some of the relatively positive aspects, as follows:

1. Concerning development and modernization, the process has in fact begun in various Arab States, even if it is slow and somewhat tentative;
2. Concerning Arab integration, the common Arab system has made considerable progress in channelling joint Arab action in the socio-economic context and here we might mention the stages of economic progress achieved in several Arab States;
3. As for the agreement reached at the Kuwait summit on an ambitious, practical and viable plan in the field of social and economic development, implementation measures began immediately after the summit had ended;
4. Concerning reconciliation and the arrival at an Arab consensus, they are still in the initial stages and cannot be said to have been finalized or established, but the direction of the compass is now clearer;
5. Concerning the Arab-Israeli dispute, the Arab States agreed on a peaceful initiative that is still on the table and subsequently agreed in the light of Israel's failure to respond that the initiative should not remain there much longer;
6. Resources have been made available for an effective Arab diplomatic movement, as occurred in London, as is taking place now with regard to the achievement of Palestinian reconciliation and as in our attempt to assist the completion of national reconciliation in Iraq, our involvement in the establishment of peace between the north and south of the Sudan and in Darfur, our efforts in Somalia, our support for the Comoros islands, our united stand in supporting the return of the three islands belonging to the United Arab Emirates and our efforts concerning the position in Mauritania, the promotion of its stability and the safeguarding of its democratic experiment;
7. Concerning the conflict of civilizations and the accusations levelled at us and our culture, Arabs united in responding and in suggesting and formulating a position to counteract this patronizing trend. In many instances, the onslaught consequently abated, which is attributable to our agreed policy and active coordination with other States and blocs that did not accept the neo-conservative arguments propounded against Arabs and Muslims;
8. When Arabs perceived that their regional organization, the League of Arab States, was ready and able to take regional action and undertake the defence of Arab rights and interests in international forums, they spared no time in implementing proposals for its reform. As a result, clauses promoting the League's activity were added to the Charter, the implementation of resolutions escalated in pace and the budget increased, as did the commitment to meet it;

9. The problems facing us were candidly broached and no longer discussed only behind closed doors or in secret by leaderships, with peoples excluded. The position on Arab-Iranian relations, for instance, came to be discussed by the Arab public, with its diverse views, and relations with the United States became an all-consuming matter for everyone, at the highest levels of Government, in the political arena and also in public places and coffee shops, which in itself is progress towards true democracy. The clear requirement is that Arab politics should not fly towards the reverse of what people want and are content with in their collective consciousness. What is required is the identification of policies that marry the mind of government with the feelings of the people;

10. There is now an unprecedented information movement in the Arab world. Incomplete and sometimes equivocal as it may be, if we compare the Arab world and its institutions of expression today with how they were in the recent past, there is a vast difference in favour of freedom of expression, even though it has not yet been fully realized or reached maturity in all cases.

These are brief examples of the key Arab developments and their positive aspects. On the other hand, however, there are many negative aspects that pose a serious obstacle in the move towards a different future. The most important of these negative aspects lie in the following:

1. The defeatist tendency of the Arab political mentality, which it is now time to tackle, in addition to a political tendency to accept foreign "advice", which it is now time to end. Many criteria are involved and do not necessarily include those for Arab reconciliation, whether collective or individual;
2. The hazy understanding of international action in the context of peace, despite the clear need for a genuine common position. Policy is not based on courtesies such as those which some international policies were seeking to obtain for Israel on the pretext of preparing the climate for what were termed Israeli concessions, which confirms it as delusion and deception; during the so-called peace process and since Madrid in 1991, Israel has carried out not a single action that can be regarded as progress or as suggesting progress. The plan was to drag Arabs step by step towards normalization in favour of Israel, with nothing in return, something that must be guarded against in order to avoid any repetition. We are still awaiting specific approaches from the new United States Administration, although we have seen positive groundwork for which we take the trouble to express our welcome;
3. The ambivalent action towards democracy and the slow implementation of the documents relating to development adopted in Tunis;
4. Education, education - the Arab world is still far from achieving the internationally required standards in terms of its outputs from schools and universities, in which regard the gap is truly wide and the process for implementing the decisions taken within the system of joint Arab action has not yet taken off in the manner hoped for. As long as this grave situation continues - that is to say the fall in standards of education, which makes for failing generations and weak nations — no true development of our societies can be expected in the foreseeable future other than the formal developments made possible by modern life, which are meaningless on the scales of modernization and provide no added value to the weight of nations;

5. Science and scientific research - here Arab societies are clearly behind in touching the horizons of advanced science, opening the doors to modern knowledge and encouraging scientific innovation and invention. The contribution of the Arab world to this field is practically nil at the international level and Arab universities are at the bottom of the list of universities that produce and develop the capabilities of scientists. A neighbouring developing country has moreover begun to conquer and send satellites into space, strengthening its security with a vigour founded on the understanding, application and harnessing of modern science at the disposal of its people;

6. Knowledge - we must acknowledge the decline in the tools of knowledge in Arab societies. The time has come to end the break with the universal path of general knowledge about literature, the humanities, arts, writing and the various tools of cultural innovation.

We must leave no book fair without our participation in it, no art without our contribution to its enrichment and no literature without our translation of its main works into our language. We must also seek to have our books and our poetry translated into other languages. The Arab University and its institutions are attempting to do this, but a number of member States are not enthusiastic. In this regard, I must congratulate Qatar for the cultural journey on which it has embarked.

My suggestion that forthcoming summits should focus on and encourage science, education, knowledge and innovation could give free rein to the move towards a climate of broadening Arab scientific and cultural knowledge, which would have an enormous impact in redefining our world, not to say in defining ourselves and our capabilities.

In this regard, a number of Arab States have come to realize the advantage of this approach and have established some well-known forums and think-tanks. The time has come, however, for all of that to serve as a conduit for a well-rounded plan to return the knowledge culture and economy to the fore. My hope is that the current economic crisis will not have a greatly adverse effect on Arab activities in this area.

7. Economic development - the Arab University has presented numerous initiatives in this context, most recently the convening of the Kuwait summit. It is an issue, however, that requires a revolution in integrated collective development. The development of one country or development in each country separately will not constitute comprehensive regional development unless in accordance with a plan that is integrated from the outset. Implementation of the resolutions of the Kuwait summit, in particular the following three resolutions, will be enormously beneficial in this regard:

- (a) The resolution on the establishment of an Arab customs union by 2015;
- (b) The initiative announced by the Amir of Kuwait to encourage small- and medium-size industries in the Arab world to set up a fund of US$ 2 billion, with Kuwait shouldering the first US$ 500 million;
- (c) The resolution concerning joint projects to link roads, railways, land and air connections and electrical and gas networks.

In the context of the two resolutions on economic development, I should like to mention the need for collective follow-up of the global economic crisis and for the Arab Monetary Fund to monitor the effects of the crisis on Arab economies and report periodically to member States on its course and the consequences for us.

8. Social development - although some progress has been achieved in a number of social fields, more is still needed in such areas as the family, women, children, young people, population increase, illiteracy, unemployment and environment. These are also linked with the standard of education and the need for solid action in the area of development with a bold view to the future, while at the same time ensuring that the cultural heritage and bases of our societies remain intact.

Mr. President,

Your Majesties, Excellencies and Highnesses,

Allow me after this general review to return to the situation in regional politics and mention a number of important issues being addressed by this summit:

1. The Israeli incursion into Gaza brought us up against an Israeli policy that had reached a stage of virtual folly and against military operations that were typically rash and hazardous. Indeed, the targeting of civilians demonstrated that Israeli military thinking was approaching madness and the war crimes committed with a sense of immunity from international law were but a grave development for the worse about which no one should remain silent or stand passive. How could it be otherwise when we have heard soldiers of the Israeli occupation themselves talking about orders they had been given to kill women and children and create panic and turmoil among civilians and their families. The Arab University has asked an independent international legal committee comprising a number of top legal experts from Europe, South Africa and Australia and international forensic experts to investigate and ascertain what happened in Gaza. I expect its report in the next few weeks after it has conducted a fact-finding visit to the Strip. As soon as it arrives, I will call an urgent meeting of the Council of Ministers as a preliminary to taking the matter to the competent international judicial authorities. We shall not be lenient in calling the war criminals to account. In that regard, it is my hope that the competent international authorities will prove their impartiality and their desire for justice and will distance themselves from double standards when we provide them with the conclusions of the international investigation committees concerning what happened in Gaza.

2. It is true that we have been and remain committed to putting forward our peace initiative, even if it is for the time being, but peace initiatives - Arab or non-Arab - are made to be respected and worked with and to be put on the table for genuine negotiation - not sham or mock negotiation, such as that witnessed during the past year. Nor can there be any serious negotiation while Israeli settlement is gaining pace, causing distress in the occupied territories and making the establishment of a viable Palestinian State, not to mention the arrival at a peaceful solution, impossible. Whatever Government it may be under - for there is no difference between them - Israel must take heed of our statement that the choice is peace for land. There is no alternative and this applies to Jerusalem, just as it applies to the other occupied territories in Palestine, Syria and Lebanon.

3. The Arab nation will not throw itself to the peril of nuclear blackmail, regardless of what form it takes. For the first time, we now have an Arab strategy for the peaceful uses of atomic energy to 2020 that must be implemented. Over the years, successive international reports on Israel's nuclear capabilities have given cause for disquiet. Similarly, the undertaking of any military nuclear programme by States in the region may cause great universal concern. Although accusations are levelled at Iran, the reports of the International Atomic Energy Agency indicate no specific developments in that direction on the part of Iran. This does not, however, prevent me from proposing that:

- We collectively seek a comprehensive regional approach to dealing with the various nuclear dossiers of concern in the region with a view to the establishment of a nuclear-weapons-free zone in the Middle East that encompasses one and all, including Israel;
- We launch an Arab dialogue to pave the way for a regional dialogue aimed at preparing material for a treaty enabling the States of the region to establish peaceful nuclear cooperation, with the relinquishment of military nuclear programmes and accession to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons as preconditions for accession, this being a step towards the establishment of a collective regional security system, which Israel would not be permitted to join except in the context of the conditions already mentioned and the ending of the Arab-Israeli dispute.

I propose to initiate the process by examining the steps needed to establish a regional security system to protect the region against a nuclear arms race and by identifying the main requirements to that end.

4. The mechanisms for pan-Arab security remain the safety valve to which we shall resort in the event of serious developments at a time when we can no longer rely on existing international mechanisms alone, even if we cannot work in isolation from them.

The establishment of the Arab Peace and Security Council resulted from the clear political will on the part of the summit for Arab States to have at their disposal a modern-day apparatus capable of meeting Arab security requirements and monitoring subsequent developments. In previous summits, you responded to the need to develop and amend the regulations needed for the effective operation of this apparatus in its areas of competence. The requirement now, however, is for this summit to look into issuing the mandate required for appropriate participation in the membership of the Council, in its decision-making and in its engagement in preventive diplomacy work, which includes researching and studying the establishment of an Arab framework for peacekeeping operations and the circumstances in which they can operate, in coordination with the United Nations, along the lines of what is done in a number of regional organizations and unions, in particular the African Union.

5. We in the Arab nation are confident - perhaps more so than others - of the need a fair and impartial international criminal court. We are also on the side of justice and the application of justice, but the international courts must remain far from any hint of double standards and also create no risks that have an adverse impact on the lives of the many who seek justice as the basis for their protection. These are the principles that have guided our ongoing action to oppose the decision of the International Criminal Court concerning President Omar Hassan al-Bashir of the Sudan. In this regard, you have before you a draft communiqué, submitted by the Ministers for Foreign Affairs, which proposes a specific collective position towards the indictment.

We shall continue to work in cooperation and coordination with the African Union to stop the indictment against President al-Bashir and hope that the world will support this position and appreciate its necessity. We also hope that the requirements for security, stability and the establishment of peace in the Sudan, and in fact throughout the entire region of the Horn of Africa, will be observed.

6. Joint Arab action is no longer carried out in isolation from the international groupings and entities with an influential role, in particular the African Union and the Organization of the Islamic Conference. Furthermore, we have for the first time achieved an institutional structure for dialogue with the European Union in which all Arab States participate, working alongside the Union for the Mediterranean, in which the whole of Europe participates while not all Arabs do. We have also achieved close cooperation, within specific organizational frameworks, with China, India and Turkey and will seek to conclude similar agreements with the Russian Federation and Japan, as well as with other international groupings and entities, detecting as we do an increasing interest in the system of joint Arab action. In this regard, we welcome the convening of the second summit of Arab and South American countries tomorrow, which reflects a genuine development in Arab international relations.

Your Majesties, Excellencies and Highnesses,

When you created the institution of the Arab summit at the Cairo summit in 2000, it was not only a response to a modern-day requirement for development of the League as the parent institution for joint Arab action; it was also a conscious reflection of the interests of the Arab world and the demands of its citizens for a broad Arab solidarity that enables the nation, as a single entity, to channel all of its energies and resources into achieving those things on which people have long pinned their hopes.

This is consequently linked with the progress of Arab reconciliation, for which it is necessary to counter the negative ideas about Arab relations that lie behind our problems in the east, west and south of the Arab world. In fact, it requires us to discuss three associated concepts, namely: reconciliation; Arab solidarity in the face of external problems; and the ability to manage disputes and prevent them from reaching the stage where clashes and quarrels occur. A working paper on that subject has been submitted to the Ministers for Foreign Affairs and we have in fact already begun to discuss it.

Our purposes and ends are no different. Arguments about purposes can imperil both the purposes and the means, whereas arguments about the means may open the doors to enriching the discussion and creating ways of advancing towards the achievement of agreed Arab interests, which is necessary to the accomplishment and acceleration of full reconciliation so that the progress of joint Arab action is neither halted nor impeded, nor its impact extinguished.

I should like to conclude my address by saluting Mr. Ban Ki-moon, Secretary-General of the United Nations, Mr. Jean Ping, African Union Commission Chairperson, and Dr. Ekmeleddin Ihsanoglu, Secretary-General of the Organization of the Islamic Conference, and reiterate my gratitude and appreciation to His Highness the Amir of the State of Qatar.

May peace and God's mercy and blessings be upon you.
